IV, c. 85.* An assignment by a Puisne Judge of the Supreme Court at Madras of the sum, "equal to the amount of six months' salary," directed by the 6 Geo. IV, c. 85, to be paid to the "legal personal representatives" of such Judge in case of his death in and after six months' possession of office, held to be a valid assignment being a vested contingent interest in such Judge, and, not being payable during the life of the Judge, was not an assignment of salary within 5 & 6 Edw. III, c. 16, and 49 Geo. III, c. 126, and therefore was not contrary to public policy. ARBUTHNOT v. NORTON . 3 Moo. I. A. 435

—— Auctioneer—Agent bidding "kutchapucca"—Usage of trade—Custom—Condition of sale. An agent of the defendants made at an auction-sale a bid for certain goods ; this bid was not at the time accepted by the auctioneers, but was referred to the owners of the goods for approval and sanction, the agent agreeing to such reference. The conditions of sale contained no clause stipulating for such procedure. Previous to any reply being received by the auctioneers from their principals, the principals of the agent bidding refused to acknowledge the bid of their agent. In a suit brought by the auctioneers to recover a loss on a re-sale of the goods, the plaintiffs set up a usage of trade, whereby it was alleged that the bidder at such a sale was not at liberty to withdraw his bid until a reasonable time had been allowed for the auctioneers to refer the bid to the owner of the goods. The only evidence on this point was that of an assistant to the firm of the plaintiffs, who stated "that such an arrangement had never been repudiated." Held, that the condition of sale containing no clause to the effect of the usage claimed, and there being no sufficient evidence that the usage was so universal as to become part of the contract by operation of law, there was no contract between the parties, and therefore that no suit would lie. 1. —— Setting aside sale—Public Demands Recovery Act (Bengal Act I of 1895), ss. 20, 21—Civil Procedure Code (Act XII of 1882), ss. 223, 224, 244, 311, 312—Irregularity—Right of suit. A certificate for recovery of cesses was made by the Cess Collector of Burdwan against the plaintiff and other persons who were all residents of that district ; the major portion of the property in respect of which the certificate was made was also situated within the jurisdiction of the Burdwan district ; the certificate was, however, ordered to be sent to Birbhum for execution and an intimation was sent that the demand was to be realised by the sale of the debtor's interest in a certain mouzah in Birbhum. The Birbhum Court thereupon held the sale. Held, in a suit to set aside the sale, that the sending of the certificate for execution to the Birbhum Court was not authorised under s. 223 of the Civil Procedure Code, and consequently the subsequent proceedings were not legal and the sale cannot stand. That the suit was not barred by s. 312 of the Civil Procedure Code. S. 312 of the Civil Procedure Cod

2. ——— Public Demands Recovery Act (Bengal Act VII of 1880), s. 17—Powers of revision of the Commissioner and the Board of Revenue—Certificate sale—Setting aside—Certificate issued under the Cess Act (Bengal Act IX of 1880)—Limitation—Deciding case in a party's absence—Proper remedy. Bengal Act VII of 1880 for the recovery of public demands applied to cases of road and other cesses. Sadhusaran Singh v. Panchdeo Lal, I. L. R. 14 Calc. 1, referred to. Where a Commissioner set aside a sale held in execution of a certificate granted by a Deputy Collector in respect of a fine imposed for failure to comply with a notice under s. 16 of the Cess Act, on the ground that the evidence for the petitioner made out "a primâ facie case of fraud, or at any rate of irregularities, which prevented the petitioner from obtaining knowledge of the proceedings against him, and caused the sale of his estate at a most inadequate price." Held, that the power of revision conferred on the Commissioner by s. 17 of Bengal Act VII of 1880, was amply sufficient to justify the order setting aside the sale. The Board of Reveune also had power to interfere in this case under s. 24 of the Act. S. 17 of Bengal Act VII of 1880 applied to orders made after as well as before sales in execution of certificates issued under the Act. The periods of limitation applicable in ordinary cases were not binding on the Commissioner, when he was acting in exercise of his revisional jurisdiction. It is an elementary principle, which is binding on all persons, who exercise judicial or quasi-judicial powers, that an order should not be made against a man's interest without there being given him an opportunity of being heard. In this case the order of the Commissioner annulling the sale was challenged in a regular suit brought in the Civil Court on the ground that the order was made without hearing the purchaser. Held, that the proper remedy of the purchaser was to apply to the Commissioner for a re-hearing. 3. ——— Public Demands Recovery Act (I of 1895), ss. 10, 12, 15, 17, 24, 26—Certificate sale—Sale to set aside, if lies—Amount of certificate paid after issue—Sale if void—Sale in execution of decree after satisfaction certified—Right of innocent purchaser—Hardship—Speculative purchase. A certificate which has been properly made for arrears actually due cannot be cancelled or modified on the ground that the demand has been subsequently satisfied, either upon a petition of objection preferred under s. 12 of the Public Demands Recovery Act or in an action under s. 15 of the same Act.

SALE FOR ARREARS OF CESSES— concld.

A suit will lie to set aside a sale held in execution of such a decree. It cannot be broadly laid down that in no case is an innocent stranger who has purchased immoveable property sold in execution of a satisfied decree to be deprived of the benefit of his purchase. Held, on a review of the authorities, that when a sale has taken place on the basis of a satisfied decree, the satisfaction of which has been certified to the Court, the sale is void and ineffective to pass any title even to a bonâ fide purchaser for value without notice. The Public Demands Recovery Act, by ss. 10, 24 and 26, casts upon the certificate officer a duty to enter satisfaction as soon as payment has been made of the amount for which certificate had been issued and authorises him to sell only so long as the certificate remains unpaid. Where, therefore, the amount for which the certificate was issued was two days later deposited in the treasury, but this was overlooked with notice under s. 10 of the Act was issued and served and immoveable property belonging to the judgment-debtor sold and purchased by a stranger, Held, that the sale must be set aside as made without jurisdiction. Abdool Hai v. Gujraj, L. R. 20 I. A. 70 : s.c. I. L. R. 20 Calc. 826 (1891), followed. Rewa Mahton v. Ram Kishen, L. R. 13 I. A. 106 : s.c. I. L. R. 14 Calc. 18 (1886), explained. Poorna Chandra v. Dinabandhu, 11 C. W. N. 756 : s.c. I. L. R. 34 Calc. 811 : 5 C. L. J. 96, referred to. A person who with his eyes open makes a speculative purchase of a valuable estate for next to nothing cannot complain of hardship when the sale is set aside. 4. ——— Public Demands Recovery Act (Beng. I of 1895), sale under—What interest passes—Recorded tenants, decree against, when binds the interest of unrecorded tenants—Doctrine of representation and estoppel—Question should be raised as an issue.* It is settled law that a sale under the Public Demands Recovery Act passes merely the right, title and interest of the persons named as the judgment-debtors in the certificate. The doctrine of representation and the principle of estoppel upon which the decision of the majority in Bishambur Haldar v. Bonomali Haldar, I. L. R. 26 Calc. 414, is based are not to be extended to cases of sales under the Public Demands Recovery Act. Semble : The question of estoppel should be definitely raised and proper materials placed on the record before a decree against the registered tenants can be held to bind the interests of the unregistered tenants. 1. ACT VIII OF 1835.

1. ——— Procedure—Sale of under-tenure—Beng. Reg. VII of 1799. Sales of under-tenures under Act VIII of 1835 for arrears of rent were not required to be according to the procedure laid down in Regulation VII of 1799, but according to the procedure prescribed by s. 2 of Act VIII of 1835. MONOSHEE v. ABDOOL HOSSEIN . 7 W. R. 297

2. ——— Effect of sale—Right of purchaser—Itmamee tenure. When rights and interests in a talukh were sold for arrears of rent under Act VIII of 1835, the purchaser obtained no power to destroy the itmamee tenure. SOOBULCHUNDER PAUL v. ATTUR ALI . . . 11 W. R. 32

3. ——— Right of purchaser—Incumbrances. A sale of an under-tenure under Act VIII of 1835 passed only the right, title, and interest of the judgment-debtor, and did not void the incumbrances created by the old tenant. MANICK CHUNDER DOSS v. DWARKANAUTH DOSS . . . . 2 Hay 502

4. ——— Right of purchaser—Act XI of 1859, s. 52. Semble: The purchaser of a holding in a khas mehal sold under Act VIII of 1835 could claim the position or privileges accorded by ss. 37 and 52 of Act XI of 1859 to purchasers of permanently settled estates, or of estates sold in districts not permanently settled, sold for arrears of revenue. KYLASH CHUNDER SHAHA v. SHURNOMOYEE DOSSEE
7 W. R. 318

5. ——— Incumbrances—Howladari tenure. The plaintiff held certain lands in talukh Q under a howladari pottah. Q was sold for arrears of rent under Act VIII of 1835, and purchased by the defendant. After purchase, the defendant dispossessed the plaintiff from his lands, on the ground that he had purchased the talukh free from all incumbrances created by the late defaulting talukhdar. The plaintiff brought this suit to recover possession of his lands from the defendant. Held, that a purchaser of a tenure under Act VIII of 1835 did not necessarily acquire it free from all incumbrances. Case remanded for trial of the genuineness of the plaintiff's pottah. JASIMUDDIN v. MANSUR ALI

1. ACT VIII OF 1835—concld.

6. ——— Right of purchaser—Attachment—Tender of arrears. In a suit to set aside a sale in execution of a decree for arrears of rent due up to Aghran 1262, the plaintiff, who claimed under a deed of conditional sale, was held not entitled to a decree on the following grounds. He was not a registered tenant at the time of the sale, but as a sezawal was legally in possession. The plaintiff never tendered the arrears for which the sale was made. Under Act VIII of 1835, no separate attachment of a mehal or notification of sale in the mofussil is necessary in order to render the sale valid. In this case, not the rights and interests of the defaulter, but the tenure itself, passed for the arrears due upon it. Attachment by the appointment of a sezawal is no bar to a sale for arrears due before such attachment. FORBES v. PROTAP SINGH DOOGUR . . . . 7 W. R. 409

7. ——— Beng. Reg. VII of 1799—Tuppa right, extinguishment of. Semble: A tuppa right is annihilated by a sale held under Act VIII of 1835 and cl. 7, s. 15, Regulation VII of 1799. ZEENUT BEBEE v. RAHATOONISSA 7 W. R. 243

2. DEFAULTERS.

1. ——— Disabilities of defaulters—Purchase—Beng. Reg. VIII of 1819—Sale of patni. A defaulter cannot, under Reg. VIII of 1819, purchase a patni sold on account of his default to pay the patni rent, either in his own name or in that of any other person. MAHOMED NASSEER v. KISHEN MOHUN GOYEE . . W. R. F. B. 92

2. ——— Purchase—Sale of patni. Not merely recorded shareholders, but all actual defaulters (such as joint patnidars), are prohibited from being purchasers of patni. GOUREE KOMUL BHUTTACHARJEE v. RAJ KISHEN NATH 5 W. R. 106

3. ——— Purchase—Right to sue—Suit by another defaulting co-sharer to set aside sale. A suit by a sharer to set aside a sale having been dismissed on the ground that plaintiff being a defaulter the suit would not lie, plaintiff brought a second suit to claim possession of his share of the dar-patni talukh, on the ground that the sale must be inoperative, inasmuch as the purchaser, a co-sharer, was also a defaulter. Held, that, until the sale was set aside, plaintiff was not in a position to claim possession of his share. GOUREE KOMUL BHUTTACHARJEE v. RAJ KRISTO NATH . . . . . 14 W. R. 369

4. ——— Purchase—Suit by other defaulters to set aside sale—Joint owners—Dar-patnidar—Constructive trust. Of three joint owners of a dar-patni, two held a 4 annas share, and the third an 8 annas share. Default having been made by all three in the payment of the rent, the patnidar brought a suit and obtained a decree for the arrears. In execution of this decree, proclamation was made that a dar-patni would be sold on the 5th of October 1877. Up to the commencement of the sale the 4 annas shareholders were unable to pay their proportionate amount of the decree; the 8 annas shareholder declined paying his share, and, when the sale took place, he became the purchaser of a dar-patni. In a suit brought by the 4 annas shareholders to recover their shares from the purchaser, the lower Appellate Court, reversing the decree of the Court of first instance, decided in favour of the plaintiffs. Held, on second appeal, that, the sale having taken place as much through the default of the plaintiffs as through the default of the defendant, the former had no equity against the latter; and that therefore the suit should be dismissed. 3. ——— Act X of 1859, s. 105—Sale of transferable tenure—Act X of 1859, s. 151. The plaintiff sued to bring a transferable occupancy tenure to sale in satisfaction of a decree for arrears of rent, by cancelment by an order passed under Act X of 1859 relating to the execution of the decree. Held, that, in so far as the suit sought to set aside the order, it was barred by the provisions of s. 151 of Act X of 1859, and was not admissible by reason of the repeal of the Act: in so far as, irrespectively of the order, the suit sought to recover the amount of the decree by the sale of the holding on which the arrear accrued, at the time it was instituted s. 105 of the Act had ceased to be law in these provinces, and could not be cited in support of the claim. A landlord who was in receipt of a half share of the rent of a certain tenure caused that share of the tenure to be sold in execution of a decree for arrears of rent. After such sale A, the purchaser, took possession. Subsequently the tenant executed a mortgage, and a decree being obtained by the mortgagee the whole tenure was brought to sale in execution thereof and purchased by the mortgagee, who proceeded to oust A. In a suit by A to recover possession of his half share of the tenure on the footing of his purchase :—Held, that he could not make out a title to the half tenure with the privilege attaching to the purchase of an entire tenure under ss. 59 and 60 of Bengal Act VIII of 1869; and that, as it appeared that the mortgagor, whose rights and interests only were thus sold, was only one of several co-sharers, in the absence of the co-sharers, who were not parties to the suit, A was not entitled to the relief he sought. that defendants Nos. 3 and 4, who were the proprietors of a certain share of the estate under which the said talukh was held, having obtained a collusive decree for arrears of rent for the years 1298 and 1299 (B. S.) against defendant No. 1, who was a joint owner of the talukh with the plaintiffs, in execution thereof fraudulently caused the disputed property to be sold, and defendant No. 1 purchased it, in the benami of defendant No. 2, the defence (inter alia) was that the sale was not brought about by fraud or collusion, and that the rent suit having been brought against the registered tenant defendant No. 1, the whole tenure passed by the sale. Held by BANERJEE and HILL, JJ. (RAMPINI, J., dissenting), that inasmuch as it appeared that the share sold away stood in the name of defendant No. 1 alone; that the zamindar used to sue defendant No. 1 rent for the said share; that the defendant No. 1 used to realise a rateable share of costs, road cesses, etc., which he was bound to pay under rent decrees obtained against him, from the plaintiffs sometimes amicably and generally by contribution suits; and that the defendants Nos. 3 and 4, who were the fractional shareholders of the zamindari, sued the defendant No. 1 as usual for rent for the years 1298 and 1299 B. The plaintiffs sued to recover possession of their share of certain rent-paying lands on the allegation that they were entitled to a one-third share of these lands by inheritance from the last recorded tenant, and another one-third share by purchase from one of his heirs; that the defendants Nos. 2 and 3 were entitled to the remaining one-third share; that for some years they and the said defendants have been paying rent to the landlord and obtaining separate rent receipts; that the defendants Nos. 2 and 3 in collusion with the landlord allowed a decree to be passed against them in respect of the entire jumma, in execution of which the said lands were sold and purchased by defendant No. 1. The defence of defendant No. 1, inter alia, was that, as the rent suit brought by the landlord was against the person who was the sarbarakar or manager of the jumma, therefore by the sale in execution of a decree obtained in that suit the entire jumma passed. Held, that, as the landlord was bound to recognise the plaintiffs as tenants in the place of the last recorded tenant, and also as he chose to accept rent from the plaintiffs, and the defendants Nos. 2 and 3 separately, he had no right to ignore the plaintiffs and proceed only against the defendants. The entire jumma did not pass by the sale, and the plaintiffs' right was not affected thereby. Nitayi Behari Saha Paramanick v. Hari Govinda Saha, I. L. R. 26 Calc. 677, distinguished. 11. ——— Sale of gantidari rights. In a suit for arrears of rent, where defendants denied the relation of landlord and tenant to exist between themselves and the plaintiffs, it was found that plaintiff had been the sole owner of an estate which formed a 12 annas share of the under-tenure of a gantidar, who was liable to pay the rent of other 4 annas to the owner of the neighbouring estate. In execution of a decree for arrears of rent due on the 12 annas share, plaintiff caused the ganti to be sold and purchased it himself, and the proceeds not being sufficient to pay the amount of the decree, he caused the tenant-right of the 4 annas share to be sold and purchased that also. Held, that Bengal Act VIII of 1869, s. 64, did not apply, because plaintiff was not a sharer in a joint undivided estate; and that, by his purchase, plaintiff had become the absolute owner of the 12 annas ganti, and had acquired the right, title, and interest of the last registered tenant in the 4 annas share. The result was to place him in the position of holding the 16 annas gantidari right as against the under-tenants, who were bound to pay rent to him as de facto gantidar. It is not unless and until all the moveable property of the judgment-debtor has been sold and the sale-proceeds are found insufficient to satisfy the decree, that the judgment-creditor can proceed under s. 64 or 65, Bengal Act VIII of 1869, to seize and sell the immoveable property of his debtor. Where the sale proclamation distinctly set out that the sale would be held according to the provisions of s. 59 of Act VIII of 1869, and the property advertised was the tenure and the property sold was the tenure:—Held, that the mere insertion of a statement that the sale was of the rights and interests of the judgment-debtor would not have the effect of limiting the sale to such rights and interests and not extending to the tenure itself. The paramount rights of Government in respect of debts due to the Crown are not transferred to alienees (such as inamdars) of Government revenue. If an inamdar fails to recover his rents by any of the special processes provided in the regulations, and is obliged to go into the Civil Court and obtain a decree for arrears, the sale of the land in execution of such a decree has the same effect (and no more) as a sale of land in execution of a decree for any other debt. The lower Appellate Court found as a fact that the late shikmidar, and not the Rajah, had granted the lands in dispute as brahmatar, but not in favour of the person through whom the plaintiff claimed. It, however, passed a decree in favour of the plaintiff, as he had been unlawfully dispossessed. Held, that, under s. 16, Bengal Act VIII of 1865, the incumbrances created by the former holder were voidable by the auction-purchaser, and that the plaintiff should show that the former holder could create such right. It appeared that the tenure under which the defendant held the land was created, not by the owner of the ganti tenure, but by the superior landlord before the creation of the ganti tenure. Held, that, inasmuch as the tenure had not been created by the owner of the ganti tenure, the plaintiff was not entitled to avoid it as an incumbrance under s. 66 of Bengal Act VIII of 1869. 30. ——— Beng. Reg. VIII of 1819, s. 11—"Defaulting proprietor"—"Defaulter"—Incumbrances created by previous patnidar—Mokurari lease, avoidance of—Voidable incumbrances. In 1839 a mokurari lease was granted to the predecessors of the defendants by the then patnidar of a patni created in 1819. In 1848 the patni was sold for arrears of rent under the provisions of Bengal Regulation VIII of 1819, but the purchaser at that sale did not interfere with the mokurari. In 1885 the patni was again brought to sale under the same Regulation for arrears of rent, the default being made by one of the successors of the purchaser in 1848, and at this sale it was purchased by the plaintiffs. In 1890 the plaintiffs sued to set aside the mokurari lease, contending that they were, by virtue of their purchase, entitled to avoid all encumbrances created by any patnidar, and were not restricted to avoiding merely those created by the immediate defaulter. The defendants contended that the provisions of s. 11 of the Regulation restricted the plaintiffs to avoiding incumbrances the acts of the immediate defaulter, and that, as the purchaser in 1848, and his successors in title previous to the defaulter in 1885, had not interfered with the mokurari lease, the plaintiffs could not have it set aside. Held (RAMPINI, J., dissenting), that the plaintiffs were entitled to avoid the mokurari. Held, per GHOSE and BEVERLEY, JJ., that having regard to the policy and principle of the Regulation, a zamindar is entitled to bring a patni to sale in the same condition in which it was at the time of its creation, and that the purchaser is therefore entitled to avoid all incumbrances imposed upon it since its creation, whether by the actual defaulter or by any of his predecessors. Per GHOSE, J.—The mokurari lease was an incumbrance upon the patni, but inasmuch as s. 11 distinguishes in cls. 1 and 2 between "incumbrances" and "leases" it might be regarded as the latter. If treated as an incumbrance, it must be held to have accrued upon the patni by reason of the defaulting zamindar not having set it aside, though entitled to do so within the meaning of those words in cl. 1. If treated as a lease, the words in cl. 2, "holder of the former tenure," are wide enough to include any patnidar whether the defaulting or a previous holder. Per BEVERLEY, J.—The words "defaulting proprietors" used in cl. 1 of s. 11 must be read as the "proprietor of the tenure in default," and were not intended to be restricted to the particular proprietor for whose default the tenure is brought to sale, and the word "defaulter" used in cl. 2 of that section must be given a similarly wide interpretation. 36. ——— and ss. 65, 148, 161, and 176—Estoppel—Mortgagor and mortgagee—Order in execution-proceedings against mortgagee—Res judicata—Decree obtained before Bengal Tenancy Act came into force—Execution under former Rent Law—Incumbrance—Mode of annulling incumbrance—Sale for arrears of rent—Charge of rent as first charge on tenure—Sale in execution of mortgage-decree—Decree for sale. By a mortgage-bond, dated the 22nd August 1884, and registered, K created a charge in favour of the plaintiff on six talukhs for re-payment of the mortgage-debt, in respect of two of which talukhs suits had been brought by the zamindar for arrears of rent, and decrees obtained on the 6th June 1885, before the coming into operation of the Bengal Tenancy Act (VIII of 1885). After that Act had come into force, these decrees were assigned to G, a benamidar for P, for execution, and on his seeking to execute them, he was opposed by K on the ground that, as the transfer of the decree by assignment, and the subsequent application for execution, were made after the Bengal Tenancy Act had come into force, and as G the assignee had acquired no interest in the talukhs, his application for execution could not be granted under s. 148, cl. (h), of that Act. On the 9th July 1886, the Court overruled this objection, and ordered execution to issue, holding that, as the decree in the rent-suits were passed before the Tenancy Act came into operation, the execution should proceed under the old law. In execution of the decrees, the two talukhs were put up for sale, and purchased by G as benamidar for P. In a suit brought by the plaintiff, the mortgagee against K and P (and others representing others of the six talukhs) it was contended, so far as the two talukhs were concerned, that the plaintiff, though not a party to the execution-proceedings, was bound by the order of the 9th July 1886, made in the course of those proceedings; that P, having purchased the two taluks at sales for arrears of rent, had acquired them free from all incumbrances; that the plaintiff's mortgage was not a notified incumbrance within the meaning of s. 161 of the Tenancy Act, and that he was therefore not entitled to have his mortgage-lien declared against the two talukhs. Held (affirming the judgment of the lower Appellate Court), that the plaintiff was not bound by the order of the 9th July 1886, K, the mortgagor, not representing his interest sufficiently to make that order binding on the plaintiff as mortgagee. Dooma Sahoo v. Joonarain Lall, 12 W. R. 362 : 4 B. L. R. A. C. 27 note ; Tribhobun Singh v. Jhono Lall, 18 W. R. 206 ; Bonomali Nag v. Koylash Chunder Dey, I. L. R. 4 Calc. 692 ; Madho Pershad Singh v. Purshan Ram, I. L. R. 4 Calc. 520 ; and Sitaram v. Amir Begam, I. L. R. 8 All. 324, referred to. The proprietor of an estate cannot be said to represent the whole estate after he had mortgaged it, and this distinguishes the case of a mortgagor as representing an estate from that of a Hindu widow, or shebait, who are held to represent the estate so as to bind the reversioner or the succeeding shebait. The interest of a mortgagee in an estate may be greater than that left in the mortgagor, or, as in the present case, where it was no part of the mortgagor's interest to protect the incumbrance, the interests of the mortgagor and mortgagee are not identical; the balance of justice and expediency therefore is in favour of not allowing a mortgagee to be bound by an order made against his mortgagor. Nor is there anything in the provisions of the rent-law against that view. A decree for rent of a tenure obtained against the registered tenant binds an unregistered transferee of the tenure, who can show no sufficient cause for not registering his name, and may be enforced by sale of the tenure [Sham Chand Kundu v. Brojonath Pal Chowdhry, 12 B. L. R. 484 : 21 W. R. 94]; but whether any such sale was in sufficient conformity with the rent-law to be operative in annulling a prior mortgage, or other incumbrance, must be determined in the presence of the party claiming the benefit of the incumbrance. Tirbhobun Singh v. Jhono Lal, 18 W. R. 206, and Madho Pershad Singh v. Purshan Ram, I. L. R. 4 Calc. 520, referred to. Held, also, that, though the rent-decrees were passed under the rent law, the assignment and the application by the assignee for execution having been made after the Bengal Tenancy Act came into force, cl. (h), of s. 148 of that Act applied to the execution-proceedings (Ranjit Singh v. Meherban Koer, I. L. R. 3 Calc. 663), and the sale on such an application, which is prohibited by that clause, must be held to be no sale under the rent law. The clause does not affect any vested right. All that it prohibits is an application for the enforcement of the decree by an assignee and that is a matter of procedure. If any right is affected, it is not a right of the decree-holder, but the right of the assignee of the decree to apply for execution, and in this case there was no such assignee before the Bengal Tenancy Act came into force. The mode provided by s. 167 of the Bengal Tenancy Act is the only mode in which incumbrances can be annulled by purchasers of tenures for arrears of rent, and that mode not having been followed in this case, the incumbrance on the two talukhs was not annulled. S. 65 of the Tenancy Act, which provides that "the tenure or holding shall be liable to sale in execution of a decree for the rent thereof, and the rent shall be a first charge thereon, only intends what is laid down in Ch. XIV of the Act, namely, that the charge should be enforced by the sale of the tenure or holding free of incumbrances; and if in any case the decree for rent either has not been, or cannot be, enforced by the sale of the tenure, the charge created by s. 65 cannot be enforced in any other way. No reason, therefore, could be shown under that section for making the sale in satisfaction of the plaintiff's mortgage, subject to the rent decree as a first charge. 37. ——— and s. 165—Notice to annul incumbrance, whether necessary when the purchaser and incumbrancer are the same person. After a mortgage-deed was passed, the mortgaged property was sold in execution of a decree for rent and was purchased by the mortgaged decree-holder. The mortgage decree provided that the mortgaged property should be sold in the first instance, and if that should prove insufficient, other properties would be sold; the mortgagee, however, applied to sell the other properties without proceeding against the mortgaged property which he had purchased. The lower Appellate Court held that there was not sufficient evidence to show that the mortgaged property which had been sold in execution of the decree for rent had been sold with power to avoid all incumbrances, and even if the sale was so held, the incumbrance had not been cancelled by the necessary notices under s. 167 of the Bengal Tenancy Act in spite of the fact that the incumbrancer and the purchaser were one and the same person. The mortgagee decree-holder preferred a second appeal. Held, that, even if the sale was under s. 165 of the Bengal Tenancy Act, the incumbrance had not been annulled by proceedings under s. 167 and the appeal ought to be dismissed. Under s. 101 of the Transfer of Property Act, which is of general application, his incumbrance is extinguished unless he evinces an intention to keep it alive. Where a mortgagee has purchased the mortgaged property in execution of a rent decree, he is entitled to proceed against the other properties of the mortgagor. Goluk Chunder Das v. *Ram Sunkar Sutt, 4 C. After the period of limitation, another application was made by him, to amend the previous application by substituting the name of the real incumbrancer, which was allowed by the Collector. Held, that the Collector, who was merely a ministerial officer in the matter, had no power to make any such amendment; and that the application to serve a notice on the real incumbrancer, not having been made within one year from the date on which the purchaser had notice of the incumbrance, was barred by limitation. 20. ——— Sale on basis of decree on compromise—Auction-purchaser, title of—Liability of purchaser for rent accruing due after his purchase, but before confirmation of sale—Effect of compromise as against purchaser—Rent, accrual of—Bengal Tenancy Act, s. 53. A tenant, when sued for arrears of rent of a jote, compromised the case by executing a solehnama agreeing to pay rent at 13 annas per bigha on 4,300 bighas. Subsequently the jote was sold, in execution of a decree passed on the basis of the solehnama, and was purchased by the defendant on the 20th March 1889, the sale being confirmed on the 7th August 1889. In a suit, instituted by the landlord against the auction-purchaser for arrears of rent for the whole year 1296 (13th April 1889 to 12th April 1890) :—Held, that the purchaser was liable for the whole instalment of rent accrued due after the date of his purchase, but before the confirmation of the sale, notwithstanding that his title was not perfected until the latter date. Rent is to be regarded not as accruing from day to day, but as falling due only at stated times according to the contract of tenancy or in the absence of any contract according to the general law laid down in s. 53 of the Bengal Tenancy Act. Held, also, that he was liable for rent under the terms of the solehnama irrespective of any question as to whether the quantity of land there mentioned was correct or not. 23. ——— Sale of occupancy holding at the instance of landlord in execution of money-decree—Subsequent sale of the same for arrears of rent—Bengal Tenancy Act (VIII of 1885), s. 22—Damages—Refund of purchase-money. Defendant No. 10, the landlord, in execution of a decree for money, put to sale the occupancy holding of an occupancy raiyat, the defendant No. 1, and, having purchased it himself, made a settlement of the same with defendants Nos. 2, 3, and 4; the landlord subsequently brought a suit against defendant No. 1 for recovery of rent due from him for the past years and brought to sale the same holding which was thereupon purchased by the plaintiff. In a suit by the latter for recovery of possession :—Held, that the plaintiff did not acquire any title, inasmuch as the landlord by his own act had brought the raiyati right of the defendant No. 1 to a termination, and there was no subsisting right in that defendant such as the plaintiff could acquire by sale. Held, further, that the plaintiff was entitled to get a refund of the purchase money from the landlord, and that a separate suit for that purpose was not necessary. In a suit for possession of the dar-talukh by the plaintiffs, who respresented the purchaser at a sale in execution of the mortgage-decree :—Held, that the old dar-talukh having been transformed into a patni, which passed to the principal defendants by the sale in execution of a decree for its own arrears, there was nothing of which the plaintiffs could recover khas possession. Held, also (per BANERJEE, J.), that the creation of a mortgage gives certain rights to the mortgagor over the mortgaged property; but it does not necessarily prevent third parties from dealing with the mortgagor still as the owner of the property, nor is the mortgagee entitled in every case to ignore the rights arising out of such dealings in favour of third parties, but this rule is subject to one qualification, namely, that the transactions between the mortgagor and third parties, if free from fraud and collusion, are binding on the mortgagee and persons deriving title from him. Byjnath Lall v. *Ramoodem Chowdhry, L. This sale took place on the 7th November 1876, and after satisfaction of the decree the surplus proceeds remained in the Collectorate to the credit of the dar-patnidar. Afterwards in December 1876 the patnidar brought another suit for the dar-patni rent due in respect of the period between April and October 1876, and having obtained a decree attached the surplus proceeds in the Collectorate, which were at the same time attached by two other holders of ordinary decrees. Held, that the decree of the patnidar, although for rents of the current year, had no priority over the other decrees ; and that the surplus proceeds of the sale of the dar-patni tenure formed part of the assets of the late dar-patnidar, and were not hypothecated to the patnidar for the rent of the year current. The same patnidar afterwards mortgaged the patni talukh to the plaintiffs, who obtained a decree on their mortgage on the 28th September 1874. The patni was sold for its own arrears on the 17th November 1876 ; and after payment of rent and all expenses, there remained a surplus in the hands of the Collector, which was attached by the plaintiffs in execution of their decree on the 9th of November 1876. On the 12th January 1877, the defendants instituted a suit against the partnidar, under cl. 5, s. 17, Regulation VIII of 1819, for compensation for the loss of the dar-patni, and obtained a decree, which the Court directed should be satisfied out of the surplus sale-proceeds ; and the Collector, notwithstanding the plaintiffs' attachment, allowed the defendants to obtain the amount decreed out of the surplus sale-proceeds. In a suit by the plaintiffs to recover the amount paid for compensation, on the ground that the plaintiffs' attachment was prior to the defendants' suit :—Held, that the defendants' decree must, notwithstanding the plaintiffs' attachment, be satisfied out of the surplus sale-proceeds in priority to the plaintiffs' decree. Two of the defendants pleaded that, over and above the amount taken by them, there remained in deposit sufficient money to satisfy the plaintiff, and that the other unsecured creditors who had drawn out this balance should alone be held liable. Held, that the surplus sale-proceeds were to be regarded as the shape into which the plaintiff's security was converted, and as before such conversion the security could not be spilt up into parts, the plaintiff was entitled to realize the balance due to him out of the whole of the surplus, as otherwise his security would be diminished. 7. ——— Right of suit—Beng. Reg. VIII of 1819—Non-registrartion of transfer. L and R, the holders of a patni estate, granted in 1856 a dar-patni lease to S at an annual rent, the lease stipulating that S should have full power of sale and gift, but should not sub-let without the patnidars' consent. The lease contained no stipulation for the registration of any vendee or donee. In 1860 S sold the dar-patni lease to K, the deed of sale which was duly registered providing for mutation of names in the patnidars' books. No such mutation was ever effected by K, who was never recognized as their tenant by L and R, the rent of the dar-patni being paid in the name of S. In 1864, the rent due from the patnidars being in arrear, the zamindar proceeded to sell the patni under Regulation VIII of 1819. Thereupon K, in order to protect his under-tenure, deposited in the Collectorate, on 17th November 1864, a sum of money, on which the sale was stayed. K, being then in arrear in the payment of his dar-patni rent, claimed to set off the amount deposited in the Collectorate against the rent due to L and R. This L and R refused to allow, and they brought a suit in the Collector's Court, against S and his sureties to recover the arrears of rent. In that suit K intervened, claiming the benefit of the set-off, to which, however, the High Court, on 26th June 1866, on appeal held that he was not entitled, the deposit being merely a voluntary payment by K. On 30th October 1867 K brought a regular suit againt S and L and R to recover the amount of the deposit, and obtained a decree, but the decision was reversed on appeal, and the suit dismissed for want of jurisdiction. Where there is a cutchery upon the land of a defaulting patnidar, the notice required by s. 8 of Regulation VIII of 1819 must be served there ; but where there is no such cutchery, the notice should be published, in the manner required by the section, at the principal town or village within the talukh. MAHARAJAH OF BURDWAN v. KRISTO KAMINI DASI

S. C. on appeal to the Privy Council. Publication of the notice of sale of a tenure under Regulation VIII of 1819 is required to be in the manner prescribed in s. 8, cl. 2 ; and personal service on the defaulter is not sufficient. The object of directing local publication of the notice, viz., to warn the under-lessees of the sale-proceedings and also to advertise the sale to those who might bid, would be frustrated if it were sufficient to publish the notice at a distant cutchery or to serve it personally. If there is a cutchery on the land of the defaulting patnidar, meaning the land which is to be sold for arrears of rent, the copy or extract of such part of the notice of sale as may apply to the tenure in question must be published at that cutchery, and if there is no such cutchery on the land held by the defaulter, the copy or extract must be published at the principal town or village on the land. In the description of this in cl. 2 as "the notice required to be sent into the mofussil," the word "mofussil" is opposed to the sudder cutchery of the zamindar, and refers to the subordinate estate, which is the subject of the sale-proceedings. Where a zamindar, selling the tenure of a defaulting patnidar under the Regulation, had caused to be stuck up the requisite petition and notice at the Collector's cutchery, and the notice at the zamindar's cutchery, but not the copy or extract which is directed by the Regulation to be similarly published at the cutchery nor had published it at any other place upon the land of the defaulter :—Held, that the zamindar had not observed a substantial part of the prescribed process, and that this was for the defaulting patnidar "a sufficient plea" within the meaning of the Regulation. of notice of sale is not only to give notice of sale to the defaulter, but also to the under-tenants, and to advertise the sale on the spot for the information of intending purchasers. The object of the Regulation is to make known to the holders of under-tenures and raiyats and the residents of the place that the patni will be sold if the arrears are not paid off within the time specified, and if the notice is not stuck up in the cutchery, as prescribed by the Regulation, there is such a material irregularity in the publication as will avoid the sale. There being nothing in the receipt to show the date on which the notice was published, no injury to the plaintiff having been proved, and it appearing that more than the time prescribed by the Regulation had elapsed before the sale actually took place, the Court refused to set aside the sale. VIII of 1819, s. 8—Service and publication of notice of sale—Irregularities in preliminaries to sale—Petition for sale—Certificate of Munsif when service is sworn to before him—Form of notice of sale in mid-year sales for six months' arrears.* All the requirements in cl. 2, s. 8, of Regulation VIII of 1819, must be imported into cl. 3 of that section mutatis mutandis. Where, therefore, the zamindar is proceeding under cl. 3 to obtain a mid-year sale for six months' arrears of rent, the service of notice of sale is a condition precedent to the sale being held. Such notice must show, as provided by that clause, that the sale may be prevented by payment of the whole of the balance due, or of three-fourths of such balance. In such a case a notice which stated that the sale

would take place unless the whole of the balance was paid as if the zamindar was proceeding under cl. 2 for the whole year's arrears was held to be a bad notice and a non-compliance with a substantial requirement of the Regulation such as to justify the reversal of the sale. The publication of the petition to the Collector containing a specification of the balance of rent due, by sticking it up in some conspicuous part of the cutchery as required by cl. 2, s. 8, of the Regulation, is not a substantial portion of the process to be observed by the zamindar previous to a sale for arrears of rent; non-compliance with that provision therefore is not a ground for setting aside the sale. For the same reason, the non-presentation of the petition on the precise day (1st Kartick) specified in cl. 3, s. 8, affords no ground for setting aside the sale. The presentation of the petition on the 2nd Kartick when the 1st was a Sunday was held to be a sufficient compliance with the section. The words "certificate to which effect" in the portion of cl. 2, s. 8, relating to the procedure in case of refusal by the village people to attest the publication of the notice of sale, mean a certificate to the effect that the peon did come before the Munsif or police officer, as the case may be, and did make voluntary oath as to the service of the notice. Where the peon, after serving the notice, made an affidavit as to the mode of service, and took the affidavit before the Munsif to whom it was read and who then signed it, there was held to be a sufficient certificate to satisfy the requirements of the section. AHSANULLA KHAN BAHADOOR v. HURRI CHURN MOZOOMDAR I. L. R. 17 Calc. 474

Held, by the Privy Council affirming this decision:—The power of sale given to the zamindar by Regulation VIII of 1819, upon default in payment of the rent by a patnidar, is only exercisable subject to a condition as to notice to the defaulter. To bring to operation the provisions of cl. 3 of s. 8, relating to a mid-year sale, the serving a notice, according to that section, intimating to the patnidar that payment of three-fourths of the balance due will prevent a sale, is a condition precedent to the sale. A notice relating to a mid-year sale was held to be essentially defective, as it followed cl. 2 instead of cl. 3 of s. 8, and intimated that payment of the whole arrears would be the only way to stay the sale. This objection was taken for the first time in the Appellate Court. Held, that, as a defect fatal to the whole proceedings appeared in the notice, the objection was competently taken in that Court. Macnaghten v. *Mahabir Pershad Singh, I. The words in the section "the same shall then be stuck up in some conspicuous part of the cutchery" do not mean that it must be stuck up either immediately or before the service of the other notices referred in the section or at least before the 15th of Bysack. In such a suit, where there was no evidence one way or the other to show that the notice required by that sub-section to be stuck up in some conspicuous part of the Collector's cutchery had been published:—Held, that the plaintiff was entitled to a decree setting aside the sale. Where a notice of sale, instead of being stuck up and published in some conspicuous part of the Collector's cutchery as required by law, was, in accordance with the practice which prevailed during the incumbency of the Nazir of the Collector's cutchery at Birbhum and of his predecessors in office, kept by the Nazir with other petitions for sale and notices relating to them in a bundle, which was at night locked up for safe custody, and in the daytime kept in a conspicuous place near his seat at the entrance to the cutchery, any person who chose to ask for it or wished to see it being at liberty to inspect the whole bundle:—Held by PETHERAM, C.J., and GHOSE, J. (TOTTENHAM, J., dissenting), that this was not a publication

The property was held by three Hindu brothers in joint possession. The zamindar purchased it at the sale. At the instance of the zamindar, execution had been issued against only one of the brothers. Another of them, referring to this afterwards, disputed the validity of the sale, and claimed his one-third share, alleging, as the fact was, that the decrees had not, each and all of them, been against each and all of the three brothers, and that the sale was invalid. One at least of the three decrees was against the three brothers, who all understood that they were judgment-debtors under the decrees. They had been served with proper notices under Act VIII of 1865, and separate attachments of the land under each decree, and separate proclamations of sale thereunder, had been made. Held, that the sale was a valid one, and operated to transfer the tenure to the purchaser. when a bid was made for the first item, which was sufficient to satisfy the arrear. The bidder, however, paid only a small portion on account of his bid, and failed to pay the balance, and the item was subsequently put up for sale again, with others, and purchased by the landholder. A suit was then brought to set aside the sale, when it was contended that, inasmuch as a bid equal to the amount of the arrear had been made for a portion of the property, the claim of the landholder had been satisfied, under s. 33 of the Rent Recovery Act, although the whole amount bid had not in fact been paid; also that a subsequent sale of the rest of the tenant's property was illegal, and that the landholder's proper remedy lay in taking proceedings against the defaulting purchaser. Held, that the contention could not be upheld. 12. EFFECT OF SETTING ASIDE SALE.

1. ——— Recovery of purchase-money —Decree for purchase-money—Execution—Fresh suit—Interest on deposit. In a suit to set aside the sale of a patni tenure, where a purchaser is made a co-defendant under s. 14, Regulation VIII of 1819, and it is decreed that the purchaser may recover the purchase-money from the zamindar defendant:—Held, that the purchaser may proceed in execution without a fresh suit. If the purchase-money of a patni is in deposit in the Collectorate, and the zamindar, judgment-debtor, fails to assist the judgment-creditor in recovering his dues, he is liable for interest on the entire sum. PREOLALL GOSSAIN v. GYAN TURUNGINEE DOSSIA . 13 W. R. 161

2. ——— Sale where no patni tenure exists. Held, by JACKSON, J. (MOOKERJEE, J., dubitante), that a zamindar who puts up for sale a patni under Regulation VIII of 1819, guarantees to the purchaser that there are some lands appertaining to the patni, and if it turns out that there are no such lands (that there is in fact no such patni), the purchaser will be entitled to recover his purchase-money. 3. ——— Refund of bonus paid to purchaser on his purchase—Lease, construction of—Landlord and tenant—Failure of consideration—Sale subsequently set aside. The defendants, after purchasing a patni talukh at an auction sale for arrears of rent under Regulation VIII of 1819, granted a dar-patni lease to the plaintiffs (the former dar-patnidars) and received a bonus of R1,199. 4. ——— Indemnification for payments of rent while sale existed—Beng. Reg. VIII of 1819, s. 14, cl. 1. Where a zamindar sells a patni tenure for arrears of rent and the sale is afterwards set aside, the purchaser can, under Regulation VIII of 1819, s. 14, cl. 1, require the Court to compel the zamindar to indemnify him on account of all payments of rent which he may have made, and if he does not do so, he cannot set up his loss in answer to a liability which he has incurred. 5. ——— Position of holder of chahar-patni—Sale—Under-tenure—Purchaser, liability of. The holder of a chahar-patni, or other subordinate tenure, whose tenure has been brought to an end by the sale for arrears of rent, of a superior tenure on which his own was dependent, is, upon such sale being set aside, remitted to his previous position, and is entitled to recover possession of the land comprised in his chahar-patni from the purchaser or any assignee of the purchaser at such sale, and he can do so notwithstanding that he himself took a dar-patni, including the land he had held as chahar-patnidar, from the purchaser at such sale, and that this dar-patni was afterwards sold in execution of a decree against himself, and purchased at such last-mentioned sale by the person whom he seeks to evict on the strength of his original title. 6. ——— Order for refund of purchase-money—Beng. Reg. VIII of 1819—Notice of sale—Setting aside sale—Refund of purchase-money. If a patni is sold for arrears of rent without the notice required by Regulation VIII of 1819, the sale is informal and can be set aside, notwithstanding the bonâ fides of the purchaser. Where such a sale was so set aside and the lower Appellate Court refused to make an order for refund of the purchase-money, the High Court in special appeal, and with reference to s. 14, cl. 1, of the Regulation, declared the purchaser entitled to a refund with interest. 2. —— Arrears—Beng. Regs. XIV of 1793 and VII of 1799—Beng. Reg. V of 1812. By Regulations XIV of 1793 and VII of 1799 the Governor General in Council may order a sale for arrears of a monthly instalment of revenue before the close of the year : but in order to warrant that Act, there must be an arrear of a previous year or of a monthly instalment. The existence of a written engagement or kistbandi is not a condition precedent to the right to enforce the payment of the revenue by monthly instalments, provided the monthly instalments be fixed and determined. By Regulation V of 1812, if there be an arrear of the annual assessment, or of a fixed monthly kist or instalment of that assessment, unpaid on the first day of the following month, the Governor General in Council may order a sale, and the Board of Revenue may direct the whole estate of the defaulting zamindar to be sold. When the monthly instalments are fixed and determined, the Government does not forego the right of selling the zamindari on default being made in payment of these instalments, by taking a bond from sureties by which the estates of the sureties also were rendered liable for the payment. It was contended that the proprietor was entitled to make the payment on the 28th of March, which was fixed as the date for the last kist, and that the sale could not take place for default of payment on the 12th January. Held, that the plaintiff was not entitled to pay the whole demand of one year on the 28th of March, and the Revenue authorities had every right to sell the estate. 2. PROTECTED TENURES.

1. ——— Act XI of 1859, s. 37—Power of purchaser to avoid incumbrances—Right of occupancy. The title of a purchaser at a sale for arrears of Government revenue, to void an under-tenure and eject the tenant, will depend upon whether the tenure is protected under any of the clauses of s. 37 of Act XI of 1859, and whether the tenant has a right of occupancy. If the tenant can prove such a right, he cannot be objected under s. 37. SHEO PURSHUN SINGH v. RAJENDRO KISHORE SINGH 12 W. R. 123

2. ——— Right of transferee of purchaser at sale for arrears of revenue. The rights which are conferred upon a purchaser at a sale for arrears of revenue under Act XI of 1859, s. 37, are capable of being transferred to another person, if the transfer follows immediately upon the sale or within a reasonable time thereafter. KOYLASH CHUNDER DUTT v. JUBUR ALI . 22 W. R. 29

3. ——— Right of purchaser to avoid under-tenure. When a patni granted by a Hindu widow, though in appearance a duly registered tenure falling within the 3rd exception of s. 37, Act XI of 1859, was in reality a fraud which the owner or reversioner might have avoided:—Held, that a revenue sale passes the right of avoiding it to the auction-purchaser. 4. ——— Suit by purchaser to avoid under-tenure—Beng. Act VIII of 1865, s. 16—Resident and hereditary cultivator. A certain chur having been converted into two estates paying Government revenue, the plaintiffs became the purchasers of one of these estates at a sale for arrears of revenue and of a howla lease of the other at an auction-sale for arrears of rent, and brought a suit, in virtue of s. 37 of Act XI of 1859 and s. 16 of Bengal Act VIII of 1865, to avoid the tenures of the defendants, who held, in shikmi talukhdari and howladari tenure, lands appertaining to both estates. The defendants admitted the alleged nature of their holdings, but claimed exemption from eviction on the ground that their ancestoi, more than twelve years before, had cleared and cultivated the land and built a house thereon, and that since his death they themselves had continued to cultivate the land and reside upon it. The lower Courts having found that the defendants were hereditary and resident cultivators, it was held that the defendants were entitled to the benefit of the proviso in s. 16 of Bengal Act VIII of 1865, the words of that proviso being wide enough to embrace every resident and hereditary cultivator irrespective of his denomination. In a suit after notice to quit to eject the defendant, and obtain possession of the land, or to have the defendant's tenure annulled:—Held, that the defendant's tenure was not protected as being one of "lands whereon plantations have been made" within the meaning of s. 52 of Act XI of 1859. from the operation of s. 37 of Act XI of 1859 by any of the first three exceptions is yet entitled to the benefit of the 4th exception in respect of any of the items mentioned therein which may have been established on the land ; and there is nothing in the words of the exception confining the benefit of it to tenure or under-tenure-holders, and excluding the raiyats from it. Bhago Bibee v. Ramkant Roy Chowdhry, I. L. R. 3 Calc. 293, followed. The benefit of the 4th exception to s. 37, Act XI of 1859, must be limited to improvements effected bonâ fide and to permanent buildings erected before the revenue sales, and should not be conceded to anything subsequently constructed, or which appears to have been constructed merely for the purpose of defeating the rights of an auction-purchaser. Subject to this reservation, it does not matter whether the improvements have been effected by the present holder or by some previous occupier. AJGUR ALI v. ASMUT ALI

11. ——— Lease of tank without surrounding land.—A lease of tank without any portion of the surrounding land is not protected under cl. 4, s. 37, of Act XI of 1859, as it is not, within the meaning of that clause, a lease of land whereon a tank had been excavated. Ajgur Ali v. *Asmut Ali, I. 12. ——— Ejectment—Dwelling-house, tanks, and trees. The plaintiffs, purchasers at a revenue sale, sought to eject the defendant from a piece of land measuring a little over one bigha. The defendant pleaded that he had his dwelling-houses, tank, and trees on the holding. It was found that the dwelling-houses consisted of certain huts, and that the so-called tank was some two or three cubits in extent. As to the trees, there was no finding that there was anything in the shape of a plantation or garden. Held, that a dwelling-house, to be exempted under s. 37 of Act XI of 1859, must be a dwelling-house of a permanent character, and mere huts would not come within that description. That upon the findings no cause had been made out for exemption of any portion of the land. MAKAR ALI v. SHYAMA CHARAN DAS

4. ——— Act XI of 1859, s. 11—Separation of shares. The proprietors of a certain lot having obtained a separation of their shares under s. 11 of Act XI of 1859, there remained one share (comprising one village and one-third of three other villages) which was sold for arrears of revenue, and purchased by W. Of this share W sold one village to P, who agreed to pay a certain sum as his share of the Government jumma, and then applied to the Collector to open a separate account at the rate which had ben agreed upon. The shareholders having objected, the Collector referred the parties to the Civil Court under s. 12. P then brought a suit in the Civil Court for a separate account. Held, that there was no legal objection to plaintiff having his separate share opened at the rate he mentioned, even if the jumma on the share which remained in W's possession was excessive ; for if the whole estate were put up to sale for arrears on account of that remaining share, the other shareholders could always protect themselves by paying the sum due. Where there is no evidence, direct or otherwise, on which the relation of cause and effect between a material irregularity and an inadequacy of price coud be held to be established, it cannot, under the provisions of s. 33 of Act XI of 1859, be inferred that the one was due to the other. Per RAMPINI, J.—Semble: Such relation must be proved by direct evidence. Macnaghten v. *Mahabir Pershad Singh, I. 10. ——— Right to cancel talukhdari tenure—Settlement—Right to eject. The Government purchased the zamindari rights in a pergunnah, under Regulation XI of 1822 at a sale for arrears of Government revenue, and re-settled one of the talukhs in the pergunnah (which talukh had been created subsequently to the decennial settlement) with the plaintiffs as talukhdars. Subsequently and after the terms for which they had re-settled with the plaintiffs had expired, the Government sold their zamindari rights to the defendant, who ejected the plaintiffs. In a suit to recover possession,—Held, that it was the intention of Government to retain talukhdars in possession of their lands during the subsistence of their tenures subject to the condition of having their rents enhanced according to the pergunnah rates; and as in this case the proceedings which were taken by the Government showed that they did not cancel the plaintiffs' tenure, the defendant who purchased from the Government could not eject the plaintiffs, who were entitled to retain possession, subject to a liability to enhancement. Under the sale law as it existed before 1822, a talukhdar could not be dispossessed at the will of the purchaser; he was at most liable to pay the full pergunnah rate, and could only be ejected after refusal to pay the enhanced rate; but under Regulation XI of 1822, dependent talukhs created subsequent to the decennial settlement were liable to be wholly avoided and annulled at the option of the purchaser at a sale for arrears of Government revenue, unless they fell within the class contemplated by the 32nd section of that Regulation. Where an auction-purchaser, under Regulation XI of 1822, intends to cancel a talukhdari tenure (a power which he might or might not exercise), he must take some clear step to declare the avoidance or cancellation of the tenure. take some clear steps for the purpose of declaring the avoidance or cancellation of the tenure, and, finding that the Government had not exercised that power, declared the under-tenant entitled to retain possession of his land during the subsistence of his tenure:—Held, that the decision did not apply to a case in which the proceedings of Government showed that it had exercised the power of cancellation. Held, also, that the indulgence in that case referred mainly to tenures purchased between 1817 and 1822, but not to tenures created after Regulation XI of 1822 had informed persons that their rights were liable to be cancelled by a purchaser at an auction-sale for arrears of revenue. 15. ——— Right of ejectment—Beng. Reg. XI of 1822—Under-tenures—Right to impeach sale. The right to impeach a sale of lands for arrears of Government revenue extends not only to the defaulting proprietor, but to derivative holders under him. By Bengal Regulation XI of 1822, s. 30, all under-leases are extinguished by a Government sale of the proprietor's lands for arrears of revenue, and an auction-purchaser takes the lands clear of all under-tenures. At a sale by Government for arrears of revenue, the Government became purchasers, and afterwards granted a lease of the lands for a term of years, and put their leases into possession. At the time of the sale the lands were subject to an istemrari lease. No suit was brought to reverse the sale, but the Government some time afterwards, in consequence of doubts as to the legality of the sale, offered to give up their rights under the sale, and to restore the lands to the original proprietors, subject to the recognition of the claims of their lessees. This offer resulted in an arrangement between the Government, the original proprietors, and the Government lessees, and eventually the original proprietors upheld the lease to the Government lessees to a part of the lands called the Jungle Mehal for a term of years at a reduced rent. In a suit by the istemrari lessee for possession:—Held (reversing the decree of the Sudder Court), that by Bengal Regulation XI of 1822, s. 30, the istemrari lease was determined by the sale for Government arrears, and that the arrangement by which the lands were restored to the proprietors, subject to the rights of the Government lessees, was in the nature of a compromise, and not such an unconditional restoration as amounted to a reversal of the sale, and the consequent revival of the istemrari lease. Aliter: If a suit had been brought and a decree made for reversal of the sale. payable by all the proprietors, the defendants among them, was to be paid through the principal proprietor, and that the defendants were to hold perpetual possession as shikmidars, and that their rights should be reserved intact. Held, that the possession of the defendants as lakhirajdars could not be disturbed as long as they paid the revenue assessed upon them under the settlement. Held, also (MARKBY, J., dissentiente), that cl. 8, s. 10, Regulation VII of 1822, applied only to cases referred to in cl. 7,— that is, of cultivating proprietors on pattidari or bhyachari tenure, or the like, and not to a case of this kind. Affirmed on review, where it was held that a Commissioner's amulnama cannot destroy legal rights, even if no protest or objection be made. The order of a Commissioner requiring proprietors having separate jummas, to pay, for the convenience of the Collector, their shares of revenue through one of their number, cannot override their legal right of separate proprietorship allowed under the settlement law and preserved by express record, or transform such right into a joint tenancy. Where therefore such order had been made, and the defendants paid the revenue through one of their number and he made default :—Held, that the whole estate was not liable to be sold for his default. 17. ——— Right to annul incumbrances—Encroachments by neighbouring estates. The principle under which purchasers of estates at revenue sales acquire such estates in the condition they were in at the permanent settlement, is equally recognized by the sale law (Act XI of 1859) as by the laws previous to it, and applies as much to actual encroachments on the talukh or estates by neighbours as to incumbrances or under-tenures created on it by the old proprietor or by his laches. 18. ——— Permanently-settled estate. An auction-purchaser at a revenue sale of a permanently-settled estate is remitted to all the rights possessed by the original settler at the date of the settlement. In order to abolish tenures and incumbrances subsequently created, his cause of action dates from his purchase. The existence of such tenures at the date of the permanent settlement must be proved by their holders, the presumption in favour of a purchaser resting upon the principle that every bigha of land sold must contribute to the public revenue unless specially exempted. The tendency of recent legislation and decision has been to give force to the contrary presumptions arising from long and undisturbed possession. FORBES v. MAHOMED HOSEIN 12 B. L. R. P. 19. ——— Suit to annul under-tenures—Right to eject. When an auction-purchaser at a sale for arrears of revenue creates a patni, he cannot sue to annul an under-tenure within that patni, as his whole power under Act XI of 1859 passes to the patnidar, who alone can institute such a suit. In such a case the patnidar's competency to sue is not affected by the fact of his being a tenant of only a portion of the estate, provided that portion contains the tenure which is sought to be resumed. A patnidar, under such circumstances, though he may recover rent, is not entitled to eject an under-tenant who had been allowed to dig a tank and remain in possession undisturbed by the former proprietor for a long period (say upwards of thirty years), and who must therefore be assumed to have held with the acquiescence of the former proprietor, such acquiescence being equivalent to a lease. 20. ——— Land subject to mortgage. Where land in the possession of a mortgagee is sold by the mamlatdars for arrears of Government land revenue :—Held, that, as the land revenue is the paramount charge on the land, whoever derives title from the occupant takes it subject to that charge ; and that therefore the purchaser at the sale was entitled to the land free from any mortgage lien. The zamindar fell into arrears, and the zamindari was sold. Subsequently, three persons, who had become owners of the zamindari, applied to the Collector under s. 11, Act XI of 1859, and the Collector opened separate accounts with each of them for the revenue of their respective shares. The revenue due from one of them fell into arrears, and his share, which included the 441 bighas, was sold under s. 13, and purchased by the plaintiff, who now sued the descendants of A to recover possession. Held, that a sale of a share of a zamindari under s. 13, Act XI of 1859, does not convey to the purchaser the share free from all incumbrances created by the former zamindar, but he acquires the share, as laid down in s. 54, subject to all incumbrances. 24. ——— Act XI of 1859, s. 37—Suit to cancel under-tenures—Right of purchasers. On the 13th January 1871 A and B purchased an estate sold for arrears of Government revenue. The original proprietors asserted their right to collect the rents of a portion of the property by virtue of holding two shikmi talukhs and a howla tenure. This right was affirmed by the High Court in April 1875. B had previously sold his interest to C. On the 29th May 1876 A created a patni of his 8 annas in favour of D and E, and on the 4th July 1876 C purchased all the rights of the original proprietor. On the 18th January 1877 A sued under Act XI of 1859, s. 37, to cancel or vary the tenures, making the original proprietors, C and various tenants, defendants. C objected that A had no right of suit or cause of action, as he had parted with all his rights to D and E, and that, as his entire interest, in the estate was only 8 annas, he could not sue to cancel a part only of the sub-tenures. D and E then applied to be made parties. Held they could not sue, as they were not purchasers of an entire estate within s. 37, Act XI of 1859. Even on the assumption that D and E were properly made plaintiffs, the lower Appellate Court should have taken into consideration certain admissions made by them as to the existence of the under-tenure, both before and after the Government sale. Sreemunt Ram Roy v. Kookoor Chand, 15 W. Act VII of 1868. The plaintiff was the auction-purchaser at the sale under Act XI of 1859 by the Collector of the 24-Pergunnahs for arrears of revenue of the estate in the Sunderbunds on which the defendant was the holder of mokurari maurasi jungleburi tenure, under which he was to clear away the jungle and then to cultivate the land with paddy. The estate was one borne on the register of revenue-paying estates in the Collectorate of the 24-Pergunnahs, and therefore within that Collectorate with regard to the provisions of Bengal Act VII of 1868, s. 10. The district of the 24-Pergunnahs is a permanently-settled district, but the portion of it forming the Sunderbunds was declared by Regulation III of 1828, s. 13, not to be included in the permanent settlement. The Sunderbunds tract was, moreover, under Reg. IX of 1816, formed into a separate jurisdiction for settlement purposes under an officer styled the Commissioner of the Sunderbunds, who is subject to the direct control of the Board of Revenue, and independent of the Collector of the 24-Pergunnahs. In a suit after notice to quit to eject the defendant, and obtain possession of the land, or to have the defendant's tenure annulled:—Held, that, whether the term "district" was used with reference to the jurisdiction of the Civil Courts or the Revenue Collector, the plaintiff was the purchaser of an estate in a "permanently-settled district" within the meaning of s. 37 of Act XI of 1859, and not in a district "not permanently-settled" within s. 52 of that Act; and he was therefore entitled to eject the defendant. The position of the estate within the district of the 24-Pergunnahs was not affected by the appointment of the Commissioner of the Sunderbunds as an officer specially invested with the powers of the Collector within a certain portion of that district. Held, also, that the defendant's tenure was not protected as being one of "lands whereon plantations have been made" within the meaning of s. 52 of Act XI of 1859. Held, further, that, though there was no permanent settlement of the lands sold to the plaintiff, they fell within the definition of an "estate" as given in Bengal Act VIII of 1868. 27. ——— Act XI of 1859, ss. 37 and 53—Adverse possession—Limitation. The plaintiff had been proprietor of an estate which was sold for arrears of Government revenue and repurchased from the then purchaser by the plaintiff in 1886. He applied under Ch. X of the Bengal Tenancy Act for the measurement of the estate and the preparation of a record-of-rights, and the Revenue Officer deputed for these purposes found that a portion of the estate held by the defendant was mâl land, though it was held as lakhiraj under certain sanads, and as he also found that no rent had ever been paid for it, it was entered on the record-of-rights as mâl land held under those sanads as lakhiraj. The Special Judge on appeal by the plaintiff held that the land having been found to be mâl should have been entered as mâl land unassessed with rent. In a suit to have the land assessed with rent, it was found that the sanads, under which the defendant claimed to hold, were granted not by any predecessor in title of the plaintiff, and were of a date anterior to the Permanent Settlement. Held, that the adverse possession set up by the defendant was within the meaning of s. 53 of Act XI of 1859, an incumbrance subject to which the plaintiff, as a proprietor whose estate had been sold, took it on repurchase. If such adverse possession therefore were sufficiently long, the suit would be barred by limitation. The plaintiff could not be regarded as a person who had acquired the estate "free from all incumbrances which may have been imposed upon it after settlement" as provided by s. 37 of Act XI of 1859, and could not therefore claim (as held by the lower Appellate Court) that his suit was not barred, having been brought within twelve years from the date of the sale for arrears of revenue. The case was remanded for findings whether the land was mâl or lakhiraj, and whether the defendant's adverse possession was long enough to bar the suit. KARMI KHAN v. BROJO NATH DAS

The words "time of settlement" in that section mean the time when the contract was made with Government, and in the case of a permanently-settled estate mean the time of permanent settlement. Under the former section, the terms of the certificate given under Sch. A are limited, and a purchaser under that section acquires the estate subject to all incumbrances existing at the time of sale, whether created before or after the default, and even up to the date of the sale; but there is no such limitation to the terms of a certificate given to a purchaser under s. 54, and all incumbrances created after the date on which a purchase under that section takes effect, that is, after the date on which the default was committed are void. A share of a talukh admitted to special registration, under ss. 10 and 11 of Act XI of 1859, was advertised for sale under that Act in default of payment of the June kist of Government revenue. On the 25th July the recorded sharer mortgaged his interest in that share to the plaintiff. The sale took place on the 26th September, and the share was purchased by the defendant who obtained a sale certificate in due form under the Act declaring, in accordance with s. 28, that his title accrued from the 29th June, the day after the latest date allowed for payment of the June kist. Held, that the mortgage was of no effect as an incumbrance under s. 54 of the Act. February 1896, purchased an estate sold in execution of a decree of the Civil Court against the then proprietors. He obtained his sale certificate on 21st March and was put into possession on 29th April 1896. Default occurred on 12th January 1896 in payment of the Government revenue on the estate which on 25th March 1896 was sold under Act XI of 1859 for arrears of revenue and purchased by the respondent. Held, that at the time of his purchase at the revenue sale the respondent was a proprietor of the estate within the meaning of s. 53 of Act XI of 1859, and therefore took it subject to the incumbrances existing on it at the time of sale. Neither the fact that the sale by the Civil Court was subsequent in date to the default for arrears of revenue nor the further circumstance that under the revenue sale certificate the purchase related back beyond the actual date of the sale and took effect from the 13th January 1896, altered the ownership of the estate nor made the respondent any the less a proprietor. Where "sale" or "purchase" is spoken of in Act XI of 1859 in connection with time, the time meant is that at which the sale actually takes place and not that to which its operation is carried back by relation. S. 53 of the Act is a proviso to, or qualification of, s. 37. There is no implied limitation in s. 53, which restricts its operation to defaulting proprietors. Abdool Bari v. *Ramdass Coondoo, I. The purchaser's representatives sued to enhance the rent of the under-tenure. Held, that they had no right to enhance. The rights of the purchaser were defined by ss. 30 and 33 of Regulation XI of 1822, which were repealed by Act XII of 1841, and that Act, with the exception of the 1st and 2nd sections, was again repealed by Act I of 1845. Neither of the two last-mentioned statutes contains any saving of rights acquired under the statutes which it repealed, but expressly limited the enlarged powers which it gave to purchasers at sales for revenue arrears to purchasers at future sales. A sale for arrears of revenue cannot of itself merely, and without any act, proceeding, or demonstration of will on the part of the purchaser, alter the character of an under-tenure. Semble: S. 5, Regulation XLIV of 1793, is now of no force for any purpose but that of declaring the general principles upon which all the subsequent legislation has proceeded, viz., that of putting a purchaser at a sale for arrears of revenue in the position of a party with whom the perpetual settlement of the estate was made. Where an under-tenure existed at the time of the decennial settlement, the only right which the zamindar could exercise over it was that conferred by s. 51

Defendant denied having received any contribution or consideration money from the plaintiff, though admitting execution of the ikrarnamah. Held, that no separate title was given to the plaintiff by the ikrarnamah, and that the suit was substantially one to oust a certified purchaser on the ground that part of the purchase was made on behalf of another person, and the suit was therefore barred by s. 36 of Act XI of 1859. Held, also, that there is nothing in Act XI of 1859 which makes it illegal for a former proprietor or co-sharer to be a purchaser of his estate at a sale for arrears due on that estate. 7. ——— Sale afterwards set aside—Payment by purchaser made pending proceedings to set aside sale to save estate from further sale. Plaintiff, the inchoate owner of an estate purchased by him at a sale in execution of a decree against it, was held justified, whilst the proceedings with regard to the validity of the sale were pending, in preserving the estate from sale to another, whether for arrears of Government revenue or for the amount of a decree for which the estate had been attached, and when the sale to him was set aside and restored to A, entitled to be repaid any amounts bonâ fide paid by him for the preservation of the estate. If A made any arrangement with mokuraridars by which the latter stipulated to pay the Government revenue for him, plaintiff could not recover from the mokuraridars, there being no privity between him and them. His remedy was against A, who again had his remedy against the mokuraridars. HOSSEIN BUKSH KHAN v. ROY DHUNPUT SINGH 18 W. R. 289

8. ——— Liability of estate held by Hindu widow for debt incurred to person making payment to protect tenure—Act I of 1845, s. 9. An estate mortgaged was about to be sold for arrears of Government revenue, when it was saved from sale by the mortgagee depositing a sum sufficient to discharge the revenue. The mortgagee brought a suit against the person in possession of the talukh, the Hindu widow of the original mortgagor, seeking, under s. 9, Act I of 1845, to obtain repayment from her personally of the money paid to save the sale of the talukh, not making the reversioners defendants, and not praying that the talukh in its entirety might be sold to pay the amount due. A decree was given in that suit to the mortgagee, and on execution of that decree the reversioners intervened. Held, that the mortgagee and those claiming under him had no charge on the estate, and were not entitled to have it sold in its entirety to pay the amount which was paid in to stop the sale of the estate. The auction brought under s. 9, Act I of 1845, was only a personal action, and the decree gave no remedy against the land, the sale of which for arrears of revenue had been stopped by the deposit. In such a suit the question is not whether the person who pays the arrears acquires thereby a charge on the talukh which he saves from sale, but whether he seeks to enforce that right: he must do so in a suit properly framed for that purpose and not merely in a suit which is confined to a personal remedy against the person in possession of the talukh. If the person who so pays the arrears of rent seeks repayment only, under the section and law cited, as against the person in possession of the talukh, who has only a limited interest therein, and confines his suit to that object, the decree so obtained against the person in possession can only be made effectual against the property of that person, including such interest as he had in the talukh. This ruling does not affect the general doctrine that, in a suit brought by a third person the object of which is to recover, or to charge an estate of which a Hindu widow is the proprietress, she will, as defendant, represent and protect the estate, as well in respect of her own as of the reversionary interest. 9. ——— Payment by patnidar to save tenure from sale—Mistake in Collectorate in crediting payment as deposit. The payment of revenue into the Collectorate by a patnidar to save the estate from sale is equivalent to payment of the patni rents to the zamindar. The fact that the zamindar had himself paid money into the Collectorate which he intended as revenue, but which by mistake was credited to a deposit account, and for which he took a receipt showing that the money was received as a deposit, and not as a payment of revenue, does not render the patnidar liable. 14. ——— Right to contribution where part-owner pays revenue due on whole estate to save his own interests—Madras Revenue Recovery Act, s. 35—Contract Act, ss. 69, 70. In 1881, while the pottah of certain land held on raiyatwari tenure stood in the name of defendant No. 1, the real owner being defendant No. 2, the revenue fell into arrear. Subsequently plaintiff and defendant No. 3 each bought a portion of the land, and defendant No. 3 sold his portion to defendant No. 4. After this, the land in plaintiff's possession was attached for the said arrears of revenue and plaintiff paid the whole amount to prevent a sale. Plaintiff sued to recover from defendants 1 to 4 a portion of the arrears paid by him. He also prayed that the land in the possession of defendant No. 4 might be held liable. The claim was decreed, but on appeal by defendants 3 and 4 the suit was dismissed as against them. Plaintiff appealed, making defendant No. 4 alone respondent. Held, that plaintiff was entitled to a decree for contribution against defendant No. 4 and to a charge on the land in his possession. Having sued the executants of the mortgage and obtained a decree in 1885, he, in 1887 and 1888, paid certain arrears of revenue due, from the village, in order to prevent its sale. In 1888 the plaintiff's 38⅛th pangus were sold in execution of the decree of 1885 to the 85th defendant, subject to a charge for the amount of the revenue arrears paid by the plaintiff. In 1890 the plaintiff instituted the present suit to recover from the entire village and from the defendants Nos. 1 to 84 personally the amount of these arrears. Held, that the 85th defendant, as also the 38⅛th shares purchased by him, were liable for the debt conjointly with the remaining shares and the other defendants, the plaintiff having by payment of the arrears acquired a charge upon the land under s. 35 of the Revenue Recovery Act that not only registered proprietors, but real owners and their holdings, may be treated as defaulters within the meaning of s. 35 of that Act. Seshagiri v. *Pichu, I. 3. ——— Suit for sale-proceeds by mortgagee—Omission to give notice of charge on estate sold. A purchased certain villages in the name of his son B. A, being indebted to C, executed a mortgage-bond and deposited the title-deeds of those villages with C as security for the debt. C afterwards sued A for recovery of the mortgage-debt, and ultimately obtained a decree in his favour. Pending this suit, A died and was succeeded by B, his heir, against whom the suit was revived. B became a defaulter to Government, when the Government authorities seized the village and took steps for bringing them to sale to satisfy the Government demands. C informed the Government officer of his claim, and petitioned to have the sale stayed, but the Collector sold the villages as the property of B, suppressing the notice of the equitable charge of C upon the villages. C then sued B, the Collector, and the auction-purchasers, claiming to be entitled to the sale-proceeds of the villages in the hands of the Government in satisfaction of his mortgage-debt. The Sudder Dewany Court dismissed the plaintiff's claim, on the ground that the decree made in the suit against A was against the effects of A, and only applied to such property as B was in possession of at that time ; and that, as it had been sold to realize the demands of Government, the decree did not apply to the villages. This decision was reversed on appeal, the Judicial Committee holding, first, that the suit was properly instituted for recovery of the sale-proceeds in possession of Government, as the decree obtained by C against B operated as a conversion of the estate of A, making it assets in B's hands, which C had a right to follow ; secondly, that as the Government had notice of C's equitable charge upon the villages, and suppressed that fact at the auction-sale to the purchasers, there was a clear equity in C to call upon the Government for payment out of the auction-proceeds received by them, and an account was directed of the amount received by the Collector from the sale of the villages with interest, so far as the amount received would extend to the payment of C's mortgage-debt. Semble : Where property is sold by Government for general debts and not for arrears of revenue, they sell only the interest of the debtor, and do not guarantee the vendor a title. in which case the Commissioner can set it aside on a petition of appeal presented to him within fifteen days of the sale. The petition may disclose a case of hardship or injustice where irregularity does not exist, as, for instance, that the sale has taken place where no arrear is due, and under such circumstances the Government, under s. 26, may set aside the sale. If the Commissioner will not interfere, the party aggrieved may, within one year of the sale becoming conclusive (s. 27), bring an action in the Civil Court under s. 33, and the Court may set aside the sale on proof of irregularity and substantial injury caused thereby. If no irregularity producing substantial injury is proved, the Civil Court cannot entertain an action to set aside a sale for arrears, and the only course open to an injured party is by a suit for damages as provided for in s. 33. V of 1804, s. 20. The sale was subsequently cancelled; and further arrears having accrued, the mitta was attached again. Before the second attachment took place, the guardian died, and no one having been appointed to succeed him, though an application was made to the Court for that purpose, a written demand under Revenue Recovery Act, s. 25, was tendered to the plaintiff's mother and affixed to the wall of the house on 17th January, and notice under s. 17 was served on 17th February. The sale took place in September, and defendant No. 2 became the purchaser. It was admitted that a division of the village was impracticable. In a suit by the plaintiffs by their mother and next friend to set aside the sale:—Held, since service of a demand upon the defaulter is an essential preliminary to sale, that the sale was invalid so far as the share of the plaintiffs was concerned, and the sale as a whole was vitiated by the irregularity. of the Act, issued a notification on the 26th May, postponing the sale till the 2nd June. On that day the sale was held, and the Commissioner having upheld it on appeal, a certificate of title was given to the purchasers. Held, in a suit to set aside the sale, that, inasmuch as the notification under s. 6 of the Act had not been affixed thirty days before the day fixed by it for holding the same, the requirements of that section had not been fulfilled, and the irregularity was not cured by the notification of the 26th May. Held, further, that the Court was not bound, under s. 8 of Bengal Act VII of 1868, to presume conclusively that the provisions of s. 6 of Act XI of 1859, as regards the fixing of the date of sale, had been complied with. Under s. 8 of Bengal Act VII of 1868, the effect of a certificate of title having been given to the purchaser is merely that the Court is bound to presume conclusively the due service and posting of notices. Act II of 1864), ss. 38, 59—Sale for arrears of peishcush—Material irregularity or mistake in conduct of sale—Grounds for setting sale aside—Posting notice of sale in Collector's office—Jurisdiction of Civil Courts.* A person whose application that a sale of land may be set aside under s. 38 of the Revenue Recovery Act II of 1864 (Madras) is refused by a Collector is a person aggrieved within the meaning of s. 59 of that Act, and is entitled to seek redress in a Civil Court; and a Civil Court has jurisdiction to entertain such a suit and may set aside such a sale. When a party seeks to set aside a sale in a Civil Court on the ground of material irregularity or mistake in the conduct of the sale, he must establish, as in proceedings under s. 38, that substantial injury has been caused by such irregularity or mistake. A Civil Court cannot cancel the sale unless such substantial injury has been established. The words "except as otherwise is hereinafter provided," which occur in cl. (1) of s. 38, refer to the action which the Collector is empowered to take suo motu, under cl. (3) of the same section, and have no relation to the remedy provided by s. 59. Direct evidence is not necessary to connect inadequacy of price realized with a material irregularity, where the latter has been proved: and the relation of cause and effect between the two may be inferred where such inference is reasonable. But where the only irregularity shown was an omission to display the notice of sale in the Collector's office, and there was no evidence to show that this affected the attendance of buyers at a place many miles distant where the sale actually took place, the inadequacy of price being susceptible of other explanations:—Held, that it was not shown that the irregularity referred to had caused substantial loss, and that there was therefore no ground for setting the sale aside. 16. ——— Act XI of 1859, s. 5—Attachment by order of Civil Court—Latest day of payment, attachment subsequent to. In a suit to set aside the sale of an estate for arrears of revenue, one of the grounds taken by the plaintiff was that the estate, which was under attachment by an order of the Civil Court at the time of the sale, was sold without due observance of the formalities prescribed by s. 5, Act XI of 1859. The date fixed for payment of the arrears for which the estate was sold was the 7th June 1890. The date of attachment was 2nd August following. Held, that s. 5 of Act XI of 1859 provides for cases in which the attachment has been made at least fifteen days before the last date of payment for which it is sought to bring the estate to sale. That section would not therefore apply to a case like the present in which the attachment was after the last day of payment and after the estate had become liable to sale for arrears of Government revenue. Bunwari Lall Sahu v. *Mohabir Pershad Singh, 12 B. set aside a sale for arrears of Government revenue held on the 26th March 1879, it was alleged as grounds for setting the sale aside (i) that the arrears had been paid into the Collector's treasury on the previous day and a receipt granted for them, and that, according to the custom which had prevailed in the Collectorate of the district on payment of arrears being so made, the property had always been exempted from sale ; (ii) that the notices issued under ss. 6 and 7 of Act XI of 1859 were not served according to law ; and (iii) that the purchaser at the sale had dissuaded other persons from bidding as alleged. Held, that the sale was valid, as no order had been made by the Collector in writing exempting the property from sale under s. 18 of Act XI of 1859, mere payment of arrears into the treasury without an order under s. 18 not having in itself the effect of exempting the property from sale. Held also, that the object of the notification under s. 7 of Act XI of 1859 being to give notice to the raiyats not to pay rent to defaulting zamindars, non-service of such notification could not be a ground for invalidating the title of the auction-purchaser ; and that, inasmuch as the irregularity in the service of notice under s. 6 of Act XI of 1859 was not taken in the grounds of an appeal which had been presented to the Commissioner, it could not be urged in a regular suit as a ground for setting aside the sale. Held, further, that it was no fraud for persons at a sale for arrears of revenue to combine not to bid against each other. plain implication forbids, the sale of any estate which is not at the time in arrear of such payment. The whole clauses, in so far as they relate to sales, or to their challenge as well as the provisions of Bengal Act VII of 1868, are framed upon the express footing that they are to be applicable to the sale of estates which are in arrear of duty. A Collector had sold an estate, purporting to act under Act XI of 1859 for a supposed arrear of revenue. There was, however, only an erroneous debit in the Collectorate books against the estate in excess of the revenue actually assessed upon it, chargeable against it, and due from it. Held, that the sale was without authority; that the Civil Court had jurisdiction to declare the sale void and that the provisions of s. 33 of Act XI of 1859, relating to an appeal to the Commissioner of Revenue, did not exclude that jurisdiction. The enactment in s. 8 had no application to such a case. This was not a question about a transfer from the account of one revenue-paying estate to that of another, nor was it a claim for remission or abatement, which had not been duly allowed by the Government. S. 8 has no application, except there be (i) default in payment of the revenue, and (ii) possession by the Collector of money of the defaulter not indisputably placed to his credit. But here there was no default. All moneys paid by the appellants were credited, and their alleged default was based upon erroneous debit entries to which they were not parties. 34. ———— Act XI of 1859, s. 5—Act XI of 1838—Suit to set aside sale—Costs of partition—Sanction of Board of Revenue—Beng. Reg. XIX of 1814. On 12th June 1867 some of the proprietors of an estate applied to the Collector for a partition under Regulation XIX of 1814. On the same day the Collector issued a notice to all the shareholders, including the plaintiffs in this suit, calling upon them to come in within one month and show such cause and offer such objections, etc., as they should think fit. It did not appear that the plaintiffs did come in or did anything upon this. Similar applications were made by other shareholders. On the 19th August 1867 the Collector drew out a tabular statement purporting to be in pursuance of s. 4, Regulation XIX of 1814. In it was a column giving the shares into which the expenses of the partition were to be divided. On the same day a notice was issued to the proprietors, ordering in them to pay their respective quotas of the expenses accordingly. It was said by the defendants that the apportionment was confirmed by the Commissioner on the 20th January 1868. On the 6th March 1868 it was ordered by the Collector that a proclamation should be issued in accordance with paragraph 4 of s. 5 of Act XI of 1859, directing the plaintiffs, as defaulters in two sums of R252-3-2 and R9-9-6, to pay the Government revenue. On the 28th March such proclamation was issued accordingly. Subsequently one of the plaintiffs came in, and offered to pay all that was then due and outstanding. His application was rejected, and on the same day, the 8th April, the sale proceeded, and the whole interest of the plaintiffs was sold for R16,900. The plaintiffs appealed to the Commissioner, but their appeal was dismissed. The plaintiffs therefore brought a suit against the purchasers and the Collector for the recovery of the property and for cancelment of the sale. Held, that the sale was void. There was no arrear of Government revenue justifying a sale under Acts XI of 1838 and XI of 1859, s. 5. There could be no arrear until demand after sanction by the Board of Revenue and by the Lieutenant-Governor of the estimate of expenses prepared by the Collector and fixed by the Commissioner. The Board must give its sanction in each case, and the defendants failed to show that it had done so. But even if the Commissioner had power finally to determine the amount and date of payment, it was not shown that he had done so, or, supposing that he had, that any fresh demand had been made upon the parties liable. —Accounts—Costs. The sale by a Collector of a whole talukh in one lot for arrears of revenue without specific authority previously conferred by the Board of Revenue, was held to be an act unauthorized by the general rules and principles of the regulations, and not rendered valid by the subsequent authorized confirmation of it by the Board, and by the appropriation of the surplus proceeds of the money by the defaulting proprietor. The proprietor's acquiescence in a sale made, as he believed, by the authority of the Board of Revenue did not give legal efficacy to a sale altogether void for the want of such authority, or bar his claim to annul the sale on that ground. The Courts below, without entering into any investigation of the profits made by the purchaser during his occupation of the estate, assumed that he had reimbursed himself the amount of the purchase-money and interest out of the profits of the estate. The Privy Council, however, saw no ground for such an assumption, and directed that an account should be taken of the principal and interest due to the purchaser in respect of the purchase-money paid by him, and also of the net profits made by him, out of the estate during his occupation; and that on payment to him of whatever may appear due to him on taking such account possession of the talukh should be delivered to the proprietor. The Privy Council, further, acquitting the purchaser of all blame in the transaction, reversed so much of the decrees of the Courts below as condemned him in costs, and ordered each party to bear his own costs in all the Courts. Act IX of 1880)—Omission to specify ground of objection in revenue appeal.* An estate sold for arrears of revenue had been previously brought to a judicial sale by a mortgagee, whose charge preceded that of a puisne incumbrancer, whom the present plaintiffs represented. It was not the consequence of the execution-sale that puisne incumbrancers, who were not parties to the prior mortgagee's suit, were displaced, or left with nothing but a claim against the surplus proceeds of the sale, if any; and on the facts, the present plaintiffs had a mortgagee's interest in the estate sold by the Collector entitling them to sue to have the sale for default in payment of revenue set aside, as contrary to Act XI of 1859. A sale for arrears of revenue if for arrears which have accrued while the land has been subject to an order issued by the Collector under the Cess Act (Bengal Act IX of 1880), for the levy of road cess in arrear, is contrary to s. 17 of Act XI of 1859, such an order being an attachment within the meaning of that section. But under s. 33 of that Act, in every case where a sale for arrears of revenue is impeached, as being contrary to the provisions of Act XI of 1859, no grounds of objection are open to the plaintiff which have not been declared and specified in an appeal to the Commissioner under s. 25. The above provision in s. 33 applies where the sale has been irregularly conducted, and also where the sale has been illegal in consequence of an express provision for exemption o

The plaintiffs in March 1890 made default in the payment of Government revenue for their share, and it was advertised to be put up for sale on the 18th September 1890, under ss. 6 and 13 of Act XI of 1859, for recovery of the amount due, R18-6. On the 16th September the plaintiff paid into the treasury of the Collectorate the amount of arrears due, and made an application that the joint share might be exempted from sale ; receipts were given for the amount paid in, but no order was made on the application, and the share was not exempted from sale. On the 16th September the joint share was put up for sale, but there being no bids, the sale was postponed, and on the same day the Collector made an order under s. 14 of Act XI of 1859 that, unless the arrears were paid by the other sharers (the defendants) within ten days, the whole estate would be put up for sale. Notices of this order, provided for by a rule made under the Act by the Board of Revenue, were given to the serving peon on the 2nd October for service on the defendants, and the arrears were paid in by some of the defendants on the 4th and by others on the 7th October, and eventually the Collector, acting under s. 14 of the Act, granted on the 5th December 1890 a certificate of purchase, and gave delivery of possession to the defendants. The plaintiffs appealed to the Commissioner, but their appeal was rejected on the 10th March 1891. Held, by PETHERAM, C.J., and BEVERLEY, J. (AMEER ALI, J., dissenting), that the Collector not having exempted the share from sale, the payment by the plaintiff of the arrears on the 16th September was no bar to the proceedings taken under s. 14 of the Act. Held, also, that the defendants' purchase was not made invalid by the fact of their not having paid in the arrears within ten days from the 18th September, the day fixed for the sale ; the ten days in s. 14 run from the time when notice of the Collector's order is given to the other sharers, and not from the date of the sale. Held, further, that it was not open to the plaintiffs to take this latter objection, as it was not declared and specified in their grounds of appeal to the Commissioner in accordance with s. 33 of the Act. Gobind Lal Roy v. *Ramjanam Misser, I. S. 33 is not applicable to a transfer by the Collector of the defaulting share under s. 14 ; the sale contemplated by s. 33 and referred to by the Privy Council in Gobind Lal Roy v. *Ramjanam Misser, I. 1. PLACE OF SALE.

1. ——— Place of holding the sale—Sale of moveable property in execution of decree—Practice.* Under the Code of Civil Procedure (Act XIV of 1882), it is intended that a sale of moveable property attached in execution of a decree should ordinarily be held in some place within the jurisdiction of the Court ordering the sale. Good and sufficient reasons must be shown for directing otherwise. Where the only ground urged for directing a sale outside the Court's jurisdiction was that the property would probably fetch a better price, and it was found by the Court that a fair sale could be had on the spot:—Held, that no sufficient reason was shown for departing from the usual practice. 3. OBJECTION TO SALE.

1. ——— Dispossession of third party in execution—Resistance or obstruction by stranger on delivery to auction-purchaser—Civil Procedure Code, 1859, s. 269.* There was no provision in the Civil Procedure Code, 1877, similar to that contained in s. 269 of Act VIII of 1859, which enabled the Court executing a decree to inquire into a complaint made by a person other than the defendant, on the ground of dispossession in the delivery of possession to the purchaser of immoveable property sold in execution of a decree; and therefore the only remedy of a person so dispossessed was by regular suit. A, a decree-holder, purchased certain property belonging to B, his judgment-debtor, at a sale, in execution of his decree, and delivery of possession to him was ordered. A stranger to the suit thereupon presented a petition to the Court executing the decree, setting up a title to a moiety of the property in question, and prayed for an investigation into his right, and for recovery of possession, on the ground that he had been dispossessed by A. Held, that the application could not be maintained. 2. ——— Decree, impeachment of, by a stranger as fraudulent—Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV of 1882), s. 287.* In the execution of a decree ordering the sale of immoveable property it is not competent for the Court to refuse to sell it because a stranger to the suit in which such decree was obtained, who is in possession of such property, impeaches the decree as having been obtained by fraud; the course open to him, if he wishes stay of execution, being to file a suit and obtain an injunction for that purpose. 3. ——— Objection subsequently taken by the judgment-debtor that the property sold was not legally saleable—Civil Procedure Code, ss. 311, 312 and 313—Execution of decree—Sale in execution—Estoppel. Held*, that a judgment-debtor who might have raised objections to a sale in execution of a decree against him, but who have refrained from doing so, and who might have appealed against the order for sale, has no right, after the sale has been carried out, to prefer an objection that the property sold was not legally saleable. Ramchhibar Misr v. *Bechu Bhagat, I. debtors, since deceased, which decree directed that the mortgage-lien should be enforced, first, by sale of the property specifically mortgaged; and, secondly, if the debt remained unsatisfied by the sale of the other property in the possession of the judgment-debtors, the judgment-creditor proceeded to have the property sold. After issue of the sale notification, one of the judgment-debtors applied for stay of the sale, on the ground that an administration suit was pending with respect to the property of his father, the mortgagor, and also asked that a receiver be appointed and arrangements made for paying off the mortgage-debt and saving the property from sale. Held, that the Court was wrong in passing such order, inasmuch as there were no reasonable grounds why a secured creditor should be debarred from enforcing his security pending the administration suit. Held*, that the assignees of a purchaser from a judgment-debtor of property, the subject-matter of a decree for enforcement of hypothecation, were entitled to come in and protect the property from sale in execution of the decree by tendering the debt and costs under s. 291 of the Civil Procedure Code, and that the executing Court was bound to accept the money and stop the sale. A Court executing a decree can neither grant a certificate under this section, nor confirm a mortgage or other alienation of property, unless it appears that by such alienation the decree will be satisfied in full. It is not sufficient that after grant of certificate a mortgage by the judgment-debtor is, as between him and his mortgagee, bonâ fide, nor can it affect the lien acquired by the judgment-creditor under s. 276. An arrear of rent due in respect of the property sought to be sold is to be regarded as one of the matters to be notified, as being material for the purchaser to know in order to judge of the nature and value of the property; and the omission of the decree-holder to notify such arrear due to him at the date of the issue of the proclamation for the sale of the property has the effect of destroying the

When a decree-holder loses his remedy to enforce his decree for arrears of rent by the sale of the property in default, by reason of his own negligence, laches and acts, he cannot be allowed to enforce it as against a third party into whose hands the property passes at the sale, and to make any property hypothecated for the rents liable for the whole amount due to him when, by the security bond, the hypothecated property is made liable only for so much of the arrears due as may not be realized by the sale of the property in default. By the law as then interpreted such a holder had only a limited interest, and except for special justifiable causes (of which the debt on which the above decree was obtained was not one) no power of alienation beyond his lifetime. 4. ——— Description of property in specification under s. 237 of Civil Procedure Code on application for attachment—Execution against joint family property. The specification required by s. 237 of the Civil Procedure Code of the judgment-debtor's share or interest in immoveable property sought to be attached should state distinctly whether it was the judgment-debtor's undivided share or the family property in which the judgment-debtor had an undivided share which was sought to be attached and should also specify what that family property was. If the specification merely referred to the judgment-debtor's share and interest in what was the family property the Court would hold, unless something to the contrary appeared, that the sale was of that share and interest only. 5. ——— Sale of rights and interests in mouzah consisting of two mehals—Submersion of mehal at time of sale—Sale-certificate not specifically mentioning submerged mehal—Passing of rights in submerged mehal to purchaser. The rights and interests of certain judgment-debtors in a mouzah consisting of two separate mehals, respectively known as the Uparwar mehal and the Kachar mehal, were brought to sale in execution of the decree. At the time of the sale the Kachar mehal was submerged by the river Ganges, and in the sale-notification the revenue assessed upon the Uparwar mehal only was mentioned, and there was no specific attachment of the Kachar or submerged land, but the property was sold as that of the judgment-debtors in the mouzah. Subsequently the river having receded, the auction-purchaser attempted to obtain possession of the Kachar land, but was resisted by the judgment-debtors on the ground that their rights and interests in that land had not been conveyed by the auction-sale, but only their rights and interests in the Uparwar mehal. Held, that either the whole rights of the judgment-debtors in both mehals were sold, or, if not, their rights in the Uparwar mehal with the necessary and contingent right to any lands which might subsequently appear from the river's bed and accrete to such mehal; and the mere fact of the mention in the sale-notification of the revenue of the Uparwar mehal did not affect what passed by the

6. ——— Increase of judgment-debtor's interest occurring after attachment and before sale. Previously to a mortgage of it, a fractional interest in certain property (which interest was purchased by the plaintiff, the mortgagee, at a judicial sale) had been the subject of a settlement by a Mahomedan on his wife under the conditions that, if he should have no child by her, his two sons by another wife should each have an estate therein. He died without other children. Held, that the two sons had taken definite interests capable of being attached within s. 266 of the Civil Procedure Code, not being mere expectancies. Held, that a judicial sale of property, purporting to be of all the interest of a judgment-debtor, carries with it any enlargement thereof that may have occurred after the attachment and before the sale; and that accordingly the above-mentioned settlor having died without a child by that wife, between the date of the attachment and the sale, the sons' augmented interests passed thereby. In 1869 one of the parties to that litigation obtained a decree for money against the zur-i-peshgidars; and in 1874, in execution of this decree, all the right, title, and interest of the representatives of the latter in the lease of 1851 was sold to a third party. Held (reversing the decision of the High Court), that the right to the mesne profits awarded by the decree of 1860 did not pass by the sale, but remained in the representatives. The Court which granted the decree, intending to execute it, approved the proceedings of an Ameen purporting to put the decree-holders into constructive possession of a certain number of mouzahs of the talukh. In 1850 the appellants, in execution of a decree for money obtained by them against the respondents, purchased at a sale, amongst other things, their "right, title, and interest" in the decree of 1843. Held (affirming the judgment of the High Court), that possession of the mouzah having been delivered, so far as it could be delivered, considering the attachment to which the talukh containing these mouzahs was subject, the decree of 1843 had been so far executed; and that what was acquired by the appellants at the execution sale was only the unexecuted portion of the decree of 1843. The purchase-money was very inadequate as the price of the full ownership of the property (subject to the lease), but what was sold according to the sale-certificate was the right, title, and interest of the judgment-debtor without any restriction. The judgment-debtor died in 1881, and the lease having run out, the purchaser now sued in 1893 for possession. Held, that the plaintiff must be taken to have purchased an interest for the life only of the judgment-debtor. A judicial sale transfers to the purchaser the property of the judgment-debtor against the debtor's will, and places the purchaser in a higher position than that which the judgment-debtor, by any private alienation, could confer on him. Such a purchaser is competent to defend his possession and title by showing that the charge which it is sought to establish against the estate is fraudulent and collusive, and therefore void. 36. ——— Reversionary right of grantor— Property liable to attachment and sale—Grant to Hindu widow for maintenance for life—Act VIII of 1859, s. 205—Civil Procedure Code, s. 266 (k). One N, the sole owner of a certain village, had a son J. J had two wives. By his first wife he had a son U. J's second wife was G, by whom he had a son whose widow was K, the defendant in the suit. J died leaving U his son, G his widow, and K his son's widow, and on his death U inherited the village. Prior to the year 1874, U had made a gift to G of 105 bighas situate in the village. In 1874 the rights and interests of U in the village were sold by auction and purchased by T, the ancestor of the plaintiffs. G by a deed of gift conveyed the 105 bighas to K and ultimately died on 26th January 1883. Plaintiffs then sued to set aside the gift and for possession of the land. The learned Judge found that the land was given to G in lieu of her maintenance, which she was to hold rent-free for her life, and that she had been in possession thereof for twenty years. Further, that U had the right to resume the land and assess it to rent on the death of G, and all the rights and interests of U in the land were attached and sold in 1874. On second appeal it was contended that the interest of U in the land at the time of the sale of the village by auction was in the nature of a mere expectancy and therefore could not be sold and was not sold. Held, that U gave to G the usufruct of the land for her life in lieu of her maintenance; that after the gift the interest of U in the land was of the same character and carried with it the same consequences as the reversion, which the lessor would have for land leased for life or years, and analogous to the right which a mortgagor who had granted a usufructuary mortgage would have; and that U had a vested right in the land which was capable of being sold and that right passed to the auction-purchaser at the sale of 1874. Koraj Koonwar v. *Komul Koonwar, 6 W. In execution of a decree for arrears of rent, an application was made for a sale of the tenure for the arrears of which the decree had been obtained. A notification was issued purporting to be a sale proclamation under Act VIII of 1859, s. 249, and in pursuance of that notification the sale of the right, title, and interest of the judgment-debtor took place. Held, that the tenure did not pass by that sale, notwithstanding that the sale-certificate stated it was the tenure itself which had been sold. In a suit by A to establish his right to the shamilat talukh:—Held, that A was entitled to succeed, as he had acted bonâ fide, and that C could not be considered an innocent purchaser for a valuable consideration, but a purely speculative purchaser, as he must have known that no such tenure as that which he purchased under the denomination of jote-jumma had any real existence. 5. ——— Description in notification of sale—Sale under mortgage-decree—Vendor and purchaser. The proprietors of a talukh and mehal called B, assessed with revenue at R6,800-4-7, to which certain lands which had been gained by alluvion appertained, which lands had been formed into a separate mehal and assessed with revenue at R88, mortgaged it in these terms: "We agree mutually to mortgage the said talukh B, and accordingly after mortgaging and hypothecating the whole of the mouzahs, original and appended, yielding a jumma of R6,800-4-7, along with all original and appended rights, water and forest produce, high and low lands, cultivated and uncultivated lands, etc., etc., and all and every portion of our proprietary, possessory, and demandable rights, without excepting any right or interest obtained or obtainable, etc." Subsequently, the mehal talukh B, "together with original and attached mehal and all the zamindari rights appertaining thereto," was sold in the execution of a decree enforcing the mortgage. The auction-purchaser subsequently contracted to sell the "entire talukh B, jumma R6,800-4-7," but afterwards refused to perform the contract, and was sued for its specific performance. The plaint in this suit stated that the subject-matter of the contract was the "entire talukh B, jumma R6,800-4-7," and the decree which the purchasers obtained for the specific performance of the contract referred to its subject-matter in similar terms. Held, in a suit by the purchasers for the possession of the alluvial mehal, that the terms of the mortgage were sufficiently comprehensive to include that mehal, and it was not intended by the entry of the jumma of mehal B, exclusive of the jumma of the alluvial mehal, to exclude the latter from the mortgage, the entry of the jumma being merely descriptive. Also that the alluvial mehal passed to the auction-purchaser at the auction-sale, under the words "attached mehal." Also that the sale to the plaintiffs passed the alluvial mehal, the words "the entire talukh B" being sufficient to include it, the entry of the jumma of mehal B in the sale contract, plaint, and decree being merely descriptive. 6. ——— Certificate of sale—Certificate of sale not conclusive as to the property sold at execution sale—Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV of 1882), ss. 316, 317. A decree on a mortgage directed that the whole interest of five brothers in the mortgaged house should be sold. The proclamation of sale stated also that the whole interest in the house was to be sold. The sale took place, and the plaintiff was the purchaser. By a mistake, however, on the part of the officer in charge of the sale, the memorandum of sale, the certificate of sale and the receipt of possession passed by the plaintiff omitted to mention the names of four of the brothers, and erroneously stated that the interest only of one of them had been sold. The defendant subsequently obtained a money-decree against some of the other brothers, and, in execution sold their interest in the house, purchased it himself, and took possession of a part of the house. The plaintiff thereupon brought this suit to eject him. The lower Appellate Court dismissed the suit, holding that in ejectment the plaintiff was bound to give strict proof of his title, and that the certificate of sale was conclusive evidence of the property which had been purchased by him. On appeal:—Held, reversing the decree of the lower Court, that the plaintiff was entitled to a decree. The certificate of sale was not conclusive as to the property which had been purchased by the plaintiff. The property offered for sale and bid for by the plaintiff was the property ordered to be sold and proclaimed for sale. What was sold to the plaintiff was the interest mentioned in the Court's order and proclamation, and the sale of that property became absolute by the order which confirmed the sale. 7. ——— Misdescription of area— Sale in execution of a decree obtained outside the jurisdiction of the Original Side of the High Court—Misdescription of area of property sold—Deficiency in quantity of land—Compensation, suit for—Abatement of rent. An auction-purchaser of a tenure, sold in execution of a decree outside the jurisdiction of the Original Side of the High Court, brought a suit against the decree-holder for a refund of part of the purchase-money, on account of a deficiency in the actual area of land purchased, as compared with the area stated in the sale proclamation, and for abatement of rent in respect of such deficiency. It was alleged that the decree-holder made false and fraudulent allegations in respect of the area of the property in the sale proclamation, but there was no finding by the lower Court as to this, nor was there any finding that the plaintiff sustained any loss, and there was no condition in the sale proceedings as to compensation for errors or misdescription. The purchase-money was not in Court, and the decree-holder offered to pay back the auction-purchaser his purchase-money and release him from his purchase, but this was refused. Held, that, although there was a deficiency in area, the auction-purchaser was not entitled to compensation, as he had failed to prove he had sustained loss by misdescription in the sale proclamation, but he was entitled to an abatement of rent for such deficiency. Kissory Mohan Roy v. *Kali Charan Ghose, 1 C. property:—Held, that the plaintiff was in no better position than a purchaser at a sale of partnership property made in execution of a decree against a single partner, and that he could not be allowed to effect a partial partition, which the judgment-debtor, to whose right he succeeded, would not have been entitled to obtain. All that the plaintiff could do was to bring a suit for an account and settlement of the whole concerns of the firm, and claim that interest in the property which upon a final settlement might be ascertained to belong to his judgment-debtor. 4. ——— Property of co-parceners— Share of one of several co-parceners—Undivided Hindu family—Unascertained share, purchase of. In the Bombay Presidency the share of one of the co-parceners in a Hindu undivided family in the ancestral estate may before partition be seized and sold in execution for the separate debt in his lifetime. The purchaser of such an unascertained share cannot, before partition, insist on the possession of any particular portion of the undivided family estate, and he takes any such share subject to the prior charges or incumbrances affecting the family estate or that particular share. The attachment of a co-parcener's share in the family property under an ordinary money-decree should go against the share, right, title, and interest of the judgment-debtor in such parts of the family property (naming and describing them) as the judgment-creditor can specify and against the share, right, title, and interest in all other parts of the family property. The mortgagee, having obtained a decree in 1856 on his mortgage, caused 20 guntas of the mortgaged land to be attached and sold on account of the right and interest of one of the mortgagors only on 24th January 1871. In a suit brought by the purchaser against a third member of the undivided family, in whose possession the 20 guntas then were, to recover the same from him as being the property of the mortgagor whose right and interest therein had been attached and sold:—Held, that the purchaser could take no more than the share of the co-parcener whose interest alone had been attached and sold, though this share might be defined as it existed at the time of the mortgage made by him in 1848. 7. ——— Property of joint tenure-holders— Decree against one of several joint sharers—Effect of sale under such decree. In execution of a decree against one of several joint holders of a tenure, when it is clear that what is sold, and intended to be sold, is the interest of the judgment-debtor only, the sale must be confined to that interest, although the decree-holder might have sold the whole tenure had he taken proper steps to do so or although the purchaser may have obtained possession of the whole tenure under the sale. But if, however, it appears that the judgment-debtor has been sued as representing the ownership of the whole tenure, and that the sale, although purporting to be of the right, title, and interest of the judgment-debtor only, was intended to be, and in justice and equity ought to operate as, a sale of the tenure, the whole tenure must be considered as having passed by the sale. If the question is doubtful on the face of the proceedings, the Court must look to the substance of the matter, and not to the form or language of the proceedings. After J's death, Y, whose village had been sold in execution of a decree for the sale of the mortgaged property, sued R, eldest son of J, for rateable contribution in respect of the debt secured by the mortgage, and he obtained a decree for R210 and costs, and directing the 10 biswas share to be sold in satisfaction of the decretal amount. Upon attachment of the share in execution of the decree, the three younger sons of J claimed 7½ biswas as belonging to them, and prayed that the same might be released from attachment. This objection was disallowed as made too late, and the sale in execution of the decree took place. The sale certificate showed that the property sold was "the rights and interests" of R in the 10 biswas. The three younger sons of J subsequently brought a suit to establish their right to 7½ biswas out of the 10 and to set aside the sale to that extent. Held, that the shares of the plaintiffs were unaffected by the sale, and all that passed thereunder to the purchaser was the 2½ biswas share of the judgment-debtor. The plaintiffs were not bound by the decree in a suit to which they were not parties, and by a sale to which they objected, and in the teeth of the terms of the sale-certificate put forward to defeat them. 17. ——— Son's interest in joint ancestral property—Sale of right, title, and interest of father. The sale of the right, title, and interest of a father in ancestral property, in execution of a decree for a debt incurred by him, passes as well the right, title, and interest of the son, where the debt was not incurred for an immoral purpose, and where the purchaser has inquired whether there was a decree against the father, and that the property was properly liable to process and sale in satisfaction of the decree and has purchased the estate bonâ fide under the execution, and bonâ fide paid a valuable consideration for it. In determining whether the sale passed the right, title, and interest of the son, the nature of the debt and not the nature of the property must be considered. Unless it can be shown that the debt was incurred for an immoral purpose, the question as to the nature of the debt must be held to be determined against the son by there having been a decree against the father, and his right, title, and interest in the family property. In a suit brought by the decree-holder to establish his right to sell the younger sons' shares in satisfaction of the decree against their father :—Held, that, so far as the younger sons were concerned, the decree must be treated as a decree for money against the father, and that all that could be sold in execution of the decree against the father was the share of the father. such decree of the joint ancestral property, without any limitation as to the rights and interests sold, the rights and interests of all the co-parceners are to be assumed to have passed to the purchaser, and they are bound by the sale, unless and until they establish that the debt incurred by the father, and in respect of which the decree was obtained against him, was a debt incurred for immoral purposes of the kind mentioned by Yajnavalkya, Ch. II, s. 48, and Manu, Ch. VIII, sloka 159, and one which it would not be their pious duty as sons to discharge. If, however, the decree, from the form of the suit, the character of the debt recovered by it, and its terms, is to be interpreted as a decree against the father alone and personal to himself, and all that is put up and sold thereunder in execution is his right and interest in the joint ancestral estate, then the auction-purchaser acquires no more than that right and interest,—i.e., the right to demand partition to the extent of the father's share. In this last-mentioned case, the co-parceners can successfully resist any attempt on the part of the auction-purchaser to obtain possession of the whole of the joint ancestral estate, or, if he obtains possession, may maintain a suit for ejectment to the extent of their shares upon the basis of the terms of the decree obtained against the father and the limited nature of the rights passed by the sale thereunder. Girdharee Lall v. *Kantoo Lall, 14 B. 25. ——— Mitakshara law—Alienation, voluntary and involuntary, by the members of a family governed by the Mitakshara law. A, a Hindu governed by the Mitakshara law, after the attachment of a property, part of his ancestral estate, to which he and his minor son B were, jointly entitled as members of a joint Hindu family conveyed by a deed of gift the whole of his interest in the ancestral property, including the property under attachment, to B. Five days after the execution of the deed of gift the property was sold in execution of the decree of the attaching creditor, C, and was purchased by C at such sale. Ten days after the sale, A instituted proceedings, under s. 256 of Act VIII of 1859, to set it aside on the ground of irregularity. These proceedings were afterwards continued in the name of A, but virtually on behalf of the minor B, under the control and direction of the Collector, who had taken charge of his estate, and appointed a manager under Act XL of 1858. These proceedings terminated in 1874 by the application to set aside the sale being dismissed, and the sale was therefore confirmed, and C took possession of the property. In 1877 a suit was instituted on behalf of B, by the manager appointed by the Collector, against C and A to recover possession of the property, on the ground (1) that when it was sold it was not the property of A, the judgment-debtor ; and (2) that the property of a joint Hindu family could not be sold or alienated by, or taken in execution of, a decree against a single member of that family. Held, (i) that the fact that the plaintiff, through his guardian, had actively intervened in the proceedings under s. 256 of Act VIII of 1859, was no bar to the institution of the present suit on his behalf ; (ii) that C at the sale purchased the interest, whatever it was, of A only, and was entitled to have it ascertained and allotted to him on partition ; and (iii) that although under the Mitakshara law a member of joint family cannot, or may not, be able to alienate his share or interest in the joint family estate, yet such share or interest can be taken in execution and sold by the holder of a decree against him. The proclamation of sale purported to relate to (a) only ; and between the dates of proclamation and the auction-sale the zamindar died. On the argument that, this having given rise to an ambiguity, the Court must be understood to have sold all that it could sell, and that, under the circumstances, it could sell, and was bound to sell (b); because the debts, the subject of the decrees under execution, not having been incurred by the late zamindar for any immoral purpose, the entire zamindari formed assets for their payment in the hands of his son:—Held, that the question of what the Court could or should have sold had not arisen. All that required decision was what the Court had sold. If (a) only was put up for sale, then that interest only could have been purchased. Two Courts having concurred in finding that (a) only was sold, in which also their Lordships agreed, only that interest passed to the purchaser. 27. ——— Purchaser at a sale in execution of a decree directing sale of the whole right, title, and interest of grandfather—Assignment by grandsons of the same property subsequently to such sale, effect of. In 1858 S mortgaged certain ancestral property to the first defendant for a term of nine years. In 1864, S being then dead, the defendant sued R, the son of S, to recover the money-debt and obtained a decree against the estate of the deceased. The land in question was thereupon attached and sold on the 13th August 1873, subject to defendant's mortgage lien, and was purchased for the defendant by his cousin. The certificate of sale was drawn up in accordance with the decree, and recited that the purchaser bought the whole right, title, and interest of S. On the 3rd August 1882 the plaintiff purchased from R's sons the share of R in S's estate. The plaintiff sued the defendant to redeem the property. The Court of first instance rejected his claim. On appeal, the lower Appellate Court reversed that decree, and remanded the case for re-trial. Against this order of remand, the defendant appealed to the High Court. Held, restoring the decree of the Court of first instance, that the language of the decree showed that the intention was to make the land itself liable for the debt, and not merely S's interest. By his purchase the defendant was to be regarded as having bargained for, and purchased the entire interest in, the land. Nanomi Babuasin v. Modhun Mohun, I. L. R. 13 Calc. 21, followed. family, of whom the father was one, can produce as his document of title only a sale-certificate showing him to have bought, in execution of a money-decree against the father only, the right, title, and interest of the father, then he has bought nothing more than such interest, and he is liable to be compelled to restore to the other members of the joint family their interests, which had not, upon the face of the sale-certificate, passed by the sale. The father and manager of a joint Hindu family executed a deed whereby he hypothecated certain zamindari property, covenanting to put the mortgage in proprietary possession thereof if the debt should not be paid on a certain date. This transaction afterwards turned out to be fraudulent on his part, as he had no interest in this property, and the obligors then sued him to recover the debt upon the personal obligation, and obtained money-decree, in execution whereof the right, title, and interest of the judgment-debtor in certain joint family property was notified for sale, and a sale took place at which, upon the face of the sale-certificate, only that right, title, and interest was sold. The auction-purchasers, having obtained possession, asserted a right to the whole of the joint family estate, upon the ground that, as the judgment-debtor was father of the family, the decree must be assumed to have been passed against him in his capacity as karta, and that the other members of the family were therefore bound by the decree and sale. The other members brought a suit to recover possession of their shares. Held, that, inasmuch as upon the terms of the sale-certificate nothing more passed to the defendants at the sale than the right, title, and interest of the father, the plaintiffs were entitled to maintain the suit and to have a decree declaring them entitled to the whole property, subject to a declaration that the defendants, as auction-purchasers of the father's share, might come in and claim a partition of that share out of the joint estate. Per MAHMOOD, J., that the plaintiffs were entitled to succeed on the further ground that the debt for which the decree against the father was passed was immoral within the meaning of Hindu law. Simbhunath Panday v. Golap Singh, *L. but he did not prove that the debt for which the decrees were passed was immoral, and it appeared that A had bargained and paid for the entire estate. 30. ——— Joint family—Mortgage by father and eldest son—Death of father and eldest son—Decree obtained by mortgagee against minor son represented by the widow—Sale in execution—Subsequent suit by minor to set aside sale. In 1862 R and his son A mortgaged the property in dispute to B. In 1863 R died, leaving a widow S and two sons, viz., A, and P, a minor. In 1866, A and S, the latter of whom acted for herself and as guardian of her minor son P, settled the account with B, the mortgagee, obtained a fresh advance, and passed a fresh mortgage-bond to him. In 1868 A died. In 1869 B's assignee filed a suit upon the mortgage, and obtained a decree against the mortgaged property against S both as guardian of the minor P and also against her in her individual capacity. At the Court-sale held in execution of this decree, D purchased property in dispute in 1870. In 1881 P filed the present suit to recover possession of the property, alleging that B's purchase was invalid as against him, he having been a minor at the time of the Court-sale. Held, upon the merits, that the debt for which the decree was passed, being a family and ancestral debt, was binding upon the whole family, including the plaintiff, who was therefore not entitled to disturb the execution purchaser. 31. ——— Joint family—Money-decree—Decree against father alone—Purchaser at execution-sale under such decree—How far such sale binding on the interest of the sons not parties to the suit or execution-proceedings. In the case of a joint Hindu family whose family property is sold by the father alone by private conveyance, or where it is sold in execution of a decree obtained against him alone, the mode of determining whether the entire property, or only his interests in it, passes by the sale, is to inquire what the parties contracted about in the case of a conveyance, or what the purchaser had reason to think he was buying, if there was no conveyance, but only a sale in execution of a money-decree. In the case of an execution-sale, the mere fact that the decree was a mere money-decree against the father as distinguished from one passed in a suit for the realization of a mortgage security directing the property to be sold, is not a complete test. The plaintiff claimed certain property from the defendant, alleging that he had purchased it from a third person who had purchased it at an auction-sale held in execution of a money-decree obtained against the first defendant alone. The first defendant was the father of the remaining defendants, and they constituted a joint Hindu family. The sons contended that only the father's interest was bound by the sale ; and the lower Courts decided in their favour. On appeal, the High Court reversed the decree, and sent back the case for a fresh decision, on the ground that the lower Courts had decided the question in the case exclusively on the ground that the property had been purchased in execution of a money-decree without referring to the execution-proceedings. 32. ——— Sale for debt of father—Suit by son to set aside sale—Failure to prove immoral purpose of debt. A sale in execution of a decree against a zamindar for his debt purported to comprise the whole estate of his zamindari. In a suit brought by his son against the purchaser, making the father also a party defendant, to obtain a declaration that the sale did not operate as against the son as heir not affecting his interest in the estate, the evidence did not establish that the father's debt had been incurred by him for any immoral or illegal purpose.. Held, that the impeachment of the debt failing the suit failed ; and that no partial interest, but the whole estate, had passed by the sale, the debt having been one which the son was bound to pay. Hardi Narain Sahu v. Ruder Perkash Misser, *I. In 1882 the mortgagee brought a suit on the money-bond ; and having obtained a personal decree against the two brothers merely, brought to sale in execution part of the mortgaged property which was purchased by a third person. Held, that the sale did not convey the interest of another undivided brother who was not a party to the decree. Held, further, per KERNAN, J., that the sale in execution was invalid under the Transfer of Property Act, s. 99. 34. ——— Judgment-debtor's share in joint ancestral estate—Mitakshara law—Execution of decree by sale of such share—Rights of co-sharers not being parties to the decree or execution-proceedings—Sale-certificate. The question was whether the whole estate belonging to a joint family, living under the Mitakshara, including the shares of sons, or the share of their father alone, passed to the purchaser at a sale in execution of a decree against the father alone upon a mortgage by him of his right. Held, that, as the mortgage and decree as well as a sale-certificate expressed only the father's right, the primâ facie conclusion was that the purchaser took only the father's share, a conclusion which other circumstances—the omission on the part of the creditor to make the sons parties and the price paid—not only did not counteract, but supported. The enquiry in recent cases regarding the liability of the estate of co-sharers in respect of transfers made by, or execution against, the head of the family has been this, viz., what, if there was a conveyance, the parties contracted about or, what, if there was only a sale in execution, the purchaser had reason to think he was buying. 35. ——— Hindu law—Joint family—Court-sale of right, title, and interest of the father, effect of. One R and his sons were members of an undivided family. In execution of certain money decrees passed against R, the lands in dispute were sold to various persons, from whom they were afterwards bought by the defendant. In 1875 R died, and in 1887 his sons and garndson filed this suit against the defendant to recover the lands. They alleged that the lands were service vatan lands and inalienable, and that the execution-sales affected nothing except R's life-interest, and that, on R's death, they (the plaintiffs) became entitled. They also contended that, even if the Court should find the lands were not service vatan lands, they were, at all events, ancestral property, and that the plaintiffs' interests therein were not affected by execution-sales under decrees to which they were not parties. Held, on the evidence that, although the sale-proclamation and sale-certificate spoke only of the right, title, and interest of R, as being offered for sale and purchased by the auction-purchasers, the entire family interest in the property was, as a fact, the subject of the auction-sales. The words "right, title, and interest" of the judgment-debtor are ambiguous words, which may either mean the share which he would have obtained on partition, or the amount which he might have sold to satisfy his debt; and it is claimed in each case a mixed question of law and fact to determine what the Court intended to sell and what the purchaser expected to buy. But their suit must be based upon some ground which under the Hindu law would free them from liability as sons in a Hindu joint family to pay their father's debts. mortgage, and he cannot be deprived of this security by any subsequent charges on the property or prior unregistered charges which the mortgagor may create or have created. When he brings the property to sale the sale is an out-and-out sale of the estate of the debtor, and the purchaser takes the property subject only to those incumbrances which were in existence at that date, though such of the subsequent incumbrancers as may, at the time of the sale, have taken out execution may have a right to satisfy their claims from the surplus proceeds of the sale. In applying s. 259 of the Code of Cvil Procedure to cases of the above description, the words, "the right, title, and interest of the defendant in the property sold," must be understood as meaning the right, title, and interest which the decree ordered to be sold,—i.e., the right, title, and interest which the judgment-debtor had in the property at the time of the mortgage. A purchaser at a sale in execution of such a decree under a prior mortgage, as well as the original holder of a prior mortgage, has rights far superior to those of any other mortgagee or purchaser of a subsequent date. A subsequent purchaser, by payment of an earlier mortgage and obtaining a decree for the money so paid, does not acquire any rights belonging to that mortgage. His payment was a voluntary act, and his decree against his vendor was a personal one for a simple debt, not secured by any security connected with any portion of the land in dispute. Plaintiff then sued F alone on his bond and obtained a decree, in execution of which he sold a share in B and purchased it himself. In a suit for possession and to have the superiority of his lien declared over defendant's zur-i-peshgi,—Held, that plaintiff was not entitled to possession until he paid off the whole of the amount advanced by the defendant to clear off the debt due under the first zur-i-peshgi lease. Held, also, that the holder of a subsequent incumbrance, by paying off a prior incumbrance, acquires all the rights of the latter so far as the amount actually paid by him for that purpose is concerned. 10. ——— Right of purchaser of mortgaged property—First and second mortgages. Where a mortgagee sues upon his mortgage-bond and his claim is decreed, the decree should be satisfied out of the mortgaged property, and not out of the right, title, and interest which remain in the mortgagor. The purchaser at the execution-sale acquires all the interest which passed by the mortgage to the mortgagee, and any interest which remained in the mortgagor—i.e., his equity of redemption. If there was a second mortgage, all that it could pass from the mortgagor was his equity of redemption, and the decree in a suit on such mortgage could only authorize the sale of the equity of redemption, unless the first mortgagee was made a party, and his mortgage shown to be invalid and the second mortgage to have priority. DOOLAL CHUNDER DEB v. GOLUCK MONEE DEBIA. 22 W. R. 360

11. ——————— Effect of sale—Parties. The usual mode in the mofussil Civil Courts, of selling in mortgage suits "the right, title, and interest," of the mortgagor, or his heir, is not correct if deemed to be his right, title, and interest at the time of the sale. The intention of the Court is to pass to the purchaser the right, title, and interest both of the mortgagor and mortgagee. What passes to the auction-purchaser under the certificate of sale is the right, title, and interest of the mortgagor as it stood when he made the mortgage and not merely as it stood at the time of the Court-sale. One U mortgaged certain immoveable property to A R (defendant No. 1) for R400 on the 7th May 1865. On the death of U, the mortgagee A R brought a suit (No. 311 of 1871) against his widow K (defendant No. 2), but did not make his (U's) children (who were minors) parties to it. On the 28th July 1871 A R obtained a decree for R460, being the amount of principal and interest due on his mortgage, with further interest from the date of suit to date of payment. That decree directed satisfaction of the amount due under it out of the mortgaged property if it were not paid by the widow, K (defendant No. 2). K having failed to satisfy the decree the Court, on the application of

A R (the decree-holder), sold the mortgaged property on the 19th September 1872 for R400 to the brother of A R. On the 7th August 1873 the auction-purchaser obtained a certificate of sale to the effect that he had purchased at the Court-sale "the right, title and interest of H" (the widow) in the mortgaged property. On the 17th August 1874 the auction-purchaser sold the property for R700 to the father of the plaintiff. In 1877 the plaintiff sued A R (the mortgagee and decree-holder) to recover possession of the property with mesne profits. U's widow, K and children (two sons and a daughter) were defendants in the suit, the plaintiff alleging, in addition to the facts just stated, that these defendants had colluded with the tenants of the property in dispute and collected the produce thereof. Defendant No. 1 (A R) denied his liability. The answer of defendants Nos. 2, 3, 4, and 5 (respectively the widow, two sons and a daughter of U) substantially was that the Court-sale did not affect the rights of defendants Nos. 3, 4, and 5, as they had not been parties to the mortgage suit No. 311 of 1871 and that they were entitled to hold the property. The Subordinate Judge awarded the plaintiff's claim, holding that both the sales —viz., the Court-sale under the mortgaged-decree in suit No. 311 of 1871 and the subsequently private sale by the auction-purchaser—were bonâ fide and binding on defendants Nos. 2, 3, 4 and 5, inasmuch as the debt for which the property was sold had been contracted by U. This decree was reversed on appeal, on the ground that the Court-sale extended only to the right, title, and interest of K (defendant No. 2) in the mortgaged property, and did not affect the rights of defendants Nos. 3, 4 and 5, who were not parties to it. On appeal to the High Court:—Held, that the defendant in the title of the purchaser (plaintiff) arose from the circumstance that the suit of A R (No. 311 of 1871) for foreclosure and sale was sufficiently constituted as to parties, both the sales having been found to be unimpeachable in all other respects, and that the defendants Nos. 3, 4 and 5 were entitled to the same relief which they would have obtained if they had been made parties to that suit, viz., the right of redeeming the property by paying off the mortgage. The High Court accordingly reversed the decree of the District Judge, and directed the defendants Nos. 3, 4 and 5 to pay to the plaintiffs, within six calendar months from date, the sum of R460, with interest on the principal (R460) from date of the institution of suit No. 311 of 1871 until payment. The Court further directed that, in default of payment, the mortgage should be foreclosed and defendants Nos. 3, 4 and 5 precluded from redeeming the property which should be delivered up to the plaintiff. The debt not having been paid, the house was sold at the Court's sale on the 15th July 1870 and purchased by C. In an action brought by the plaintiff to recover possession of the house on the ground that he had purchased it on the 2nd August 1868 at an execution-sale under a common money-decree against A:—Held, that the plaintiff's sale was subject, not only to the mortgage of 1863, but also to the decree upon it under which the right, title, and interest of the mortgagor A passed in 1870 to C, whose purchase was entitled to preference to the plaintiff's purchase in 1868. 14. ——— Sale under mortgage for payment of Government revenue—Rights of respective purchasers. In 1855 a decree for an account was passed in the Supreme Court of Calcutta against A, an executor. A died in 1856, and the suit, which was revived against his representatives, came on for consideration on further directions on 29th August, 1866. It was then found that A's estate was liable for R1,32,406-11-8, and his representatives were ordered to pay this money into Court. The representatives having made default in payment, a writ of fieri facius was issued, under which the property was sold by the Sheriff of Calcutta, and conveyed by him to B on 1st April 1867. Previously to this, the representatives of A had, on 11th January 1865, mortgaged the same property, together with other lands, "for the purpose of paying the Government revenue of certain talukhs belonging to A, deceased;" and the mortgagee having obtained a decree on his mortgage, the property was sold to C under that decree on 30th March 1867. In a suit for possession by C against B:—Held, that, though the sale to B was made for the express purpose of paying the debts of A, B's title was not to be preferred to that of C, who claimed under the mortgage of 1865, which was made for the purpose of paying Government revenue; and, semble, the result would be the same even if the mortgage

Subsequently L applied for the sale of such property in execution of his decree, and such property was put up for sale in execution of that decree, and was purchased by S. S sued, by virtue of such purchase, to recover possession of such property from C. Held, that, inasmuch as under Act X of 1877 what is sold in execution of a decree purports to be the specific property, and as C had purchased the property in suit with notice of the existing lien on it and subject to its re-sale in execution of the decree in execution of which S had purchased it, what actually was sold in execution of that decree to S was such property, and S was entitled to possession of such property under such sale. The defendant alleged that he had bought the land from the widow of the previous owner by whom it had been mortgaged, and that he (the defendant) had paid off the mortgage. The previous owner had left a minor son. The lower Courts passed a decree for the plaintiff, on the ground that the sale by the widow to the defendant was invalid, as she had not obtained a certificate of administration to her husband under Act XX of 1864. Held, that the defendant had a lien upon the land for the amount of the mortgage-debt which he had paid, and that the plaintiff could not set aside the sale to the defendant without refunding the amount secured by the lien. plaintiff became the purchaser. Thereupon the defendant attached the land in execution of the decree obtained by him in 1864. The Court found that the mortgage of 1861 was not a bonâ fide mortgage. In a suit for possession:—Held, that the plaintiff was entitled to succeed. The decree obtained in 1864, being based upon a colourable mortgage, gave the defendant no claim as against a subsequent bonâ fide purchaser for value. What was purchased by the plaintiff at the execution-sale in 1869 was the real interest of J in the lands in question, not his interest as diminished by a fictitious derogation arising out of a sham transaction. When M was put in possession, P petitioned the Court, objecting, but being referred to a regular suit he executed his original decree, bringing the hypothecated property to sale, and bought it himself, without, however, getting possession from the Court till many months later. Plaintiff then sued the tenant of the house in the Small Cause Court for rent, and P intervened as a party to the suit, claiming the rent which had fallen due from the date of his getting possession. Held, that the plaintiff was not in a position to maintain the suit, his possession having been put an end to by P, whose lien on the property was anterior to the sale under which plaintiff purchased. execution of a rent-decree under which they ousted plaintiffs, and got their own names registered as proprietors. Defendants claimed as purchasers in execution of a money-decree obtained against G by the first creditor, S, alleging that they paid off the money due to the second creditor, D, and were entitled to hold possession, their purchase having been previous to that of the plaintiffs. Held, that, in purchasing the rights and interests of G, defendants purchased his right to redeem property already subject to two mortgages, and as they purchased with full notice, they could only retain possession by paying off both mortgages. Held, also, that plaintiffs purchased not merely the equity of redemption, but G's rights and interests as they were when the mortgage was created subject to the mortgage held by D, but free from subsequent incumbrances. the Registration Act of 1864 came into force, but were, however, unregistered. Held, that, if the plaintiff had come in and offered to satisfy so much of the decree obtained by the defendant as related to the first two bonds, he would have been clearly entitled to assert that nothing could pass by the sale in execution of the decree on the other bonds, but the rights of the judgment-debtor, subject to his mortgage; but that, as he did not do so, the auction-sale, having been made in satisfaction inter alia, of the debts due on the mortgage-bonds containing the condition against alienation, passed the full proprietary right to the defendant. On 10th October 1868 B sued on his mortgage, and obtained a decree against A's son, who was a minor, and who was represented by his mother as his guardian. She, however, had obtained no certificate of administration under the Minors Act, XX of 1864. On 17th December 1869 the mortgaged property was sold by the Court in execution of B's decree. The plaintiff bought it, and obtained a certificate of sale. On the plaintiff's attempting to take possession of the property, the defendant, who was C's widow and heiress, resisted him, and he thereupon sued to recover it. Held, that the plaintiff was entitled to possession. He stood, at least, in the same position as had been occupied by B before the sale, and B, as prior mortgagee, had a superior title to that of defendant, who claimed under a subsequent deed. Where mortgaged property is sold in execution of a decree in a suit brought upon the mortgage, the interest of the mortgagee, at whose instance the sale is made, is held to pass to the purchaser, and the mortgagee is estopped from disputing that such is the effect of the sale. 24. ——— San-mortgage—Registration of certificate of sale—Civil Procedure Code, 1877, s. 287—Notice—Warranty of title. A buyer of property at an execution-sale who registers his certificate of sale does not thereby acquire a title free from the obligation arising from a san-mortgage of previous date. When the Court sells the right, title, and interest of a judgment-debtor in property, it cannot be regarded as selling more than the judgment-debtor himself could honestly sell. He could honestly sell only subject to any equities existing against himself on the property, and if by concealment of a san-mortgage he sold property as free of that charge, he would commit no fraud. The Court cannot be deemed to do that which would be a fraud if done by the judgment-debtor. If, then, the Court sell only the right, title, and interest of the judgment-debtor subject to all existing equities against the property sold, the registration of the Court's conveyance (viz., certificate of sale) cannot enlarge the scope of that conveyance and discharge the property from any unregistered incumbrance which was binding on the judgment-debtor. Per MELVILL, J.—In the case of execution-sales under s. 287 of the Civil Procedure Code (Act X of 1877), notice is given to purchasers that the sale only extends to the right, title, and interest of the judgment-debtor, and that the Court ordering the sale does not warrant the title. This being so, it seems clear that a person who buys an avowedly doubtful title, and pays for it on that understanding, cannot claim to be a purchaser without notice. Where, therefore, in execution of a simple money-decree obtained for some of the instalments due on his mortgage-bond a mortgagee brought to sale the property which he held in mortgage, but in his application for execution did not mention his lien on the property for the instalments that were still to fall due:—Held, that the purchaser, if he supposed that he was purchasing the full proprietary title, purchased the property free of the mortgagee's lien. Agarchand v. *Rakhma, I. what the mortgagor had to give him, viz., a lease subject to the registered mortgage. Where a decree is obtained upon his mortgage by a mortgagee, and the mortgaged property is sold under the decree for the purpose of paying off the mortgagee, the interest of both mortgagor and mortgagee passes to the purchaser. The mortgagee is estopped from disputing that such is the effect of the sale, so far as the interest is concerned, although the officer of the Court may only have described the sale as one of the right, title, and interest of the mortgagor. 27. ——— Mortgage without possession—Right of mortgagee as against the purchaser—Difference between a mortgage valid as against a private purchaser for valuable consideration and one valid as against a purchaser at a Court-sale—Priority—Optional registration. On the 19th September 1871 the land in dispute was mortgaged by L (defendant No. 1) to the plaintiff for R25. The deed of mortgage was not registered. By it defendant No. 1 agreed to pay interest at the rate of one pice per rupee per mensem, and it was provided that the mortgagee was to remain in possession for a period of twenty-five years in lieu of principal and interest, and that the mortgagor was not to claim the property back, unless he paid the principal and interest that might accrue due in twenty-five years from the date of the bond. On the 8th July 1872 the land was sold in execution of a decree against the father of L and purchased by B (defendant No. 2), who obtained possession under the certificate of sale. In 1874 the plaintiff (the mortgagee) sued L and B for possession of the property. It was contended for B (defendant No. 2) that the mortgage did not bind him, because he was a purchaser for value without notice of the mortgage, and because it was not accompanied with possession. Held, that, although the mortgage to the plaintiff might have been without possession, it would bind the mortgagor himself, and was therefore binding as against defendant No. 2, who purchased at a Court-sale under a decree obtained against the mortgagor. A purchaser at such a sale takes only that which the judgment-debtor could himself honestly dispose of. Possession or registration is necessary to validate a mortgage in the Deccan or elsewhere in the Presidency of Bombay (except Gujarat) against a private purchaser for valuable consideration, but not against a purchaser at a Court-sale. in execution—Sale certificate registered—Priority—Interest passing on sale of mortgaged property in execution of a money-decree and of a decree in mortgage. One H and his sons B and C, executed a sanmortgage of certain ancestral property in plaintiff's favour in 1885. The mortgage was unregistered. In 1886 the same property was mortgaged by C alone by a deed which was also unregistered. In 1889 C's mortgagee obtained a decree on his mortgage for sale of the mortgaged property, and in execution put up the property to auction in 1892, when defendant purchased it. Defendant got his sale-certificate registered. In 1894 the plaintiff brought this suit to enforce his mortgage-lien by sale of the mortgaged property. The defendant contended that, as to C's share, his certificate of sale having been registered, his claim had priority to the plaintiff's unregistered mortgage. Held, that the plaintiff was entitled to a decree. His, claim was superior to the defendants. The defendant had purchased the interest which C had mortgaged in 1889. But that mortgage was unregistered and was therefore subject to the plaintiff's mortgage, which although unregistered, was earlier in date. The defendant, by registering his certificate of sale, could not enlarge the estate which the certificate conveyed to him. By a sale of mortgaged property in execution of a decree obtained by a mortgagee against the mortgagor upon the mortgage, the interest both of the mortgagor and mortgagee passes to the purchaser. But by a sale of mortgaged property in execution of a money-decree obtained by the mortgagee against the mortgagor, the interest of the defend ant (mortgagor) alone passes to the purchaser-MAGANLAL v. SHAKRA GIRDHAR

29. ——— Mortgaged land subsequently sold by mortgagee in execution of a money-decree—Purchaser at such sale with notice of mortgage—Mortgagee estopped from subsequently enforcing his mortgage as against purchaser—Fraudulent concealment of lien—Registration not equivalent to notice in case of fraud—Civil Procedure Code (VIII of 1859), s. 213. Where a judgment-creditor in execution of a money-decree sells property as belonging to his judgment-debtor, he is afterwards estopped from enforcing as against the purchaser, a previous mortgage of the property which has been created in his own favour, but of which he has given no notice at the time of the sale, and in ignorance of which the purchaser has bid for the property and paid the full price. This principle applies, even though the mortgage-deed has been registered. In 1867 R and G mortgaged certain lands to G R by a registered deed of that date. In 1870 G R obtained a money-decree against R and G, and in execution put up the mortgaged land for sale. The plaintiff purchased it without notice of the mortgage, and in February 1872 obtained possession through the Court. In the meantime G R brought another suit upon his mortgage against his morgagors. He obtained a decree and in April 1872 ejected the plaintiff and obtained possession. In 1883 the plaintiff filed the present suit against R, G, and G R to recover the lands. Held, that the plaintiff was entitled to recover. G R (the mortgagee), when bringing the land to sale in execution of his decree, was bound by s. 213 of the Civil Procedure Code (VIII of 1859) to disclose the limited interest of his judgment-debtors in it. By concealing his lien he has induced the plaintiff to pay full value for the property, and he could not therefore retain his lien. By his omission he was estopped from disputing the plaintiff's title. The rule, that registration of a mortgage amounts to notice to all subsequent purchasers of the same property, does not apply to a case where there has been a fraudulent concealment by a judgment. creditor of the extent of his judgment-debtor's interest in the property brought by the judgment-creditor to sale. 30. ——— Sale of equity of redemption—Suit by mortgagee for sale of mortgaged property—Purchaser not a party to suit—Sale of mortgaged property in execution of decree obtained by mortgagee—What passed—Right of purchaser of equity of redemption—Redemption. On the 21st December 1871 three of the defendants in this suit mortgaged four groves to H. In 1872 the plaintiffs obtained a money-decree against one D, and in August 1872, in execution of that decree, sold the said groves, and at the sale purchased them and also two mills which were not in dispute in this suit. The decree against D was found to have the same effect as if it were had and obtained against all the mortgagors. Of this sale H had notice, in fact, he opposed it. Subsequently H, the mortgagee, sued the mortgagors on their mortgage, and obtained a decree on it, and under the decree brought the said groves to sale in 1877, and purchased them himself. In May 1880 H sold the groves to two of the defendants. The plaintiffs, who were not parties to the suit, which resulted in the decree under which the groves were sold, in 1877, instituted this suit for possession of the groves. Held, that, notwithstanding the sale of 1872, what was sold under the decree of 1877 was the right, title, and interest of the mortgagors, as they existed at the date of the mortgage of the 21st December 1871, with which would go the rights and interest of the mortgagee; and although at a sale under a decree for sale by a mortgagee the right, title, and interest of the mortgagor which is sold is his right, title, and interest at the date of the mortgage, and any right, title, and interest he may have acquired between the date of mortgage and of the sale, still any puisne incumbrancer or purchaser from the mortgagor prior to the date of mortgagee's decree, and who was not a party to the suit in which the mortgagee obtained his decree, would have the right to redeem the property which the mortgagor would have had, but for the decree. 32. ——— Equities of mortgagors. In a suit for possession by the certificated purchaser of one-third of certain mouzahs which had been sold in execution of a decree obtained by the mortgagee against the defendant as mortgagor, it appeared that the defendant had, in a previous execution sale at the instance of a second mortgagee of the same property, bought the same subject to his own first mortgage. The High Court held that the plaintiff should be treated, not as a purchaser, but as a mortgagee in respect of his purchase-money. They then directed that only so much of the original mortgage-debt as should be apportioned against the share bought by the plaintiff should be realised in his favour. Held, that this ruling and direction were founded on a misapprehension that the purchaser had a right to possession of the property which he had bought, and that the defendant had no equity to prevent it. Both parties claimed the proprietary right and possessin, the defendants holding the latter. The first of the decrees in date was the plaintiffs' for money against the representatives of the deceased owner of the property, which before then had been mortgaged to the defendants by his widow. The plaintiffs obtained only the equity of redemption, their purchase having been of the right, title, and interest. The mortgagees, having got a decree upon their mortgage against the widow, purchased at the sale in execution, and defended the possession which they obtained. Held, that the defendants, in whose favour the decree had been made upon a bonâ fide mortgage, without notice that the mortgagor had been only holding benami for her husband, had the better title : that the High Court had rightly disallowed an objection taken by the plaintiffs, that this defence, as distinguished from the defendant's answer that the widow was the real owner, had not been set up or decided in the Court of first instance. Subsequently A sold a portion of the said land to C in consideration of her paying off the mortgage-debt due to B. C entered into possession, but was unable to satisfy the debt. C died, and A sued C's daughter and legal representative for damages sustained by him from the non-payment of the purchase-money by C. A obtained a decree, and, the money not being paid as therein decreed, applied for execution, and brought to sale the equity of redemption vested in C by virtue of the sale. By leave of the Court, A bid at the Court sale and bought the right of redemption and recovered back possession of the land sold to C. Subsequently he again applied for execution of the decree in respect of the balance by attachment of certain moveable property, and contended that he was bound to give the defendant credit only for the price which he actually paid at the Court-sale for the equity of redemption. The defendant contended that A was bound to give credit for the full value of the land under mortgage. Held, that, having obtained leave of the Court to bid under s. 294 of the Code of Civil Procedure, A's position was that of an independent purchaser, and that the price, which an independent purchaser must be taken to pay when he buys property under mortgage for a cash payment made to the mortgagor on account of his equity of redemption, is the cash payment for the equity of redemption plus the debt, i.e., the amount undertaken to be paid to the mortgagee, and that for these amounts A was bound to give credit. benami purchase and re-sell the property. The first Court found that the purchase was not benami, and confirmed the sale on the 12th April 1892, but the lower Appellate Court came to a contrary conclusion and set aside the sale on the 22nd July 1892. The High Court in second appeal accepted the finding of the Appellate Court as regards the purchase being benami, but upheld the sale with the remark that the said property and any other property of the debtors might be sold in satisfaction of the mortgage-debt. This judgment was passed on the 4th August 1893. On an application for execution made on the 3rd December 1894, objections were raised on the ground that the property was not liable to be sold again in execution of this decree. Held, that the previous sale under the mortgage-decree was no bar to a fresh sale under the same decree. Ram Autar Singh v. *Tulsi Ram, 5 C. 44. ——— Act IV of 1882, ss. 67, 85, 99—Mortgage—Sale under a decree of equity of redemption—Rights of purchaser, the decree having become final. On the 22nd of March, 1881, one Nathu Ram mortgaged certain property, with possession. On the 9th of May, 1881, the mortgagees leased the mortgaged property to Nathu Ram, who, as security for the rent due from him, further pledged his equity of redemption. The original mortgagees died. The rent due under the lease fell into arrears; and the successor in title of the mortgagees instituted a suit against the mortgagor, to recover the amount due to him for arrears of rent by sale of the equity of redemption of the property. On the 27th November, 1889, a decree for sale was passed, and on the 31st of March, 1890, an appeal against the decree for sale was rejected. The property was accordingly sold by virtue of the decree for sale, and was purchased by the successor in title of the mortgagees on the 20th of April, 1891. The sons of Nathu Ram thereupon brought a suit, claiming proprietary possession of the property on the ground that the sale of the equity of redemption was illegal and void, and conveyed nothing to the purchaser. Held, that the sale, having been the outcome of a suit under s. 67 of the Transfer of Property Act, 1882, did not offend against s. 99 of the Act, and that, although, according to law as laid down by the High Court, the sale of an equity of redemption was not contemplated by the Transfer of Property Act, yet, inasmuch as the sale had taken place under a decree which had become final, it could not at that time be upset. Matadin Kasodhan v. *Kazim Husain, I. The latter read a proclamation of sale in English, a language not understood by the native bidders present, which stated that only the interest of the judgment-debtor was for sale. Being asked by a native present to explain the terms of the proclamation, the auctioneer made a statement in Hindustani to the effect that "there are four mortgages; on this account there is a sale by order of the Court, the title-deeds can be seen at the Registrar's office," from which the plaintiff who casually attended the sale, was led to believe that the property was being sold at the instance of the mortgagees and free of incumbrances and he bid for the property which was knocked down to him for a sum nearly equal to its full value. After the sale he discovered that it had been sold subject to mortgages amounting to more than its value and that he was the purchaser of the equity of redemption, which was worthless. In a suit to set aside the sale on the ground that he bid for the property under a misapprehension caused by the misrepresentation made by the auctioneer, the

Appellate Court in India held that there was misrepresentation under s. 18 of the Contract Act (IX of 1872), but that the case fell within the exception in s. 19 as the plaintiff might with ordinary diligence have discovered the truth, and dismissed the suit. Held, by the Judicial Committee, that in sales under the direction of the Court it was incumbent on the Court to be scrupulous in the extreme and very careful to see that no taint or touch of fraud or deceit or misrepresentation is found in the conduct of its ministers. Here the plaintiff had been misled by the accredited agents of the Court which could not under such circumstances enforce against him so illusory and unconscientious a bargain as the sale to the plaintiff was shown to be. Held, also, that the plaintiff had no means of discovering the truth, while the sale was going on, and he was perfectly justified in relying on the statement as to the property which was being sold made by the auctioneer. The exception in s. 19 of the Contract Act had no application to the case. Held, further, that the Chief Clerk was right in referring the matter to the Court, and in not proceeding under s. 306 of the Civil Procedure Code. sold on the application of, and purchased by, the appellants, and they were put into possession under an order of the High Court, dated 18th April 1904. On the appeal from the decree of the Subordinate Judge, the High Court, on 27th January 1904, made a decree for sale conditional on the payment by the respondents, the mortgagors, of an increased amount within six months from the date of the appellate decree. The respondents, who had already unsuccessfully taken objections under ss. 311 and 244 of the Civil Procedure Code to the sale being confirmed, then made an application under s. 244 for restoration to possession on the ground that the High Court had by its decree on appeal so modified the decree of the Subordinate Judge as to render the sale under it illegal. The Subordinate Judge held that the application was not one within the purview of s. 244; that it was barred by limitation; and that the decree of the High Court did not invalidate the sale, and dismissed the application. The High Court on appeal, holding that the application was rightly made under s. 244, and was not barred, and that the sale under a decree, which was subsequently substantially altered on appeal, could not be otherwise than bad, reversed the Subordinate Judge's decree and directed that possession should be restored to the respondents, but refused to disturb the possession of the appellants pending the appeal to His Majesty in Council. Held, by the Judicial Committee, that the decree of the High Court was inconsistent with its order of 18th April 1904 giving the appellants possession, against which no appeal had been brought, and which could not be treated as null and void; that to allow the respondents to take advantage of the error in the decree of 27th January 1904 would entail expense and delay; that the merits of the case were not with them, and they had not offered to redeem the property. The first sale was in execution of the decree on the subsequent mortgage obtained in a suit in which the prior mortgagee was not impleaded and was held while the suit on the first mortgage to which the second mortgagee was no party was pending. The purchaser at the subsequent sale on the first mortgage sued to recover possession from the prior purchaser of the property and the plaint also contained a prayer for such other relief as the plaintiff may be found entitled to:—Held, that all the interest of the judgment-debtor passed to the purchaser at the first sale and the purchaser at the second sale of the judgment-debtor's interest in the property took nothing, as the judgment-debtor had then no saleable interest in the property. The suit to recover possession was not therefore maintainable. Venkatanarasammah v. Ramiah, I. L. R. 2 Mad. 108, followed. Akatti Moidin Kutty v. *Chirayil Ambu, I. L. 11. DECREES AGAINST REPRESENTATIVES.

1. ——— Liability of legal representative of deceased person—Right of bonâ fide purchaser without notice at execution sale. A bonâ fide purchaser without notice for valuable consideration at an auction sale is, as a general rule, entitled to protection, notwithstanding any irregularity or defect in the proceedings or decree in the suit. But when the decree is against the representative of a deceased person, the purchaser is bound to satisfy himself that the party sued as the representative of the deceased is his legal representative. The legal representative of a deceased person, though not a party to the suit, will be bound by the execution sale, if he either knowingly allowed the suit to be defended by another person claiming to be the legal representative, or if, knowing of the sale, he stood by and allowed the purchaser to pay in the belief that he acquired a good title. Edalji Hormasji v. Mahabu Begum, Special Appeal No. 266 of 1869, considered. 2. ——— Decree against widow in representative capacity—Right and interest acquired by purchaser. A suit was brought against A's widow upon a bond given by A. In execution of the decree obtained against the widow, A's property was put up and sold. The advertisement of sale in one place said that the property to be sold was the property of the widow, and in an other the rights and interests of the debtor. Held, that the property intended to be sold, and sold, was the rights and interests, not of the widow personally, but of the widow as A's representative.

5. ——— Contents of application for execution and of notification and proclamation of sale—Sale of interest of minor—Civil Procedure Code, 1859, ss. 212, 249. Where an application for execution of a decree omits to give the names of all the parties as required by s. 212, Act VIII of 1859, even if it shall appear from other parts of the proceedings who those parties are, the parties named must be understood to be the parties defendants against whom the execution of the decree is sought. Parties present at a sale are not bound to refer to the decree as laid down in Ishan Chunder Mitter v. Buksh Ali Sowdagur, Marsh. 614, nor must they be considered as knowing its contents unless they are stated in notification of sale. The proclamation and notification under s. 249 are intended to inform persons what is to be sold, and to give the names of the parties defendants whose rights and interests in it are to be sold. In the case of a sale in execution of a decree against a party as a representative of a deceased person, the proper course is to give in the description of the property to be sold the name of the defendant against whom the decree was obtained, and, in describing what was to be sold, to say the right, title, and interest of the defendant as the representative of the deceased. A guardian has no right or interest in a minor's property, and the Courts ought to be extremely careful with regard to allowing the property of minors to be sold in execution of a decree. The purchaser in this case was held to have acquired under his purchase no title to the property of the minor, the property not having been described as the property of the minor. 6. ——— Guardian not properly appointed—Act XX of 1864—Parties—Mad. Reg. V of 1804—Form of decree. J (defendant No. 1) brought a suit (No. 374 of 1861) against the plaintiff's father G. On a mortgage-bond, dated the 2nd April 1856, G having died before any decree was passed, his widow (plaintiff's mother) was substituted as defendant, and a decree was made against her ex parte. It was, however, set aside after her death on the application of M (defendant No. 2), the sister of G, on the ground of want of due service of process upon G and his widow. M was substituted as defendant in the suit, and a new decree was made in her favour. That decree was reversed, on appeal, by the District Court, which allowed J's claim. In execution of the decree of the Appellate Court, the mortgaged property was sold and purchased by J for R250. J obtained certificate of sale headed thus "J, son of L, plaintiff; G, son of N, deceased, supplement of substitute) his sister M, defendant;" and it certified that J had purchased "all the right, title and interest which the said defendant had in the said property." J was put into possession of the property. In 1877 the plaintiff (son of the original mortgagor G) filed the present suit against J and M, alleging that the mortgage-bond on which J had obtained his decree had been forged by J, and contending that the decree and subsequent proceedings under it did not affect his rights, inasmuch as he had not been made a party to them. The prayer in the plaint was that the decree and sale should be set aside and the property restored to his possession. The defence of J substantially was that the suit and appeal were defended by persons who were proper guardians of the plaintiff, and had been in the management of his property. M did not appear. The Subordinate Judge rejected the plaintiff's claim, holding that M was his guardian and manager of his property in the previous suit and appeal, and that the mortgage-bond was genuine. On appeal, that decree was reversed by the District Judge, on the ground that the plaintiff had not been represented in the previous litigation by a guardian duly appointed under Madras Regulation V of 1804, and was no party to it. He accordingly allowed the plaintiff's claim. On second appeal to the High Court:—Held, that on the death of G, the plaintiff was his sole heir; that the equity of redemption in the mortgaged property vested in him; and that the inheritance was wholly unrepresented in the previous litigation, inasmuch as M was not appointed guardian of the plaintiff's person or administratrix of his estate, either under Madras Regulation V of 1804, ss. 2, 19, 23, or under Act XX of 1864; nor was she appointed his guardian ad litem in the mortgage suit. Ishan Chunder Mitter v. Buksh Ali Sowdagur, Marsh. 614, distinguished. 7. ——— Sale in execution of a decree against a deceased person represented by a minor son—How far such sale affects interest of an heir not party to decree or execution-proceedings. K, a Mahomedan woman, who was a co-sharer in a certain khoti vatan, died indebted, and was sued after her death as "represented by her minor son represented by his guardian." A decree having been obtained against K, as so represented, her share in the khoti was put up for sale in execution, and was purchased by the plaintiff who obtained a sale-certificate reciting that the right, title, and interest of K in the said khoti had been purchased by him. He now sued the defendants, who were K's co-sharers in the khoti, to recover the profits of K's share, which they had received. K, besides her minor son, had left her surviving a daughter who had not been made a party to the suit or to the execution-proceedings, and the defendants contended that her share in her mother's estate had not passed to the plaintiff. Held, that the plaintiff was entitled to the whole of K's share. The debt due by K was one for which the daughter was equally responsible; and having regard to the form of the suit and the execution-proceedings, the plaintiff was justified in assuming that he was bidding for the entirety of K's share, and would acquire a title unimpeachable by the daughter. 8. ——— Representatives of deceased Mahomedan—Sale subject to mortgage—Power of heirs to alienate. The heirs of a deceased Mahomedan mortgaged some property of their ancestor. After the mortgage, a judgment-creditor, in respect of a debt due from the estate of their ancestor, attached and sold the mortgaged property in execution of his decree. Held, that the sale was subject to the mortgage. Held, also, that the question with respect to the powers of the heirs and the rights acquired by the mortgagee and the purchaser under the execution, in a suit between the latter, was to be determined not by the Mahomedan law, but by the principles of "justice, equity, and good conscience." Semble: That even if the Mahomedan law applied, the sale in execution would be subject to the mortgage. The debts then incurred by B R and S not having been paid, the creditor brought a suit against S, as representing her father's estate, to recover them, and having obtained a decree, the house was sold in execution thereof, and purchased by H in May 1874. B R at his death left also a sister, who was entitled to a 3 annas share of his estate, but who had been for some years absent on a pilgrimage to Mecca. On her return she, in January 1874, sold her interest in the house to M. In a suit by M against S and H for possession of the share so purchased by him:—Held, that S did not represent the whole estate of B R, and the share purchased by the plaintiff did not pass under the execution sale to H; the plaintiff, therefore, was entitled to recover. 10. ——— Purchase of interest of some of the heirs—Heir not party to suit—Right acquired by purchaser. A, a Mahomedan, died possessed of immoveable property and leaving a widow, a daughter, and a sister B, his heiress according to Mahomedan law. B was entitled to a one-sixth share of an undivided moiety of a certain portion of the property which was situated in Calcutta. After A's death, the L Bank sued his daughter and her husband and two of her husband's brothers in a mofussil Court to realize certain mortgage securities executed by A to the Bank, and obtained a decree by consent. Neither the widow nor B, who was then absent from the country, were parties to the suit. The Bank, in execution of their decree, caused certain property of A, including the undivided moiety of the Calcutta property, to be sold by the Sheriff of Calcutta. The defendant became the purchaser at this sale, and obtained possession of the property. The certificate of sale stated that what was sold was "the right, title, and interest of A, deceased, the ancestor, and of the defendants (naming them), the representatives, in a moiety of a piece of land situate," etc. B afterwards sold and assigned her share in (among other properties) the abovementioned undivided moiety of the Calcutta property to the plaintiff who now sued the purchaser at the execution-sale to recover the subject of his purchase. Held by GARTH, *C. 11. ——— Mahomedan law—Decree against heir of deceased Mahomedan. Under Mahomedan law, a decree against one heir of a deceased debtor cannot bind the other heirs. A mortgage having been executed by a Mahomedan, a suit was after his death brought against two of his heirs, his sister, who was entitled to a 6 annas share in his property, not having been made a party to the suit. A decree was made by consent, and in execution of that decree the right, title, and interest of the mortgagor were sold, the assignee of the sister then sued the purchaser to recover her 6 annas share without making the original mortgagee a party. Held, that the mortgagee was not a necessary party to the suit, and that the share of the sister, notwithstanding that the right, title, and interest of the mortgagor had been sold, was not affected by the sale, and that the plaintiff as her assignee was entitled to recover. In execution of a money-decree obtained against D, the creditor attached certain land which belonged to V, and made her husband and two of her children parties to the execution-proceedings. The land was sold and purchased by the decree-holder. Held, in a suit brought by the children of V, to set aside the sale on the ground (inter alia), that some of them were no parties to the proceedings in execution, and that the others, being minors at the time, had not been represented by a guardian appointed by the Court, that the sale was valid. 13. Mortgage by one of the heirs of deceased—Direction in will for payment of debts—Decree against heirs for debt of ancestor—Charge on property. A testator by his will directed payment of all his debts, and subject thereto devised his property to his heirs. After one of the testator's creditors had obtained a decree against the heirs in their representative capacity, which by its terms was to be satisfied out of the assets left by the testator, one of the heirs mortgaged his share in twelve properties left by the testator. Subsequent to the mortgage, one of the mortgaged properties was sold in execution of the creditor's decree. The mortgagee afterwards brought a suit against the mortgagor and obtained a decree on his mortgagee. Held, that, as neither the direction in the will for payment of debts nor the decree in the creditor's suit created a charge on the property of the testator, the property sold in execution of the creditor's decree had been sold subject to the mortgage, and the mortgagee was entitled to execute his decree against the property. Bazayet Hossein v. *Dooli Chund, I. 10. ——— Position of purchaser with certificate—Certificate of purchase by Registrar—Conveyance—Suit for partition—Declaration of right to share—Rules of Court, 415, 431. The position of a purchaser at a sale in execution of a decree of the High Court after he has obtained a certificate from the Registrar under rule 415 of the Rules of Court is that of a person clothed with a right to a conveyance in virtue of a contract ; he does not hold, save as regards the parties to the contract of sale, the position of an owner. When the sale is confirmed, the purchaser is entitled to a conveyance, and until he obtains a conveyance, the property in the estate purchased does not, having regard to rule 431, pass to him so as to give him rights as against parties not bound by the decree under which the sale took place. All that passes to him as against the defendant in that suit is an equitable estate and a right to a conveyance of the property ; and therefore as the estate in the property purchased has not passed, the purchaser is not entitled to maintain a suit for partition. In such a suit he could not on partition give a good conveyance to the parties interested in the estate, nor would he be entitled to a declaration of his share in the property. The sale was confirmed on the 9th January 1877, but the certificate of sale was not issued until the 16th June 1880. On the 20th January 1880 the defendant purchased the same house at a sale in execution of a money-decree against S. That sale was confirmed on the 28th February 1880, and a certificate was issued on 20th March 1880. The defendant got possession from the judgment-debtor in April 1880. The plaintiff now sued for possession. It was contended for the defendant that, having completed his title, under the auction-sale and obtained possession before the plaintiff had taken out his certificate, he had acquired a better title than the plaintiff. Held, that the plaintiff was entitled to recover. By his prior purchase he had obtained an equitable interest in the property, although he had not obtained a sale certificate. The defendant therefore purchased subject to the plaintiff's equitable interest ; and that title having subsequently been perfected by the issue of the certificate, the plaintiffs were in a position to sue for possession. While the attachment was subsisting and prior to the sale, the holders of other money-decrees against the same judgment-debtor preferred applications purporting to be made under s. 295 of the Civil Procedure Code, and praying that the proceeds of the sale of the property might be rateably divided between themselves and the attaching creditor. The Court refused to remove the attachment until these creditors had been paid. It was found that the sale by the judgment-debtor was a bonâ fide transaction, entered into for valuable consideration. Held, that, inasmuch as no order for attachment of the property was passed in favour of the decree-holders in the manner provided by s. 274 of the Civil Procedure Code, their claims were not entitled to the protection conferred by s. 276 against private alienations of property under attachment; that these claims were not enforceable under the attachment which was made; that the sale by the judgment-debtor was valid; and that execution of the decrees could not take place. Also per MAHMOOD, J.—While s. 395 of the Code gives a special right to judgment-creditors, as distinguished from simple creditors, it is an essential condition precedent to the exercise of that right that there should be sale in execution, and that its result should appear in assets realized by the sale; and therefore, until the sale takes place, no such right can be enforced. Bishen Chunder Surma Chowdhry v. *Mun Mohinee Dabee, 8 W. 12. ——— Realization of proceeds of sale—Sale under agreement sanctioned by Court—Sale not of the right or interest of judgment-debtor in property. P, the plaintiff in a suit No. 369 of 1886, obtained a decree for R2,14,728, in execution of which certain immoveable property was attached, including the premises 22, Strand Road, which was subject to certain trusts created by a deed, dated the 2nd February 1858, executed by the father of the judgment-debtors, who with one M were trustees of the deed. At the time of the attachment a suit No. 448 of 1883 was pending, in which the judgment-debtors as plaintiffs sought to have it declared what were the valid trusts under the deed, and that, subject to such trusts, they were absolutely entitled to the premises 22, Strand Road, and the other properties; in that suit, on the 26th March 1888, a decree was made declaring the valid trusts and charging the premises 22, Strand Road, with the payment of certain specific sums. In 1891 the judgment-debtors brought a suit No. 441 of 1891 to have the premises 22, Strand Road, sold freed from the trusts, to provide for the trusts by setting apart a sufficient sum out of the purchase-money, and to have the balance divided between the judgment-debtors; and, by the decree in that suit, dated the 2nd September 1892, the trustees of the deed were authorized to sell the premises 22, Strand Road, and were directed out of the proceeds of sale to set aside R45,000 to provide for the trusts, next to pay the costs therein directed, and then to apply the balance for the purposes in the plaint mentioned. In pursuance of this authority, the trustees, on the 25th February 1893, entered into an agreement with one J L for sale to him of the premises 22, Strand Road, for R1,43,000. On the 8th August 1893 a notice was issued at the instance of P calling on the judgment-debtors to show cause why the premises 22, Strand Road, should not be sold in execution under her attachment. On the 29th August 1893 the trustees of the deed of 2nd February 1858 gave notice to P of an application to be made in the suits Nos. 369 of 1886 and 441 of 1891 for the removal of her attachment, or in the alternative for an order that the agreement for sale entered into by the trustees with J L be carried out; that the proceeds of sale be applied to certain purposes specified in the notice, as having priority over the claim of P; that the balance be paid to the credit of suit No. 369; "as subject to the said attachment," and that the premises 22, Strand Road, be thereupon released from the attachment. These applications were heard together, and on the 14th September 1893 a consent order was made, by which it was ordered that the trustees be at liberty to carry out the agreement for sale with J L; and the sale-proceeds be paid to W, a member of the firm of the attorneys for P, who out of such proceeds was to pay R45,000 to the trustees, and make other payments directed by the order, and pay the balance into Court to the credit of suits Nos. 369 of 1886 and 441 of 1891, "the said P retaining her lien under her attachment upon the said balance in the same way as the same then subsisted upon the said property." The property was sold by the trustees in accordance with this order, and the purchase-money was paid to W, who, after making the payments directed, paid the balance into Court. Whilst in the hands to W, the balance was attached by other creditors who had obtained decrees against the judgment-debtors, and it was paid into Court with notice of these attachments. Held, on an application by P to have the money paid out to her in part satisfaction of her decree, that it could not be treated as "assets realized by sale or otherwise in execution of a decree" within the meaning of s. 295 of the Code of Civil Procedure. The sale of the property under the order of the 14th September 1893 was not a sale in execution, but a sale in pursuance of a private agreement entered into by the trustees under a liberty reserved to them by the Court, and the fact that the Court sanctioned it made no difference in this respect. It did not purport to be a sale of any right, title, or interest of the judgment-debtors or of any property belonging to them. To constitute a realization within the meaning of s. 295, there must be either a realization by a sale in execution under the process of the Court, or a realization in one of the other modes expressly prescribed by the sections of the Code. If the money paid into Court had exceeded the amount due to P in respect of her lien, the amount of such excess might perhaps have been treated as a "realization in execution" within the meaning of s. 295, but the balance in W's hands was less than the amount due to P, and was entirely absorbed by the lien in her favour. There was therefore no surplus on which the attachments could operate. Purshotam Dass v. Mahanant Surajbharthi, I. L. R. 6 Bom. 588, and *Sewbux Bogla v. Shib Chunder Sen, I. L. plaintiff, under the above circumstances, to recover from the defendant the portion of the sale proceeds so paid to him :—Held, that s. 295 of the Civil Procedure Code had no application, inasmuch as the plaintiff had not applied to the Small Cause Court Judge to execute her decree, and it had never been transferred to that Court for execution ; and that the proviso in s. 272 is merely intended to mean that any question of title or priority is to be determined by the Court in which or in whose custody the property is, and not by the Court which made the order of attachment. Held, also, that, previous to the order by the Munsif directing the payment to be made to the plaintiff, the Small Cause Court Judge would have had jurisdiction to deal with the question he had tried ; but as that order was made prior to the attachment by the defendant, the judgment-debtor had no interest in the money which could be so attached, the effect of that order being to vest the property in the money in the plaintiff, and to take it out of the disposal of the Small Cause Court Judge ; and consequently the order for distribution was wrong, and the plaintiff was entitled to the decree she sought. Quære : Whether an order made by a Court under s. 272 was intended by the Legislature to be a final order. the defendant's shop. These goods, however, were already under attachment in execution of certain decrees obtained in the Small Causes Court against the defendant. On the 4th September 1895, by an order of the High Court made on the application of the plaintiffs, the execution-proceedings in the Small Cause Court suits were transferred to the High Court, and it was ordered that the attached property should be realized by the High Court. The records of the execution-proceedings in those suits were lodged in the Prothonotary's office. On the 26th September 1895 the decree-holder in one of the Small Cause Court suits obtained an order from the Judge in Chambers directing the Sheriff to take charge of the attached property and realized it by sale. The Sheriff accordingly sold the property and certified the sale to the Prothonotary's office. The plaintiffs subsequently (under the rules of the Sheriff's office) applied to the Prothonotary for payment to them of the amount realized or so much thereof as should satisfy their decree. The plaintiffs were directed to give notice of their application to the holders of the Small Cause Court decrees. Held, that the holders of the Small Cause Court decrees were entitled to share rateably with the plaintiffs in the High Court suit in the proceeds of the property sold in execution by the Sheriff. but was eventually sold with accumulated interest for R69,000, in accordance with an expression of the High Court's opinion upon appeals presented by two of the decree-holders. Upon that opinion being made known, one of the decree-holders, K K, made, as it were, a fresh attachment of the note and applied for the sale of it; whereupon it was sold in the Court of the Subordinate Judge, who ordered payment in full to K K and two others (B and S), who were acting jointly in execution, and the surplus to be rateably divided among the other execution-creditors. One of these then brought a suit to establish a preferential claim. Held, that K K, who, as soon as it was ascertained that the fund might be so made use of, first applied for the sale of it, was the person who came under the Code of Civil Procedure, s. 270, and was entitled to payment in full; and that B and S had been overpaid, and were liable to repay the surplus to the other decree-holders. against two judgment-debtors, A and B, and in execution of that decree has attached and caused to be sold joint property belonging to such judgment-debtors, another judgment-creditor holding a decree against A alone, who has also applied for execution, is not entitled to claim under the provisions of s. 295 of the Civil Procedure Code to share rateably in the sale-proceeds, the decree not being against the same judgment-debtor, and a Court having no power in execution-proceedings to ascertain the respective shares of joint judgment-debtors In Shumbhoo Nath Poddar v. *Luckynath Dey, I. A Court is bound, in cases falling within this section, to satisfy itself whether the claimants are bonâ fide decree-holders within the meaning of the section; and where it is unable to satisfy itself as to the bonâ fides of the claim, the Court should exclude such claimant from the distribution of assets. In re SUNDER DASS I. It appeared that the properties of P were specified in the execution-proceedings and in the sale proclamation separately and the amount realized by the sale of his properties was separately stated. Held, that no question of the ascertainment of the shares of the judgment-debtors or of the application of the "principle of marshalling" arose in this case, and that the plaintiff was entitled to ask for a refund of the money paid to the defendants, under s. 296 of the Code of Civil Procedure, out of the assets realized by the sale of the properties of P. Deboki Nundun Sen v. *Hart, I. 34. _____ Rateable distribution of sale-proceeds—Same judgment-debtors—Separate and joint judgment-debtors—Marshalling of assets between decree-holders—Decree of Small Cause Court, transfer of. The plaintiffs in this suit obtained a decree against all three defendants A, B and C. In execution of such decree, they attached two sets of securities: (i) municipal bonds, the joint property of B and C; and (ii) Government loan notes, the property of C alone. These were sold by the Sheriff, but, before they were so sold, the holders of decrees in two other High Court suits came in and applied to the High Court for execution of their decrees, which decrees were against C alone. These last-mentioned decree-holders now claimed to participate rateably with the plaintiffs in this suit in the realized proceeds of both the above-mentioned securities. The plaintiffs in this suit contended that such decree-holders, having decrees only against C, were not claiming against "the same judgment-debtors" as themselves within the meaning of s. 295 of the Civil Procedure Code. Held, that, as regards the proceeds of the Government loan notes, the sole property of C, the plaintiff's decree and the other two decrees were all decrees "against the same judgment-debtors," and that therefore, as regards that fund, all three sets of decree-holders were equally entitled and must share therein rateably. Held, further, that, as regards the other fund, the proceeds of the property of B and C only, the plaintiffs in this suit were entitled thereto, since the other decree-holders had no decrees against B and C, and therefore not "against the same judgment-debtors" as was the decree of the plaintiffs. Held, further that, the plaintiffs having two funds to proceed against, whilst the other decree-holders had but one of these two, the equitable principle of marshalling should be applied, and the plaintiffs required to satisfy themselves as far as possible out of the funds not available to the other decree-holder, before they had recourse to the other fund common to all, and as regards the latter fund the plaintiff should claim against the same only as creditors for the then unsatisfied balance of their debt rateably with such other decree-holders. Shumbhu Nath Poddar v. Luckynath Dey, I. L. R. 9 Calc. 920, and Deboki Nundun Sen v. Hart, I. L. R. 12 Calc. 294, considered and followed. Another holder of a decree—a Small Cause Court decree passed against all three debtors A, B, and C—had previously to the said attachments by the Sheriff in this suit himself attached the same securities through the Small Cause Court. He did not, however, at any time get his decree transferred to the High Court. He now came in in these execution-proceedings and claimed to share rateably in both funds on the same footing as the plaintiffs in this suit. Held, that, not having had his Small Cause Court decree transferred to the High Court before the realization of the said securities, or indeed at any time, he was not entitled to share in either fund. Muttalgiri v. *Muttayyar, I. The plaintiff subsequently got a decree for the amount due upon the bill. Thereafter one S, in execution of a decree, against A and N, attached certain property of theirs, including the mortgaged property, and caused it to be sold; and the surplus sale-proceeds, after satisfaction of S's decree, were paid into Court to the credit of his suit. Intermediately between this attachment and sale, the plaintiff also attached under his decree on the bill of exchange the mortgaged and other property of A and N, and after the plaintiff's attachment N ratified the equitable mortgage made by A. The sale under S's attachment having taken place, the plaintiff sued A and N and the purchasers at such sale of the mortgaged property for foreclosure or sale thereof, and obtained a decree declaring that he had a good equitable mortgage of A's share in the joint property, and for an account and sale in default of payment; and the plaintiff subsequently, on 26th May 1873, got an order under his decree upon the bill of exchange for payment to him of the surplus sale-proceeds lodged in Court to the credit of S's suit, and for sale of certain of the properties, other than the mortgaged property, which he had attached. Under this order the money was paid out to the plaintiff, and the properties were advertised for sale. 47. ——— Mortgage—Allowance of set-off of purchase-money against amount of decree—Suit for share of sale-proceeds—Principle of distribution. In execution of a decree against M, the plaintiff attached and advertised for sale certain property in mouzah A. At that time there were pending proceedings in execution of two other decrees obtained against M by the first and second defendants respectively. These two decrees were obtained on a bond executed by M, by which an 8 annas share of mouzah A was hypothecated as collateral security ; and in execution of these decrees the defendants brought to sale, and themselves purchased, not an 8 annas share only, but the whole of mouzah A, and were allowed by the Court to set off the purchase-money against the amounts due to them under their decrees. At the same time, the plaintiff's execution case was struck off on 3rd July 1880. In a suit brought by the plaintiff under s. 295 of the Civil Procedure Code for his share of the sale-proceeds of mouzah A, in which the defendants contended that, a set-off having been allowed to the defendants, the plaintiff was not entitled to any rateable distribution, and that, if any rateable distribution were allowed, they were entitled to have an allowance made in respect of a mortgage which the plaintiff held in a 2 annas share of mouzah A, which they had paid off subsequently to the transactions now in question :—Held, that the fact of the set-off being allowed in exercise of the power given in s. 294 of the Code, instead of actual payment into Court, did not alter the substantial nature of the transaction, so as to render the purchase-money less applicable to the satisfaction of the debts of other attaching creditors. Held, further, that the defendants were not entitled to deduct the sum paid by them to clear off the plaintiff's mortgage from the amount of the purchase-money before the Court could determine the amount rateably distributable among the parties concerned. Quære : Whether they were even entitled to reckon the amount so paid as one of the claims in respect of which, with others, a rateable distribution should be made. 48. ——— Decree for money—Causes of action—Mortgage-decree—Mortagee purchasing under his own decree, Execution of decree by. The cause of action given by the last paragraph but one of s. 295 of the Civil Procedure Code does not arise until the money has been actually paid over to the person who is alleged not to be entitled to receive the same, and a suit brought by a person claiming to be entitled to be paid a share of sale-proceeds under that section, and to recover the same from another to whom such sale-proceeds have been ordered to be paid, if brought before they have been actually paid to such other person, is premature and should be dismissed. Every decree, by virtue of which money is payable is to that extent a "decree for money" within the meaning of that term as used in s. 295, even though other relief may be granted by the decree ; and the holder of such decree is entitled to claim rateable distribution of sale-proceeds with holders of decrees for money only under that section. There is nothing in s. 295 which takes away the right from a mortgagee who has obtained a decree upon his mortgage to proceed against the property of his mortgagor other than that subject to his mortgage. Thus the holder of a mortgage-decree which directs that the amount be realized from the mortgaged property and from the mortgagor personally is entitled to claim rateable distribution under that section, and is not in the first instance bound to proceed against his mortgage security and exhaust that. A mortgagee who has obtained a decree on his mortgage is not restricted to proceedings in the first instance against his mortgage security before proceeding against other property of his mortgagor, but when he sells any portion of the property, the subject of his mortgage, and purchases it himself, he is bound, before he can proceed further against the mortgagor or claim rateable distribution under s. 295, to prove that there is still a balance due to him, and that the property sold and purchased by him realized a fair amount, —the mere fact of the property having been sold at auction not being alone sufficient to prove its value,—and this ought to be inquired into most carefully by the Court to which an application is made to further execute the decree or to share rateably under s. 295. have enforced satisfaction of his decree in accordance with the provisions of s. 295 of the Civil Procedure Code, inasmuch as the provisions of the first and second provisos to that section refer only to sales in execution of simple money-decree whereas the property in question had been sold in execution of a decree ordering its sale, and the provisions of the third proviso relate to subsequent and not prior incumbrances. The land was sold for R2,855 in March 1881. In May 1881 B, a puisne mortgagee, applied to the Court for payment to him of R500 of this sum, alleging that A was entitled only to R2,000 and R280 costs, but not to arrears of rent, in preference to his claim as second mortgagee. The claim of B was rejected on the 27th May 1881 and the whole amount paid out to A. In February 1882 B (who had filed a suit on the 23rd March 1881) obtained a decree upon his mortgage. On the 23rd May 1884 B sued to recover R510 paid to A on account of rent on the 27th May 1881. The lower Court dismissed the suit on the grounds (i) that A was entitled to treat the arrears of rent as interest, and (ii) that the suit was barred by limitation. Held, on second appeal, that B was entitled to recover the sum claimed. The Court, however, under special circumstances may refuse to pay over to the decree-holder the purchase-money until the sale is confirmed, but in such case it should provide for due payment of interest on the money detained. Held, that, under the special circumstances of this case, the decree holder was not entitled to receive interest from his judgment-debtor from the date of the sale to the date on which the sale was confirmed. Neither decree was satisfied. A then applied for attachment of other property, and the sale was fixed for 28th September. On 25th September B filed a petition for further attachment under ss. 250, 274, and also a petition for rateable distribution under s. 295 of the Code of Civil Procedure. The District Judge rejected the application for execution as being too late, and then the application under s. 295, because no application for execution was pending. Held, on appeal, that the petition for execution was wrongly rejected, but that the High Court could not, under s. 622 of the Code of Civil Procedure, revise the order rejecting the application under s. 295 for rateable distribution. judgment, effect of—Decree-holder with an attachment before judgment, omission by, to apply for execution under s. 235, effect of, on right to share in distribution. A decree-holder who has attached before judgment is not entitled to rank under s. 295 of the Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV of 1882) as an applicant in execution, and as such to obtain in execution a rateable share of the property which he has attached, unless, subsequently, to his decree, he has applied for execution under s. 235 et seq. of the Civil Procedure Code. S. 490 of the Civil Procedure Code does not by implication confer upon a decree-holder who has attached before judgment the right to come in under s. 295 and share in the distribution of the property which he has attached. The effect of that section is merely to take away the necessity for a re-attachment of the property. The attachment before judgment enures and becomes an attachment in execution. An application by D, under s. 295 of the Civil Procedure Code, for an order enabling him to share rateably in the proceeds of U's execution was rejected. Held, that there being no question of fraud in the case, D was entitled to enforce his decree in the first instance against the property of B; that his decree against B did not lose the character of a decree for money under s. 295 of the Code, because it directed a sale of the property of the other judgment-debtors; and that the fact that there were four judgment-debtors in D's decree and only three in U's would not deprive D of the right to share rateably. Shumbhoo Nath Poddar v. Lucky Nath Dey, *I. The defendant obtained a decree on his mortgage against the land and in respect of any unrealized balance against the mortgagor, two months' time for redemption being given. The plaintiff then obtained a like decree. The defendant abandoned his claim on the mortgage premises and attached other property of the mortgagor. The plaintiff applied to execute his decree against the mortgage premises and the other property, but with regard to the latter his application was rejected. The defendant having brought to sale the property attached, the plaintiff applied, under the Civil Procedure Code, s. 295, for rateable distribution which was refused. The plaintiff then brought to sale the mortgage premises, which did not realize the amount of the debt, and he now sued to recover the sum which would have been payable to him under s. 295. Held, that the plaintiff's decree was a "decree for money" within the meaning of s. 295, and that he was entitled to recover the sum claimed. Per curiam. The property ought not to have been sold and the money paid to the defendant until the mortgaged property had been sold and had been found insufficient to pay his debt. 62. ——— Purchaser of decree against estate of a deceased person by the legal representative of such deceased person—Right of such purchaser to participate in proceeds realized in execution of decree. H K was the holder of a decree in suit No. 657 of 1869 for R69,467 against the firm of H B & Co. and in execution thereof he attached a certain house belonging to the estate of one H D, deceased, who had been a partner in that firm. A (the respondent) was the legal representative of H D. On the 9th November 1886 V purchased the decree from H K for R18,000, which sum she obtained for the purpose as a loan from C P. & Co. As a security for this loan, she gave C P. & Co. a letter, dated the 9th November 1886, whereby she agreed to repay the loan out of the proceeds of the sale of the house which had been attached in execution of the decree which she had purchased. In the meantime another decree, viz., in suit No. 8 of 1870, had been obtained against the firm of H B & Co., and had been, prior to the 9th November 1886, purchased by the appellant M, who had also, prior to the 9th November 1886, applied for execution. On the 6th April 1887 the attached house was sold by the Sheriff, and realized R45,000. On the 5th September 1887 an order was made in Chambers that the Sheriff should divide rateably the moneys in his hands in suit No. 657 of 1869 between M and V. M appealed, and contended that by the transaction between V and H K the decree in suit No. 657 of 1869 had been extinguished as against the estate of H D., and that the said transaction amounted, in law and fact, to a purchase, on behalf of the estate of H D, of the property attached in the said suits or the proceeds thereof. Held, confirming the order appealed from, that V was entitled to a rateable proportion of the moneys in question. She was only liable under the decree held by the appellant M as the representative of H D. So far as she might have had property of her own, not derived from H D's estate available for the purchase of A K's decree, she stood in the same position as a third party who might have purchased H K's share of the proceeds before they were realized. The purchase of H K's share with her own money could not perjudice M any more than if an entire stranger had purchased. The fact that she borrowed the money and gave the share as a security to the lender did not affect the question. If the money did not come from H D's estate, it could not matter whether it came directly from V's pocket or from another person at her request. If the money was

The District Judge held that the vesting order was a bar to both these applications. Held, that the order rejecting the application for rateable distribution was wrong, and that the High Court had power to set it aside on revision under s. 622 of the Civil Procedure Code. I. Railway Company. On the 5th August 1900 W got a decree in the suit for R2,008, with interest and costs, and on the 13th August 1890 applied for execution. On the 24th September 1890 G made an assignment in favour of his attorneys, Messrs. Wadia and Ghandy, of the fund belonging to him (expressed to be R7,818) in the hands of the Railway Company, subject to the attachment levied on the same by W. This assignment was intended to secure costs incurred by Messrs. Wadia and Ghandy as attorneys for the defendant. Notice of this assignment was at once given to the Railway Company. In February 1891 the Bank of Bengal attached the sum of R7,818 in the hands of the Railway Company, in execution of a decree obtained by the Bank against G in suit 190 of 1890, and subsequently other creditors of G who had obtained judgment against him, applied for execution and obtained attachments on the sum in question. On the 26th May 1891, under a consent order in suit 382 of 1890, the Railway Company paid over to the Sheriff of Bombay the sum of R8,084-1-0, which was the amount admitted by the Company to be due to G, after making all just deductions. It was contended by Messrs. Wadia and Ghandy that, under the above assignment, they were entitled to the fund assigned to them, subject only to the claim of the plaintiff, who had, at the date of assignment, already attached the same fund, and that subsequent attaching creditors had no claim to the said fund. Held, that the fund in question must be regarded as "assets realized by sale, or otherwise, in execution of a decree" within the meaning of s. 295 of the Civil Procedure Code. Held, also, that, under the provision of s. 295, the claims of the subsequent execution-creditors were "claims enforceable under the attachment of the plaintiff within the meaning of s. 276 of the Civil Procedure Code," and that the assignment to Messrs. Wadia and Ghandy was void, as well against the claims of the creditors of G, who applied for execution before the 26th May 1891, as against those of the plaintiff to the fund in the hands of the Sheriff of Bombay. Held, further, that the attachment was not limited merely to such portion of the fund as covered the amount of the decree, but was a valid attachment in the form in which it was made, namely, on the whole fund in the hands of the Railway Company. It was argued that the attachment was actually made only on R6,000, and that it did not therefore include the whole fund which was of larger amount. Held, that the misdescription in the order of attachment was a mere falsa demonstratio and that the entire sum in the hands of the Railway Company was attached. The description of the property must be reasonably accurate, under the circumstances, and such as with reasonable certainty identifies the property. If it is such, it ought to be held sufficient. The villages were subsequently, by order of the District Court, attached, and plaintiff, as receiver representing the mortgagee, then obtained an order that the villages under attachment should be sold free from the mortgage, and that plaintiff should have the same rights against the proceeds of sale as he, as such receiver, had against the property to be sold. Some of the villages were sold accordingly and the amount realized paid into the District Court. The defendant, who had obtained a separate decree against the son alone (the father having meanwhile died) in the same District Court, applied for, and was granted, a rateable distribution of the moneys realized by the sale of the villages attached and sold as aforesaid, towards satisfaction of his decree. On plaintiff bringing a suit for the recovery of the amount so obtained by defendant from the District Court:—Held (i) that the judgment-debtor against whom plaintiff and defendant held decrees was the same within the meaning of s. 295 of the Code of Civil Procedure, it being immaterial that in plaintiff's suit there had been a co-defendant against whom the decree might have been separately executed; and (ii) that the order for sale of the villages under attachment was illegal and invalid in so far as it gave plaintiff the same rights against the proceeds of sale as he had by virtue of the mortgage against the property to be sold. 66. ——— Proceeds of sale how applicable—Priority of holder of unregistered mortgage to holder of money-decree—Transfer of Property Act (IV of 1882), s. 97. The plaintiff held a mortgage of certain land belonging to the first defendant. The mortgage was not registered. The second defendant M was a mortgagee of the same land under a mortgage which was subsequent in date, but was duly registered. M obtained a decree upon this latter mortgage, and applied in execution for sale, of the land. The plaintiff intervened, but his claim was rejected on the ground that M's mortgage was registered and had priority to his mortgage, which was not registered. The land was sold by auction to R (defendant No. 4) and the proceeds of the sale were partly applied in satisfaction of M's claim, and a further sum of R164 was paid to one S (defendant No. 3) who had obtained a money-decree against the mortgagor (defendant No. 1). A balance of R103-8-11 was paid into Court, and subsequently returned to defendant No. 1 (the mortgagor). The plaintiff now sued for payment of his mortgage-debt out of the proceeds of sale or from the defendants. The lower Court held that S could not be called upon to refund the money which had been paid to him out of the proceeds, and that the plaintiff had a cause of action only against the mortgagor (defendant No. 1) not merely for the balance of R103-8-11, but for the whole of his claim. On appeal to the High Court:—Held, that the claim of the plaintiff in virtue of his mortgage, although unregistered was prior to that of S under his money-decree. The plaintiff's earlier mortgage was postponed to that of M, because it was not registered, but the plaintiff had the right of a second mortgagee over the balance in virtue of his mortgage. The proceeds of the sale, after satisfying the first incumbrancer (M), became payable first to the other incumbrancers, if any, and then to the mortgagor (defendant No. 1). S could only take any balance that remained subject to the equitable right of the plaintiff. Their applications were granted, but on appeal, in a suit by the decree-holder who had attached in the lifetime of the judgment-debtor it was held that the attachment enured only for the benefit of the decree-holder who had made it, and that the non-attaching decree-holders were not entitled by virtue of s. 295 of the Code to share in the assets realized by sale under such attachment. Suraj Bansi Koer v. Sheo Proshad Singh, L. II, Art. 13. An order for distribution under s. 295, Civil Procedure Code, is an order in a suit, and as such is excluded from the operation of Art. 13 of Sch. II to the Limitation Act. The scheme of s. 295, Civil Procedure Code, is rather to enable the Judge as a matter of administration to distribute the price according to what seem at the time to be the rights of the parties, and does not import a conclusive adjudication on those rights, which may be re-adjusted subsequently by a suit. A suit for refund of money paid to the defendant under an order of Court made under s. 295, Civil Procedure Code, on the ground that the plaintiff was entitled to it in preference to the defendant, is not a suit to set aside the order of distribution, and does not come within the Limitation Act, Sch. II, Art. 15. Vishnu Bhikaji Phadke v. Achut Jagannath Ghate, I. L. R. 15 Bom. 438, approved. On 4th May 1883, certain villages were mortgaged to S for R15,000. His son Kashinath, as his legal representative, was then placed on the record, and the property of the deceased judgment-debtor Bhau Babaji was then attached and sold in execution. Meantime the applicant, Gobind Abaji, had obtained a decree against "Bhau Babaji, deceased, by his son Kashinath, and against the estate of Bhau Babaji, deceased;" and he applied under s. 295 of the Civil Procedure Code (XIV of 1882) to share rateably in the proceeds of the sale held in execution of the other decree. Held, that the application should be refused. Under s. 295 the money-decrees in respect of which rateable distribution is given must be against the same judgment-debtor. In this case one decree was against Bhau Babaji and the other against his son Kashinath. The fact that the latter decree was expressed to be made against "Bhau Babaji, deceased, by his son Kashinath" made no difference. One decree was against Bhau Babaji himself; the other was against his legal representative. The fact that the second decree was also "against the deceased estate" did not make Bhau Babaji a judgment-debtor under the decree in a suit commenced after his death. The practice hitherto prevailing in the mofussil of making a dead man "by his heir" a party to a suit is erroneous, and should be discontinued. 71. ——— Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV of 1882), s. 295—Rateable distribution of proceeds of execution-sale "Prior to the realisation"—"Same judgment-debtor." The properties of a judgment-debtor were brought to sale, at the instance of one judgment-creditor, in two parcels. After the proceeds of sale of the first parcel had been paid into Court, and before the proceeds of sale of the second parcel had been so paid in, the petitioner (also an execution-creditor) applied under s. 295 of the Code of Civil Procedure for a rateable distribution. Held, that he was entitled to participate in a rateable distribution in the proceeds of sale of both parcels, the assets having been realised, within the meaning of the section, when the whole of the proceeds of the property sold in execution of the decree were paid into Court, and his application having been filed prior to such realisation. Tiruchittambala Chetti v. *Seshayyangar, I. The decree of one of the judgment-creditors above referred to was against a father, whilst the decree of the other judgment-creditor was against the father and his son, but the properties from which the assets had been realised by sale were the ancestral properties of the family of which the father and son were undivided members. Held, that the decrees were "against the same judgment-debtor," for the purposes of s. 295. The transferees thereupon made an application for execution in the Gorakhpur Court, and prayed for a rateable share of the assets which might be realized in execution of a decree held by one Bindesri against the same judgment-debtor. Upon this application the following order was passed:—"The judgment-debtors and the transferers both received notice, but none of them put in an appearance, and no objections were filed. As the prayer in this case is to be allowed a rateable share of the assets in Bindesri Prasad's case, let this case be put with that case." Held, (i) that the Court to which the decree was transferred for execution had no power to entertain the transferees' application for a rateable share in the assets; such application could only be entertained by the Court which passed the decree; (ii) that the order passed by the Gorakhpur Court could not operate as res judicata so as to prevent the judgment-debtors from questioning the right of the transferees to make an application for execution to that Court; and (iii) that the order passed by the executing

In 1891 property which had fallen on partition to the present plaintiff's share was attached and brought to sale in execution of the decree of 1879. land was not liable to be attached in execution of a decree obtained in 1880, it appeared that the decree was passed against the judgment-debtor as karnavan of a Malabar tarwad, and that it was for a debt incurred for purposes binding on the tarwad. In 1882 a partition deed had been come to between the members of the tarwad under which the property in suit had been allotted to the plaintiff. Held, that the state of things when the debt was contracted must be looked to, and at that time the karnavan was competent to bind all the members of the tarwad. Any subsequent arrangement in the family could not affect their obligation to the creditor who was not a party to it. The plaintiff's property therefore was liable notwithstanding the partition. (a) DEATH OF DECREE-HOLDER BEFORE SALE.

1. ——— Effect of decree-holder's death on validity of sale—Civil Procedure Code, 1877, ss. 365, 366—Order confirming sale. A judgment-debtor applied that an execution-sale of property belonging to him should be set aside, as the decree-holder was dead when such sale took place, and such sale was in consequence invalid. This application was disposed of by the Court executing the decree in the presence of the judgment-debtor and the purchaser. The Court held that the fact of such sale having taken place after the decree-holder's death was no ground for setting it aside, and disallowed such application and made an order confirming such sale. Held per PEARSON, J., that the application for execution of the decree abated on the death of the decree-holder, not having been prosecuted by his legal representative, and such sale was under the circumstances improper and invalid, and the order confirming it should be set aside. Per SPANKIE, J., that such sale was not invalid by reason of the decree-holder's death before it took place. The order confirming it, however, was improper, and should be reversed, and the case should be remanded to be dealt with under the provisions of ss. 365 and 366 of Act X of 1877, as the Court executing the decree should have proceeded under those sections. Per OLDFIELD, J. and STRAIGHT, J., that the death of the decree-holder prior to such sale did not render it void. The provisions of ss. 365 and 366 of Act X of 1877 could not be adapted to execution-proceedings. As such sale had been published and conducted according to law, it had properly been confirmed. the property to be attached, and then ceased to prosecute the execution-proceedings. The second mortgagee then obtained a decree for sale of the property, caused it to be attached, and put up for sale and purchased it himself. The first mortgagee then applied for sale and the property was put up for sale and purchased by him. After the order for this sale was made, and before it took place, the judgment-debtor died, and the sale took place without his legal representatives being made parties to the execution-proceedings. Per OLDFIELD, J., that the sale to the first mortgagee was not void because the judgment-debtor had died before it took place, and it took place without his legal representatives being made parties to the execution-proceedings, inasmuch as the provisions of s. 368 of Civil Procedure Code were not applicable to the case of the death of a judgment-debtor, and there was nothing in s. 234, even if that section is applicable to a case where the judgment-debtor dies while execution is proceeding and after sale of his property has been ordered, to imply that the sale is absolutely void if no legal representative has been brought on the record. Dulari v. Mohan Singh, I. L. R. 3 All. 759, and Gulabdas v. Lakshman Narhar, I. L. R. 3 Bom. 221, referred to. Per STRAIGHT, J., that there was no legal obligation on the first mortgagee to resort to the procedure of s. 234 of the Civil Procedure Code, since the sale to the second mortgagee had passed to him the rights and interests of the judgment-debtor, and the legal representatives of the judgment-debtor had none of his property in their hands; and there is no provision in the Code of Civil Procedure which required the first mortgagee to make the second mortgagee a party to the proceedings in execution of the former's decree and the latter could not have successfully objected to the sale in execution of that decree, and therefore that sale was not voided by the death of the judgment-debtor antecedent to its taking place. 3. ——— Death of judgment-debtor after attachment, but before sale in execution—Subsequent sale without legal representative of judgment-debtor being made a party—Effect of such omission on validity of sale—Civil Procedure Code, ss. 234, 311. S. 234 of the Civil Procedure Code applies only to cases where, after the death of the judgment-debtor, the decree-holder seeks to bring to sale property which was of the judgment-debtor in his lifetime, and which was not at the time of his death under attachment, at the suit of the decree-holder. It does not apply to cases where the judgment-debtor dies after attachment, but before sale. An attachment would abate on the death of the judgment-debtor, and his death would not render it necessary for the decree-holder to take any steps to keep in force an attachment of property made in the judgment-debtor's lifetime. Property under attachment must be considered as in the custody of the law. There is no provision in the Civil Procedure Code, requiring notice to be given personally to a judgment-debtor or his legal representative of a sale of property under attachment. If the legal representative is damnified by the sale, his remedy is by application under s. 311 of the Code. So held by the Full Bench (MAHMOOD, J., dissenting). Where, subsequently to the attachment of immoveable property in execution of a simple money-decree, the judgment-debtor died, and the property was then sold without making the legal representatives of the judgment-debtor parties to the sale-proceedings :— Held, by the Full Bench (MAHMOOD, J., dissenting), that the sale was regular and valid notwithstanding such omission. Ramasami Ayyangar v. *Bhagirathiammal, I. 4. ——— Sale without legal representative of judgment-debtor being made a party—Effect of such omission on validity of sale —Civil Procedure Code, 1882, ss. 311 and 316— Right of redemption—Absence of substantial injury. T obtained a decree against one S, and in execution attached certain land which S had previously mortgaged to K. On the 11th June 1877 a warrant for sale was issued followed by the usual proclamation. S died on the 27th September 1877, and a few days afterwards, viz., on the 3rd October 1877, the sale took place without any notice being given to D who was the heir and legal representative of S, who, however, came to know of it shortly after. T, the decree-holder, purchased the land at the sale, and in 1883 sold it to A, who redeemed the mortgage from K and took possession. In 1889 D, as heir and legal representative of S, brought this suit claiming to redeem the mortgage. She made K (original mortgagee) and A (the purchaser) parties to the suit. She contended that the sale in execution was bad, having taken place after the death of the judgment-debtor and without his legal representative having been placed on the record. Held, that the plaintiff was not entitled to redeem. Per JARDINE, J.—As no " substantial injury " was alleged to have resulted by reason of the plaintiff not having been brought on the record of the execution-proceedings immediately on the death of the judgment-debtor and before the sale took place, the purchaser acquired a valid title under s. 316 of the Code of Civil Procedure. Per RANADE, J.—The omission to join the name of the representative of the deceased judgment-debtor as a party to the record was a material irregularity and a serious defect in the title of the auction-purchaser. But this irregularity did not vitiate the sale under the special circumstances of the present case, viz., that the plaintiff had taken no step to set aside the sale, although she came to know of the sale within a few days after it took place ; that there was no fraud or mala fides on the part of the judgment-creditor ; that the sale had not resulted in any substantial injury to the plaintiff ; and that the auction-purchaser and his assignee had been in adverse possession for more than twelve years. After the decree was made absolute, proceedings were taken in execution, but upon payment of a part of the decretal amount the sale was stayed. M then died, and, although her heirs were some of the other judgment-debtors, no one was brought on the record as her representative, and no one appointed guardian ad litem either for J or K. Upon a fresh application for sale in which the parties were described as in the decree, the sale was held. An application under s. 311 of the Civil Procedure Code (1882) was then made on behalf of J and K to set aside the sale. Held, that the omission to bring in the representatives of the deceased judgment-debtor did not vitiate the sale. Sheo Prasad v. *Hira Lal, I. (previously attached) owing by H and W to the judgment-debtor was made in execution in two decrees, and on 4th May 1895 a sale proclamation for 20th idem was issued. On the 11th May the judgment-debtor died leaving a will, of which W was one of the executors. W brought these circumstances to the notice of the Court stating that the executors would proceed to apply for probate and asking for an adjournment of the sale. The adjournment was refused and the sale proceeded, and the decree-holders, who had previously agreed with H and W to sell the debt to them for the amount of the purchase-money, purchased the debt for R30,000, the estate of the judgment-debtor being unrepresented. The Administrator-General, to whom the administration of the estate of the judgment-debtor was afterwards transferred, applied to be brought on to the record and to have the sale set aside. Held, that the sale was vitiated by the omission to bring the legal representative of the judgment-debtor on to the record, and should be set aside on the application of the Administrator-General, no separate suit being necessary for the purpose. Sheo Prasad v. *Hira Lal, I. On the 27th June 1877 one H obtained a money-decree against N, but before it could be executed, N died leaving all his property to his daughters, the plaintiffs. On the 22nd November 1878 H applied for execution against N, deceased, by his heir and nephew R. R appeared and stated that he was not the heir, but that the heirs of N were his daughters, the plaintiffs. The plaintiffs, however, were not made parties to the execution-proceedings, nor were notices served on them under s. 248 of the Civil Procedure Code (Act X of 1877). The execution-proceedings were continued, and the mortgaged property was sold on the 9th June 1880, and was bought by the defendant (the mortgagee) subject to his mortgage. The sale was confirmed, and a certificate of sale was duly issued to the defendant, who got formal possession on the 11th October 1880, he being already in possession as mortgagee. In 1889 the plaintiffs sued the defendant to redeem the mortgage. FARRAN, C.J., and PARSONS, J., who differed in opinions, FARRAN, C.J., holding that the sale-proceedings were not absolutely null and void by reason of the want of notice of execution to the representatives, but they were valid until set aside by a suit brought for that purpose, which suit had never been brought, and that the plaintiffs had therefore lost their right to redeem, and PARSONS, J., being of opinion that the sale was null and void, and therefore that the plaintiffs were entitled to succeed. The case was then referred to three other Judges of the Court. Held, by CANDY and JARDINE, JJ., that even assuming that the execution-proceedings and sale had conveyed an absolute title to the purchaser, the present suit, which was brought within twelve years of the sale, did in effect challenge the sale, and that the plaintiffs were therefore entitled to redeem. Held, by RANADE, J., that in respect of the plaintiffs who were not parties, the sale-proceedings were invalid and null, and without jurisdiction; that the auction-purchaser acquired no rights under his certificate of sale as against these legal representatives, and that as against them he could only claim title by adverse possession not falling short of twelve years. As the present suit was admittedly brought within that period, it was maintainable. ERAVA v. SIDRAMAPPA PASARE . I. L. R. 21 Bom. 424

Held, by the Privy Council on appeal (reversing the decision of the High Court).—An execution-sale cannot be treated as nullity if the Court which sells has jurisdiction to do so; and it cannot be set aside as irregular without an issue raised for that purpose and investigation made with the judgment-creditor as a party thereto, nor under s. 311 of the Code of Civil Procedure and art. 12 (a) of the Limitation Act, 1877, after one year from the date thereof. An executive Court does not lose jurisdiction to sell because it serves notice on a person who does not represent the deceased judgment-debtor, and afterwards erroneously decides that who does. money secured by the mortgage of immoveable property situate within the limits of the district of Benares, and of immoveable property situate within the limits of the family domains of the Maharajah of Benares. The Subordinate Judge had not jurisdiction to proceed with this suit in so far as it related to the latter property, and he was authorized to proceed with it, under the provisions s. 13 of Act VIII of 1859, by the High Court in concurrence with the Board of Revenue. He accordingly proceeded with the suit, and on the 18th November 1874 gave the plaintiffs a decree for the recovery of the money claimed by the sale of the mortgaged property. With a view to bring the mortgaged property situate within the limits of the family domains of the Maharajah of Benares to sale, this decree was sent for execution to the Subordinate Judge at Kondh, within whose jurisdiction such property was situate; and such property was sold in the execution of this decree on the 29th August and the 4th September 1877. Subsequently the defendants in the present suit, who held decrees for money against H, one of the plaintiffs in the suit abovementioned, applied to the Subordinate Judge of Benares for the attachment and sale of H's interest in the decree abovementioned, falsely representing that the sales in execution of that decree of the 29th August and 4th September 1877 had been set aside. Such interest was accordingly put up for sale on the 29th May 1878 at Benares by the Subordinate Judge of Benares, and was purchased by the plaintiffs in the present suit, who were induced to purchase by such false representation. The plaintiffs in the present suit claimed the avoidance of the sale of the 29th May 1878 and the refund of the purchase-money, on the ground that they were induced to purchase by such false representation, and on the ground that the sale of the interest of H in the decree of the 18th November 1874, being of the nature of immoveable property situate within the limits of the family domains of the Maharajah of Benares, could not legally be sold at Benares by the Benares Court. Held, that such false representation must be held to constitute in law such fraud as vitiated the sale of the 29th May 1878. Also that the Benares Court acted ultra vires in selling at Benares an interest in immoveable property situate within the family domains of the Maharajah of Benares. 16. ——— Gift in fraud of creditors—Subsequent sale by creditors in execution of subject-matter of gift—Purchase at execution-sale for inadequate price by means of fraud—Suit by donee to set aside sale for fraud—Rescission when granted. In June 1875, A being in pecuniary difficulties executed a deed of gift of all his property in favour of his wife and minor sons, the plaintiffs. B, one of his then existing creditors, subsequently obtained a decree against him, and in execution sold part of the said property. At the sale the first defendant by means of false representation became the purchaser at an inadequate price. In July 1879 A applied to have the sale set aside on the ground of the fraud of the first defendant, but his application was rejected. In 1884, the plaintiffs by their next friend sued to set aside the sale, contending that at the date of B's decree the property was theirs by virtue of the deed of gift of June 1875, and further that the sale was void by reason of the defendant's fraud. Held, rejecting the plaintiffs' claim, that the plaintiffs could not be allowed to set up their deed of gift as against the proceedings in execution under which the defendant acquired his title as purchaser. That gift was made to them by A when he was in pecuniary difficulties, and included all A's property. It was therefore void as against his then existing creditors, of whom B was one. B was therefore entitled to sell the property in execution of his decree. Held, also, that the plaintiffs were not entitled to set aside the sale on the ground of fraud, and that the only remedy, if any, open to them was a suit for damages. The gift by A in 1875 was made to his wife as well as to the plaintiffs (his sons), and it gave them the property as tenants-in-common. The plaintiffs were therefore only owners of their respective shares, and were not entitled to have the sale set aside in toto. This, however, was what they sued for in their plaint. A's wife could not now join in rescinding the sale, as she must have known in 1879 of the fraud, her husband having immediately after the sale endeavoured to set aside the sale on that ground. A transaction cannot generally be rescinded unless the party seeking it is able to rescind it in toto, except where the transaction is severable. HORMUSJI v. COWASJI I. L. R. 13 Bom. 297

21. ——— Effect on validity of sale. Beng. Reg. XX of 1795—Title of purchaser. Regulation XX of 1795 directed that, when any Court of civil judicature should have occasion to sell lands in execution of a decree, it should transmit a copy thereof to the Board of Revenue, which was with all practicable despatch to cause the lands to be disposed of at the presidency, or in the district in which the lands were situated, as they might deem most advantageous to the proprietor. In 1843 a copy of a decree was transmitted for execution to the Board of Revenue in compliance with the regulation, but no sale was then effected. Afterwards two other futile attempts to sell the lands under the decree were made, and then the decree-holder sold the lands to a third party upon whose application the decree was executed by the sale of the lands of the judgment-debtor under it by order of the Court, and without any further recourse to the Revenue Board. Previous to such sale, the proceedings had been taken off the file, and the number of villages, owing to some inaccuracy, was differently stated in the later order, and the total sum was increased by adding the interest which had accrued due between the two orders. Held, that the purchaser at the sale acquired a good title; for it would be contrary to general principles, and a senseless addition to all the vexations of delay in the course of procedure, to hold that when for any reason, satisfactory or not, the execution of a final decree in a suit fails or is set aside and the proceedings as regards that execution are taken off the file, the whole suit is discontinued thereby, and the further proceedings for the same purpose were to be considered as taken in a new suit. Nor was it true in any material sense that either the properties to be sold or the sums to be recovered were different; and the principal object of the regulation being the security of public revenues, that object had been fully answered by the communication to the Commissioner in 1843, and the proceedings which were taken by him upon it. 26. ——— Reversal of decree on appeal before confirmation of sale—Purchaser, right of. Plaintiff's title to certain land in dispute was derived from the purchaser at a Court's sale, under a decree which was reversed on appeal subsequently to the sale before it had been confirmed. Held, that the Court which had made the decree ceased, from the moment of the reversal, to have jurisdiction to take any further steps to execute the decree. Though the Court, when it confirmed the sale, was probably not informed that its decree had been reversed, and the purchaser was probably ignorant of it, yet the act of the Court in completing the sale was none the less without jurisdiction, and, being without jurisdiction, could confer no title. If a decree be reversed after a sale under it has become absolute, and a certificate has been granted to the purchaser, the title of the purchaser is not affected by the reversal of the decree. A purchaser is bound to satisfy himself as to the jurisdiction of a Court to order a sale, and this obligation continues until the sale is completed. Before he applies to the Court to confirm the sale and grant him a certificate, the purchaser ought to ascertain that the decree under which the sale was ordered is still in existence. After the confirmation of the sale, the decree was set aside under s. 108 of the Civil Procedure Code at the instance of some of the defendants in the original suit. On an application under s. 244 of the Civil Procedure Code having been made by a prior purchaser of the said properties in execution of another decree, to set aside the sale held in execution of the ex parte decree, the defence was that the application could not come under s. 244 of the Civil Procedure Code, and that the sale could not be set aside, as it had been confirmed. Held, that the case was one under s. 244 of the Civil Procedure Code; and that the ex parte decree having been set aside, the sale could not stand, inasmuch as the decree-holder himself was the purchaser. Doyamoyi Dasi v. *Sarat Chunder Mozoomdar, I. Subsequently a compromise of the questions at issue in the suit was come to between R and M, one of the terms of which was that R gave up his claim to costs. Satisfaction of the decree was not entered up in Court. In 1884 K, purporting to be acting on behalf of R, but without his knowledge or sanction, applied for execution of the decree for costs and in the execution-proceedings which followed a share of M in a tank was sold and purchased by A. M thereupon brought a suit against A, R, K, and others to set aside the sale, alleging that the whole of the execution-proceedings had been taken without notice to him, and had been fraudulently taken by the defendants in collusion with one another in order to deprive him of his share in the tank. It was found that A's purchase was an innocent one and untainted with fraud. Held, upon the authority

(g) DECREES AGAINST WRONG PERSONS.

43. ——— Right to have sale set aside where decree was against wrong person as representatives—Subsequent claim by proper representative—Estoppel—Quiescence. One S died indebted to the second defendant, M. On his death his widow, T, became his heir, as he left neither son nor brother surviving. In 1878 M brought a suit to enforce payment of the debt due by the deceased S, and he made B, the mother of S, defendant in the suit, omitting T altogether. On 30th August 1878 M obtained an ex parte decree, and on the 26th July 1880 the house of S, then in the possession of B, was sold in execution, and the first defendant, R, purchased it. On 6th September 1880 the sale was confirmed, and on 26th November 1880 R was put into possession. On the 10th of December 1880 one S presented a petition on behalf, as he alleged, of the plaintiff T, the widow of S, to set aside the sale. He did not produce any authority from her, and his application was rejected on the 14th June 1881. On the 31st October 1878 T adopted the plaintiff B under an authority, as she alleged, of her deceased husband S. In 1881 T filed the present suit on behalf of her adopted son, B, to set aside the sale and to recover the house. Held, that the plaintiff was entitled to have the sale set aside and to recover possession of the house. The estate was vested in T as legal representative of her deceased husband. Had T wilfully put forward B as the representative of S so as to deceive and mislead M, then, no doubt, she might be held bound by the decree obtained by the latter against B. Her mere quiescence, while M wilfully sued the wrong person, could not affect her legal rights, or deprive her adopted son, the plaintiff B, of his rights. He could not be bound by a suit and sale to which he was not a party either in person or by representation. BASWANTAPA SHIDAPA v. RANU I. L. R. 9 Bom. 86

Land belonging to the tarwad was attached and sold in execution, an objection by the other members of the tarwad having been overruled. After the sale, the decree was amended and brought into conformity with the judgment. In a suit brought by other members of the tarwad against the karnavan, the decree-holder and the execution-purchaser, it was found that the judgment-debt had been contracted for proper tarwad purposes, and that the land had been sold for its proper value. Held, that the sale was binding on the plaintiffs. 51. ——— Sale under attachment during subsistence of prior attachment—Saleable interest. In execution of a decree obtained on the 15th August 1876 the property of the judgment-debtor was attached on the 17th August 1877. The sale of the attached property was postponed, pending a suit instituted under the direction of the Court by a claimant to the attached property. This suit having been dismissed on the 13th September 1878, the decree-holder on the 25th September applied for a sale of the property, and the 16th December was fixed for the sale. Meanwhile, on the 13th December 1877, a decree had been obtained by another party against the judgment-debtor, and in execution of this decree the same property was attached on the 13th September 1878, and under this attachment a sale took place on the 15th November following. On the 16th December, as fixed, the property was again sold under the first attachment. In 1878 plaintiff's father and others then enjoying the annuity executed a bond for money due by them, mortgaging their rights under the said annuity. Instalments due under the bond having fallen into arrears, a suit was brought in 1889 in respect of them, and a decree obtained, which contained a provision that the right to the annuity should be liable to be proceeded against for the amount so due. Plaintiff was born in 1891. In 1893 an application was made for the issue of a proclamation of sale, and a sale ensued and a certificate was given to the purchaser, who was the decree-holder. Plaintiff having instituted this suit to set aside the said sale or to have it declared that it did not affect his right under the said annuity:—Held, that, inasmuch as the decree was, on its true construction, not a decree for sale, the case was one of attached property being sold at the instance of the mortgagee in execution of a money-decree, and so within the prohibition of s. 99 of the Transfer of Property Act. The conditions under which a sale of mortgaged property is permissible under that section are not satisfied unless there is a decree for sale; and in the absence of such decree, the sale is prohibited; that although a sale in contravention of the section is not absolutely void for all purposes, it is at least void against all persons who were not parties to the suit in which the decree for money was obtained; that the rights of a Hindu debtor's son may be concluded by a proper mortgage decree and sale thereunder, or, if there is no mortgage, by a decree for money and sale of the attached property, but they are not affected by a sale brought about in defiance of s. 99; that the suit was not barred by s. 244 of the Code of Civil Procedure; and that plaintiff was entitled to a decree for the redemption of his share. and on the 5th September 1887 attached the share of A in a certain jumma. The share was subsequently sold in execution of the plaintiff's decree on the 20th October 1887 and purchased by the plaintiff himself. Y, having obtained another decree against A in the Court of the First Munsif of Bagirhat on the 6th May 1875, sold his decree in the month of January or February 1887 to the defendant, who on the 10th February 1887 commenced execution-proceedings in the First Munsif's Court against A, and on the 16th July applied for attachment of A's share in the jumma. A filed an objection which was disallowed, and the share was attached at the defendant's instance on the 28th July 1887, and the attachment was confirmed on appeal on the 26th November 1887. The plaintiff, on the strength of his purchase of the 20th October 1887, put in a claim in the month of April 1888 in the defendant's execution-proceedings in the Court of the First Munsif, which was, however, disallowed. He then filed a suit to set aside the order disallowing his claim, and for a declaration that the right, title, and interest of A passed to him under the sale of the 20th October 1887. Held, that, though the property had been first attached in the Court of the First Munsif, that Court was not a Court of a higher grade than that of the Second Munsif within the meaning of s. 285 of the Code of Civil Procedure, and that the sale to the plaintiff was valid, and that he was entitled to the decree he prayed for. Bykant Nath Shaha v, *Rajendra Narain Rai, I. 70. ——— Civil Procedure Code, 1882, s. 285—Money attached in execution in two Courts—"Court of highest grade"—Munsif's Court—Small Cause Court. In the North-Western Provinces the Court of a Munsif must, for the purposes of s. 285 of the Code of Civil Procedure, be regarded as of a higher grade than a Court of Small Causes. So held by EDGE, C.J., TYRRELL, BURKITT and AIKMAN, JJ. (KNOX, J., dissentiente). Per KNOX, J.—The respective functions of a Munsif's Court and of a Court of Small Causes in the North-Western Provinces are such that the Courts do not admit of the comparison implied by the term "grade" being instituted between them for the purposes of s. 285 of the Code of Civil Procedure. 71. ——— Attachment and proclamation of sale in execution of decree of Small Cause Court—Subsequent application for execution of decree of first class Surbordinate Judge—Civil Procedure Code, 1882, s. 285—Sale by inferior Court of property while under attachment issued by superior Court. G obtained a decree against M in the Small Cause Court of Surat, and in execution he attached a debt due to M and a proclamation of sale was duly issued. Before the sale took place, however, one K applied to the First Class Subordinate Judge for execution of a decree which he had obtained against N in that Judge's Court, and the same debt was then attached. The proceedings, however, under the Small Cause Court decree were continued, and the debt was sold in execution and was purchased by the applicant. Held, following Naranji Mororji v. Haridas Navalram, I. L. R. 18 Bom. 458, that the sale by the Small Cause Court was not rendered invalid by the subsequent proceeding in the First Class Subordinate Judge's Court. The term "grade" in s. 285 of the Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV of 1882) has the same meaning as it had in s. 5 of the Code (Act VIII of 1859)—that is, it depends upon "the pecuniary or other limitations" of the jurisdiction of the particular Court, and therefore, as s. 285 is applicable to Small Cause Courts, the Small Cause Court is inferior in grade to the Court of the First Class Subordinate Judge. He applied (darkhast of 1893) for execution, but V, on the 19th April 1893, obtained permission, under s. 305 of the Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV of 1882), to raise the amount of the decree by private sale on or before the 6th June 1893, the day fixed for the sale. She obtained a certificate of leave under s. 305. Another decree was obtained against V in the Court of the First Class Subordinate Judge at Belgaum by one R, and he attached in execution (darkhast 351 of 1892) the same lands which were already attached by the Saundatti Court. From the Belgaum Court, however, V also obtained a certificate under s. 305 of the Civil Procedure Code, on 22nd April 1893, authorizing a private sale. Relying on these two certificates, V sold the lands under attachment to the applicant A for R2,000 by deed dated 25th May 1893. On the 28th June 1893 A applied to the First Class Subordinate Judge in Belgaum, under s. 305 of the Civil Procedure Code, for confirmation of the sale, and that the purchase-money paid by him should be distributed as follows, viz., R518-14-2 in satisfaction of the decree of the Belgaum Court, R128-7-10 in satisfaction of the decree of the Saundatti Court, and the balance, R1,352-10-0, to be paid to V. The Court of Belgaum granted the application, and directed that the above sum of R128-7-10 should be paid into the Court of Saundatti. On the 17th July 1893 A applied to the Court at Saundatti to confirm the sale already confirmed by the Belgaum Court, and he brought into Court the said sum of R128-7-10. On the 19th June 1893, while the above proceedings were going on, a third decree-holder (the opponent) had applied to the Second Class Subordinate Judge at Saundatti for execution of his decree. He objected to the confirmation of the sale applied for by the applicant. The Subordinate Judge allowed the objection and refused confirmation of the sale. The applicant then applied to the High Court under its extraordinary jurisdiction. Held, that the Judge of the Belgaum Court had concurrent jurisdiction to sell and confirm the sale notwithstanding the execution and leave to sale by the Saundatti Court. The application to the Saundatti Court by A was therefore superfluous and ought to have been rejected, inasmuch as the sale had already been confirmed by a competent Court (viz., the Court of Belgaum), and nothing further remained to be done in regard to it. Courts—Titles of the respective purchasers at such sales—Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV of 1882), s. 285. A and B obtained decrees against C. A's decree was obtained in the Court of the Subordinate Judge at Surat. B's decree was obtained in the Small Cause Court at Surat. In execution of their respective decrees, both A and B obtained orders of attachment on the same day of a certain debt due to C by the Municipality of Surat. Notice of the attachment was given by the Subordinate Judge to the Small Cause Court, under s. 285 of the Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV of 1882). On the 16th November 1893 the Subordinate Judge issued an order for sale of the attached debt, and on the 18th December the Small Cause Court issued a similar order. Both Courts sold the debt on the 6th January 1894, the Small Cause Court selling first in point of time. At the sale by the Subordinate Judge the plaintiff bought the debt and the defendant was the purchaser at the sale by the Small Cause Court. The defendant, after his purchase, sued the Municipality for the debt, making the plaintiff a party defendant, and he obtained a decree against the Municipality. The plaintiff also sued the Municipality, making the defendant a party, and he also obtained a decree which was confirmed by the District Court. Against this decree the defendant appealed to the High Court. Held, that the plaintiff had the better title. The defendant had bought at the sale held by the Small Cause Court. The sale by that Court after it had received notice of the attachment proceedings in the Court of the Subordinate Judge was in direct contravention of the provisions of s. 285 of the Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV of 1882). The Small Cause Court had full notice of the proceedings in the Subordinate Judge's Court, and there was no reason to suppose that the defendant himself had not similar knowledge. The defendant did not set up the plea that he was a bonâ fide purchaser without notice. Per FARRAN, C.J.—The sale by the Small Cause Court was an act done in the irregular exercise of admitted jurisdiction. But when property is attached by more Courts than one, although each has jurisdiction to sell, that jurisdiction should be exercised by the Court of the highest grade (s. 285). If by a mistake of law, or in ignorance of an earlier attachment in a Court of higher grade, a Court of lower grade proceeds to sale, it is not deprived of jurisdiction to do so by s. 285. The jurisdiction of a Court cannot depend upon its knowledge of facts. If an attachment in a higher Court deprives a Court of lower grade of jurisdiction to sell, the sale must be, I apprehend, invalid, whether the Court of lower grade knows of it or not. If the sale is held to be in such cases only irregular, the purchaser will take an indefeasible or defeasible title according to whether he knows or does not know of the irregularity. If he buys bonâ fide and without notice, his title would be perfect, and he will not be affected by the irregularity of the proceedings in the sale. Rewa Mahton v. *Ram Kishen, L. R. 13 I. At the same time the defendant R had a decree for costs against B and his heirs in the Court of the Subordinate Judge of Monghyr, and in execution thereof attached the same property on the 4th February 1891, and sold it on the 24th August 1891, i.e., about four months after the sale of the property by the Munsif. The plaintiff sued for possession on the ground that, having purchased the property of B before the second sale by the Subordinate Judge, she was entitled to the property. The defendant contended that the sale by the Munsif of the property under attachment by a Court of a higher grade was absolutely void, and the Munsif had no jurisdiction to sell the property under s. 285 of the Civil Procedure Code. Held, that the sale by the Munsif was not without jurisdiction, and that it conveyed to the plaintiff a valid title to the property. S. 285 of the Civil Procedure Code is merely a section for procedure to prevent different claims arising out of the attachment and sale of the same property by different Courts. Bykant Nath Shaha v. *Rajendra Narain Rai, I. of decree-holder. G A obtained a decree against M. Afterwards L N, who had obtained a decree against G A, attached the decree which he (G A) had obtained against M, and upon sale in execution, became himself the purchaser of that decree. It afterwards appeared that the decree held by L N against G A was barred by limitation. Held, that the execution of L N's decree against G A, being barred by lapse of time at the time of sale, the sale was invalid. This application was unsuccessfully opposed by the judgment-debtor on the ground that execution was barred by limitation. Certain properties of the judgment-debtor were attached and sold in execution of this decree, the judgment-creditor himself becoming the purchaser. In due course the sale was confirmed, and a certificate granted to the purchaser. Subsequently to this, the order granting execution came up before the High Court on appeal, and that Court decided that execution was barred. The person who had been the judgment-debtor then brought a regular suit against the purchaser to recover the properties sold in execution. Held, that he was entitled to have the sale set aside by regular suit. Jan Ali v. Jan Ali Chowdhry, 1 B. II, Art. 165. A person purchased certain property at a sale in execution of a decree in November 1878; his purchase was confirmed, and he obtained a certificate of sale on the 23rd May 1879, from which date he remained in possession. The judgment-debtor applied to have the sale set aside for irregularity, but his application was dismissed both at the hearing and on appeal. He had applied, before the sale took place, to stay the sale, on the ground that the right to apply for execution was barred. This application was dismissed, but was allowed on appeal. It did not appear that the auction-purchaser was a party to the proceedings, or that he was cognizant of the application. Two years from the date of the sale and one and-a-half years from its confirmation, the judgment-debtor, on a summary application, obtained an order setting aside the sale and putting the auction-purchaser out of possession. Held, that the order was erroneous, the Subordinate Judge having no power, after the sale had been confirmed, to set aside the sale by a summary order. The words "subsisting decree," in s. 316 of Act X of 1877, as amended by Act XII of 1879,mean a decree und reversed and in full force, and not merely one upon which execution cannot be issued. In the matter of the petition of MAHOMED HOSSEIN v. KOKI SINGH . I. The decree-holder applied for a fresh sale, and at a second sale, held pending the appeal, purchased the property and obtained possession. On appeal to the High Court the first sale was upheld, and an order passed confirming the sale. In a suit by the decree-holder purchaser at the second sale :—Held, that the effect of plaintiff's not being made a party to the appeal is practically the same as if he had not been a party to the suit. Held, also, that the plaintiff was not a party to the subsequent proceedings and could not be said to have bid at the sale with the effect of those proceedings hanging over his head. Jan Ali v. *Jan Ali Chowdhry, 1 B. In the meantime an eight-anna share of the said property was sold in execution of a money-decree and was purchased by R on the 22nd May 1893. On the 10th September 1895 the judgment-debtor applied to set aside the mortgage-sale under s. 311 of the Code of Civil Procedure, and on the 14th September 1895 a similar application was made by R. On the 28th March 1896 both these applications came on for hearing before the Subordinate Judge, who passed no order ; and on the same date R presented a petition asking the Court to set aside the sale held in execution of the mortgage-decree, upon payment by him of the mortgage-money, with interest and costs, and also to declare that he might be entitled to redeem the property. On the 30th March 1895 the Subordinate Judge allowed the petition and ordered the sale to be set aside upon the aforesaid terms. Held, that, inasmuch as under s. 312 of the Code of Civil Procedure A was entitled to have an order confirming the sale of the 16th August 1895, unless the sale were set aside under s. 310A or s. 311 of the Code of Civil Procedure, and as the sale was not set aside under either of those sections, the Court below had no jurisdiction to set aside the sale upon payment by the applicant of the mortgage-money with interest and costs. Birj Mohun Thakur v. *Uma Nath Chowdhry, I. s. 310A, and that before the sale could be set aside it was necessary for the judgment-debtor to pay, in addition to what he deposited, a sum equal to 5 per cent. of the purchase-money :—Held, that, when the amount payable by the judgment-debtor under s. 310A of the Code of Civil Procedure has been calculated by an officer of the Court and has been deposited, an order setting aside the sale must be made by the Court as a matter of right; the Munsif therefore was justified in setting aside the sale. *Ugrah Lall v. 7. _____ Actual receipt of sale-proceeds by decree-holder necessary to set aside a sale—Civil Procedure Code, 1882, s. 310A as amended by Act V of 1894. The words in cl. (b) of s. 310A of the Code of Civil Procedure as amended by Act V of 1894—"less any amount which may, since the date of such proclamation of sale, have been received by the decree-holder"—contemplate an actual receipt of the amount by the decree-holder. A mere payment of the sale-proceeds into Court does not satisfy the requirements of the section. A proclamation of sale ordered that for the recovery of R843-9-9 certain immoveable property belonging to the judgment-debtor should be sold in two lots, A and B. Lot A was sold for R420, and on the next day lot B was sold for R584. The judgment-debtor afterwards paid into Court R452-13-0, and applied to have the sale of lot B set aside alleging that he had purchased lot A through a third party, and that the sale-proceeds had been paid into Court. Held, that the mere payment of the sale-proceeds into Court was not a sufficient compliance with the requirements of s. 310A of the Code of Civil Procedure, and as it had not been shown that the sale-proceeds had been received by the decree-holder, the sale could not be set aside. property was sold and purchased by A, the decree-holder himself; an application for setting aside the sale was made by the judgment-debtor B to the Court which sold the property, upon the ground that the sale proceedings were vitiated by fraud on the part of the decree-holder in the conduct of the sale. The Subordinate Judge found that there was fraud, and set aside the sale as bad in law. On appeal this order was confirmed by the District Judge, who, however, expressed no opinion on the question of fraud. On second appeal it was contended that the sale could not be set aside under s. 312 unless it was found that there was fraud. Held, that, if the application of the judgment-debtor be regarded as one under s. 311 of the Code of Civil Procedure, it would be necessary to come to some conclusion or other upon the question of fraud, and unless it is found that the fraud came to the knowledge of the judgment-debtor within thirty days before the date of his application, the sale could not be set aside under s. 312 of the Code. That having regard to the provisions of ss. 162 and 163 of the Bengal Tenancy Act, nothing but the tenure in default could have been sold, and that the sale of the claim which the judgment-debtor had against the decree-holder was altogether bad. The Judge required her to give security for the proceeds of the sale before he would allow actual possession to be given to her. The sale was confirmed, but several months elapsed before she found security, and meanwhile the same lands were attached and purchased by other creditors under another decree against the said debtor, and possession was given to them. Held (reversing the decision of the High Court), that the title of the plaintiff must prevail. The security was ordered for the protection of the lunatic against misappropriation by his manager; it was not a proceeding affecting the judgment-debtor. belonging to the defendant A. A, having succeeded in enhancing the rent of the tenure, obtained a decree for arrears of rent at the enhanced rate, which she proceeded to execute in 1880. In 1881 she obtained another decree for arrears of rent of a subsequent period, in execution of which the tenure was put up to auction and sold for Rs. 15,000 on 20th July 1881, A herself being the purchaser. Before this sale was confirmed, the tenure was, on 20th September 1881, again put up for sale in execution of the first decree, and was purchased by A for Rs. 10. The plaintiff and C and D applied to have both sales set aside on the ground of irregularity. The application as regarded the sale of 20th September 1881 was rejected on 30th December 1881, and this order was confirmed by the High Court on 14th August 1882 and (on review) 21st March 1883. Meanwhile the sale of the 20th July 1881 was set aside by the order of the Subordinate Judge on 19th June 1882. In a suit against A, B (the agent of A), C, and D, brought on the 20th March 1884, in which the plaintiff prayed that the sale of 20th September 1881 "be declared ineffectual and be set aside, and that the plaintiff do recover possession of the property:"—Held, that the suit being not one to set aside the sale on the ground of fraud or anything connected with the sale itself, but on account of the setting aside of the first sale, which took place long after the second sale had been confirmed, and when no execution-proceedings were pending in which it was possible for the plaintiff to raise the question, the suit would lie. Saroda Churn Chuckerbutty v. Mahomed Isuf Meah, I. L. R. 11 Calc. 376, distinguished. Held, also, that the first sale, not having been set aside at the time of the the sale, was at that time, although it had not been confirmed, a good and effectual sale to pass the property as against the plaintiff and C and D, so that there was nothing left to pass under the second sale. In the interval between the sale and the confirmation of sale there is not merely a contract for sale, but an inchoate transfer of title which only requires confirmation to protect it; a sale actually takes place which, if not made absolute, must be set aside. Saroda Prosad Mullick v. *Luchmeeput Singh Doogur, 14 Moo. the High Court on appeal is bound to interfere and to see that objections which by law the appellant is empowered to make are heard and determined before a sale of his property is confirmed or becomes absolute. An application under s. 311 of the Civil Procedure Code, on behalf of a judgment-debtor, who was a minor, was rejected on the ground that the applicant did not legally represent the minor and the Court thereupon confirmed the sale. A second application to the same effect was then filed on behalf of the minor by his guardian, and was rejected on the ground that the Court had already confirmed the sale, and was precluded from entertaining objections after such confirmation, prior to which no proper application of objection had been filed. From this order the judgment-debtor appealed. Held, that the appeal must be considered to be one from an order under the first paragraph of s. 312 of the Civil Procedure Code, confirming the sale after disallowing the appellant's objection, and that it would therefore lie. Held, that, assuming the first application on the minor's behalf to have been rightly rejected, the second was made by a duly authorized guardian, and with regard to s. 7 of the Limitation Act (XV of 1877) was not barred by limitation; the judgment-debtor had therefore a right to make it, and the Court should have entertained and dealt with it before proceeding to confirm the sale or grant a sale certificate. The order disallowing the application and the order confirming the sale were set aside, and the case remanded for disposal of the appellant's objections. Phoolbas Koonwur v. *Jogeshur Sahoy, I. L. Thereupon A made an application to the District Judge to set aside the said sale under s. 311. Held, that, inasmuch as A was not entitled to come in and share in the rateable distribution of assets under s. 295, he was not the "decree-holder" within the meaning of s. 311, and had therefore no locus standi to make an application under that section. Matungini Dassi v. *Monmotha Nath Bose, 4 C. (a) GENERAL CASES—contd.

26. ——— Fraud—Sale in execution of decree fraudulently obtained—Fraud—Innocent purchaser—Purchase for valuable consideration—Inadequacy of price—Suit to set aside sale. An ex parte decree was fraudulently obtained by the first defendant against the plaintiff, and in execution certain land of the plaintiffs, worth R 2,000, was sold by auction, and was purchased by the second defendant for R400. The plaintiff sued to set aside the sale and to recover possession of the land. The facts found by the lower Courts were (i) that the decree was obtained by fraud, (ii) and that the property was sold at a considerable undervalue. The purchaser had no knowledge of the fraud: Held, dismissing the suit, that the plaintiff was not entitled, as against the purchaser (defendant 2), to have the sale set aside. When property is sold in execution of a decree fraudulently obtained, mere inadequacy of price, apart from participation in or knowledge of the fraud, is not in itself a circumstance sufficient to justify the setting aside of the sale. Abdool Hye v. *Nawab Raj, 9 W. 27. ——— Gift—Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV of 1882), s. 310A—Application to set aside a sale—Gift of the land prior to attachment—Effect of sale—Applicability of the section. Certain land was attached under a decree and sold. Application was thereupon made by a person, who claimed as donee of the land from the judgment-debtor, to have the sale set aside under s. 310A of the Code of Civil Procedure. It was alleged that the gift had been made prior to the date of attachment. Held, that the interest of the donee (assuming his gift to be valid) could not be affected by the subsequent attachment and sale, and that, in consequence, he could not see to set the sale aside under s. 310A. If the gift had been made while the property was under attachment, the sale would have been binding on the donee, who, in consequence, could have applied under s. 310A. Anyone whose interest in immoveable property is bound by a sale may apply under s. 310A, though he be no party to the suit or to the decree under which the sale took place. II, Art. 12—Appellate Court, order of—Second appeal—Exclusion of time during which a second appeal was pending.* Certain property was sold in execution of a decree against the judgment-debtor on the 22nd May 1900. The sale was set aside by the first Court on the 25th May following, but was declared valid by the Appellate Court on the 2nd August 1900. The judgment-debtor preferred a second appeal to the High Court on the 15th August 1900, which appeal was dismissed on the 5th September following. On the 12th September the judgment-debtor applied, under s. 310A of the Civil Procedure Code, to have the sale set aside on deposit of the requisite sum. Held, that the application was barred by limitation, not having been made within 30 days from the date of sale; and that although, in computing the period of limitation, the time between the 25th May and the 2nd August might be excluded, the time between the 15th August and the 5th September, spent in prosecuting the second appeal, could not be excluded. 30. ——— Private sale by judgment-debtor prior to Court sale—Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV of 1882), s. 310A and s. 244—Property privately sold by judgment-debtor prior to Court sale—Application by judgment-debtor to set aside a Court sale—Application rejected—Application to High Court under s. 622—Practice. In execution of a decree passed against a judgment-debtor, his property was sold by auction. Prior, however, to the execution-sale, he effected a private sale to another person, and out of the proceeds he paid off the judgment-creditor, who duly certified that the decree was satisfied. Subsequently the judgment-debtor applied under s. 310A to set aside the execution-sale. His application was refused by the Judge, on the ground that, at the date of the execution-sale, he had no interest in the property, having disposed of it by private sale. He held, therefore, that he could not apply under s. 310A. Against this order the judgment-debtor applied to the High Court under s. 622 of the Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV of 1882). It was contended (i) that the order was one under s. 244 of the Civil Procedure Code; that an appeal lay from an order under that section, and that therefore he had no right of application under s. 622, and (ii) that, he having disposed of his property by private sale, s. 310A did not apply. Held, that s. 244 did not appply, inasmuch as the auction-purchaser certainly could not be taken to be the representative of the decree-holder, and, even assuming him to be a representative of the judgment-debtor, that section did not apply to a question between a party to the suit and his representative. S. 244, therefore, did not apply to the order complained of, which was consequently not appealable, for an order under s. 310A is only appealable so far as it comes under s. 244 (c). There being no appeal, the judgment-debtor could therefore apply under s. 622 of the Code. Notwithstanding the private sale, the judgment-debtor could apply under s. 310A of the Code to set aside the execution-sale. MAGANLAL MULJI v. DOSHI MULJI BHAICHAND (1901)

The money paid by the under-tenant after the sale was not money which the tenant was "bound by law to pay" under s. 310A, Civil Procedure Code, within the meaning of either s. 69 of the Contract Act or s. 108 (g) of the Transfer of Property Act. Quære: Whether the under-tenant has any status to pay in the money under s. 310A, Civil Procedure Code. The second mortgagee then applied to have the sale set aside, and paid into Court the amount due to the first mortgagee. Held, that the second mortgagee was not entitled to have the sale set aside. Inasmuch as he had not been made a party to the suit in which the decree was obtained, his interest had not passed under the sale, and his right to redeem the prior mortgage continued. He was, therefore, not a person whose immoveable property had been sold, within the meaning of s. 310A of the Civil Procedure Code, and had no locus standi to apply

The decree was subsequently sold by auction, and the defendant purchased it for R20. On special appeal by the plaintiff, upon the ground that the sale was irregular, as the prohibitory order had not been served upon him:—Held, that the prohibitory order having been served in accordance with the provisions of s. 236, Act VIII of 1859, was legal and regular. Held, also, that the Court executing the defendant's decree ought not to have sold the plaintiff's decree, but should have, under s. 243, appointed a manager to enforce plaintiff's decree. 85. ——— Irregularity in applying for execution of decree—Act VIII of 1859, s. 257. G and M obtained a money-decree against K in the Court of the Principal Sudder Ameen on the 12th December 1864. This decree was reversed by the District Judge, but on the 5th March 1866 the Sudder Court set aside the Judge's decree and ordered a new trial. On the 5th May 1866 the District Judge affirmed the decree of the Court of first instance. On the 3rd December 1866 the High Court again set aside the Judge's decree and ordered a new trial. On the 14th January 1867 the District Judge again affirmed the decree of the Court of first instance, and, no appeal being preferred, the decree became final. The decree-holders had in the meantime taken proceedings to execute the decree, dated the 5th May 1866, and from time to time and finally on the 7th November 1870 they renewed these proceedings, in each instance referring to the decree dated the 5th May 1866, even after it was set aside, and the decree dated the 14th January 1867 passed. On the last application a sale of certain immoveable property belonging to K was ordered and took place on the 15th February 1871. K objected to the confirmation of the sale on the ground of the irregularity in the application, but his objections were disallowed and the sale was confirmed. He brought a suit to recover possession of the property from the auction-purchaser on the ground that the sale was a nullity. Held per STUART, C.J., and PEARSON, TURNER, and SPANKIE, JJ., that the sale ought not to be set aside, as the irregularity in applying for execution of the decree, dated the 5th May 1866, was an irregularity which did not prejudice the judgment-debtor. Per OLDFIELD, J.—That with reference to s. 257, Act VIII of 1859, the suit was not maintainable. 86. ——— Irregularity in attachment—Confirmation of sale—Objection that property is not liable to attachment—Civil Procedure Code, 1882, ss. 278, 311, 312. Held, that an objection made by one whose property was attached and sold in execution of a decree for the payment of money for the performance of which he had become a surety, that he was no party to the decree, and his property was not liable to be attached and sold, and therefore the sale was invalid, was not an objection entertainable under s. 311 of the Civil Procedure Code, and was consequently no ground for setting aside the sale under that section, especially as it was preferred for the first time on appeal, and, moreover, might have been taken under s. 278 at the time of attachment, when the objector would have had his remedy as therein provided. Shortly before the date so fixed, he issued a direction to the District Judge's nazir that the sale should be effected in portions to be sold in succession. Upon this the District Judge removed the execution-proceedings to his own Court, and issued a roobokari declaring the Subordinate Judge's order null and void, and ordering the property to be sold on the day fixed in one lot. This was accordingly done. Held, that it was entirely within the Subordinate Judge's discretion to direct that the property should be sold in portions, even though it had been attached or proclaimed as an entirety. Held, that, as it is damage to a person to have his whole property sold against his will to satisfy the claims of a creditor when the sale of a portion would suffice, the irregularity committed by the District Judge caused material injury to the judgment-debtors. On an objection raised by the judgment-debtors that the decree was by its terms executable only against the mortgaged property, the High Court on appeal decided, on the 6th September 1882, that the houses were not liable to attachment and sale under the decree. In the meantime, on the 15th June 1882, the houses had been put up for sale and purchased for R500, and the sale had been confirmed on the 16th August 1882. The judgment-debtors brought a suit against the purchaser to set aside the sale, on the ground that the houses were not saleable under the decree. Held, that the decree, in regard to costs, was a decree made personal against the judgment-debtor, and conferred a right upon the decree-holder to take out execution for the recovery of those costs, not only against the property mortgaged in the bond, but also against the person and other property of the judgment-debtor. Per OLDFIELD, J. (MAHMOOD, J. doubting), that the attachment and sale in execution of the decree were valid, inasmuch as they were made in respect of the costs as well of the principal and interest decreed. Per MAHMOOD, J., that the suit was maintainable, and was not barred by any plea in limine. Abdul Hye v. *Nawab Raj, B. Also per MAHMOOD, J., that it was doubtful whether the attachment having been made for the whole amount of the decree and not for costs, and no separate proceedings having taken place in respect of the personal decree against the judgment-debtor, the attachment, the notification of sale, and the sale itself were valid; but that everything that was said against these proceedings constituted matters falling under s. 312 of the Civil Procedure Code, which enable parties to object to confirmation of sale; and that therefore, even assuming that the sale and confirmation of sale were subject to the objection of "material irregularity in publishing or conducting" the sale, within the meaning of s. 311, a suit like the present, upon that ground alone, was prohibited by the last part of s. 312. 113. ——— Irregularity in publication of sale—Beng. Reg. XLV of 1793, s. 12—Delay. A suit was brought in 1852 to set aside an execution-sale made in 1841 on the ground of irregularity in not complying with the provisions of Bengal Regulation XLV, s. 12, of 1893, for the due publication of the sale. A summary suit under Bengal Regulation VII of 1825, s. 5, had been brought shortly after the date of the sale by the judgment-debtor, to set it aside on the ground of inadequacy of the purchase-money, which suit was dismissed. There was no allegation in that suit of any irregularity in the publication of sale. It appeared from the evidence in the suit of 1852 that the notice of sale was affixed at the dwelling-house of the judgment-debtor, the place where his rents were paid, but which was not part of the estate sold. It was not pleaded in the suit of 1852 that there was a town or village where the notification could be fixed as required by s. 12, Bengal Regulation XLV of 1793. The Sudder Court held that there had been an irregularity in the publication of the notice of sale as it was not made within the ambit of the estate sold, and set the sale aside on that ground. On appeal:—Held by the Judicial Committee reversing such decree, first, that as it did not appear that there was any town or village within the pergunnah at which the notification required by the provisions of Bengal Regulation XLV of 1793, s. 12, could be affixed, there had been no irregularity in posting the notice at the house of the judgment-debtor, so as to vitiate the sale; and, secondly, that even if there had been an informality in that respect it ought to have been objected to in the summary suit brought in 1841, and could not be opened eleven years afterwards. in the publication of the sale. Held, also, that, where there is no evidence to connect the two elements of irregularity and injury under s. 311, it must appear, before a Court can set aside an execution-sale, that the injury complained of is the reasonable and natural consequence of the irregularity and attributable to it alone. Three mouzahs were attached in execution of decrees obtained by A and B. Prior to the sale, C, who had also obtained a decree against the owner of the land, applied for leave to execute his decree, in order that he might participate in the sale-proceeds under s. 295 of the Civil Procedure Code. Upon the day fixed for the sale, the Deputy Commissioner was unable, through illness, to attend; and he postponed the sale for three days. Two of the mouzahs were sold, and realized more than enough to satisfy the decrees of A and B. The third was then sold in satisfaction of C's decree. Upon an application by the judgment-debtor to set aside the sale on the ground of irregularity, it appeared that notice of the sale had been posted in the Court-house more than thirty days before the date fixed for the sale, but had only been published on the properties to be sold five days before that date; that notice of the existence of a mortgage on the properties, but no further particulars was given, and the mortgagee was allowed to purchase; and that the Deputy Commissioner had accepted the reports of the Nazir and Court-peon as to the proclamation of sale, and had refused to allow the judgment-debtor to give evidence of its insufficiency. Held, that the proclamation of sale on the property having taken place only five days prior to the date of sale, and the particulars of the mortgage not having been given, there had been such material irregularities in the publication as to entitle the judgment-debtor to give evidence of them and the other allegations made by him, in order to show that he had suffered material injury by reason of such irregularities. Held, also, that the Deputy Commissioner was not entitled to proceed upon the reports of the Nazir and Court-peon, but was bound to hear the evidence tendered by the judgment-debtor, though he was justified, under s. 291, in postponing the sale as he had done. Held, further, that the third judgment-creditor, who had not attached the property, was still entitled to have the sale proceeded with and his decree satisfied under the provisions of s. 295. date fixed for the sale of certain property in execution of a decree, the judgment-debtors presented a petition, praying for a month's further time to be allowed them in order that they might complete the arrangements they were making for the purpose of paying off the debt, and stating that the decree-holders had attached and advertised the property for sale. That petition being refused, the sale took place; and subsequently the judgment-debtors came in and objected to the sale, and asked to have it set aside, on the ground that there had been material irregularity in the publication of the attachment and sale-proclamation, and that consequently they had suffered substantial injury. The Subordinate Judge refused to hear evidence on this point, holding that the petition was an admission that the proceedings were in order. Held, that the petition presented prior to the sale did not amount to an admission by the judgment-debtors that the publication and proclamation of the sale had been duly made; and that consequently the Court was bound to hear the evidence tendered by the judgment-debtors on that point, and to find whether there had been such irregularities in publishing and conducting the sale as to occasion substantial injury to the judgment-debtors. Giridhari Singh v. *Hurdeo Narain Singh, L. 133. ——— Alteration in particulars of property after advertising for sale—Material irregularity. The property of a judgment-debtor was proclaimed and advertised for sale in execution of a decree on a certain day. The proclamation set out particulars of the property, but subsequent to such proclamation a portion of the property was released to a third party. Notwithstanding this fact, no fresh proclamation was made, and the sale took place on the day originally fixed. Held, that the omission to issue a fresh proclamation was a material irregularity, inasmuch as the judgment-debtor was entitled to have a proclamation issued accurately describing the property to be sold, and that such proclamation should be published thirty days before the sale. is so divided. A mere breaking up of a property into lots does not necessarily make it several properties for the purposes of a proclamation of attachment or sale. Where estates, though embraced in the same process, are really at such a distance that there is no moral certainty of communication to persons on or interested in the one of what is publicly done on the other, there should, no doubt, be a separate proclamation on each, in order that full intimation may be given of what is to be done. The judgment-debtor applied to have the sale set aside as void. Held, that the effect of the Court's order for postponement of the sale was to deprive the officer of all legal authority to hold it on the date previously fixed; that his not being aware of the order was not material; that the defect in the sale amounted to an illegality and not merely to an irregularity within the meaning of s. 311 of the Civil Procedure Code; that consequently it was not necessary to show that the defect had caused substantial loss to the judgment-debtor; and that the Court could not confirm the illegal sale, but must hold it to be void. Sukhdeo Rai v. *Sheo Ghulam, I. Where successive postponements of the day of sale have been made, but the last of these is made by the Court on its own motion without any application for postponement of sale being made on the part of the judgment-debtor (although such postponement might be for his benefit), a strict compliance with the rule that thirty days must elapse between the proclamation and the actual day of sale is requisite. It is the practice of the Courts under the Rules of the High Court, which have the force of law, to place all properties intended for sale in execution of decrees on a list, and to proceed with the sales from day to day, commencing on an appointed day. As each property is taken up in its turn, an adjournment of the sale of a particular property, which is the consequence of such procedure, is not an adjournment within the meaning of s. 291 of the Civil Procedure Code; and it cannot be said in such a case that there was an irregularity in the sale not having been held on the appointed day. At the time of sale the decree-holder, who had obtained leave to bid, entered into an agreement with P to the effect that, if P would dissuade other persons from bidding, he (the decree-holder) would purchase the whole property for R83,000 and convey it on certain terms to P. P thereupon exerted his influence and succeeded in persuading would-be purchasers from bidding, and in consequence the property was sold on the 11th April 1891 for R83,000, which was a little more than half its actual value. Held on appeal to the Privy Council—A decree-holder who has obtained leave to bid at a judicial sale is, in regard to restrictions upon him, in the same position as any other purchaser. A charge against a bidder that he and those who have acted in concert with him have acted in such a manner as to prevent the best price from being obtained does not of itself amount to a charge of fraud, nor will proof of such concert invalidate the sale to him. The judgment of the High Court in Woopendro Nath Sicrar v. Brojendronath Mundal, I. L. R. 7 Calc. 346, though a correct decision on the case, was too broadly expressed in comprehending any dissuasion by a bidder at a judicial sale of other persons from bidding, as a ground for setting aside the sale. The Judicial Committee affirmed the decision of the High Court that, on a petition for the setting aside of the judicial sale under s. 311 of the Code of Civil Procedure, neither the fact of the above agreement nor the dissuasion of bidders afforded sufficient ground for making the order. But the High Court had decided, in favour of the petitioner, another point—that there had been material irregularity, within that section, in an omission on the part of the decree-holding purchaser when he had applied for leave to bid. This had been that he had withheld information of the agreement from the Court, which had granted the leave to bid not having been made aware of the arrangement. The omission to disclose this fact had, in the opinion of the High Court, amounted to a fraud upon the Court executing the decree, and entitled the petitioner to have the sale set aside on the ground that in point of law no leave to bid had been granted. Held, by the Judicial Committee, that this ground had not been established by evidence on an issue between the parties having been taken for the first time in the Court of Appeal, with a change of the matter in controversy; and that the fraud on which alone the High Court's order could be sustained had neither been alleged nor proved. Since the amendment of the Civil Procedure Code by Act XII of 1879 the sale would not be treated as absolutely void, but as liable to be set aside by the Court on application by the judgment-debtor or other party interested in the sale.

172. ——— Rejection of highest bid—Abortive sale caused by act of judgment-debtor—Highest bidder declared not the purchaser—Validity of sale. Three attempts to sell land taken in execution under a decree had been rendered abortive by the acts of the judgment-debtor, and a delay of seven years occasioned, during which by his conduct he defeated the execution of the decree. When the property was put up for sale for the fourth time, the Collector rejected the two highest bids, on the ground that neither of the bidders could produce a mooktearnamah from the persons for whom respectively they professed to act as agents, nor produce the required deposit, and he declared the third highest bidder the purchaser of the land. Held, that under the circumstances the conduct of the Collector was justifiable and the sale valid. The option so to set off the purchase-money cannot be exercised by the purchaser until the confirmation and payment of expenses of the sale. 190. ——— Inadequacy of price—Error in notification—Civil Procedure Code, 1859, ss. 256, 257. At a sale held on the 9th September 1872, in execution of a decree, the respondent purchased an estate for R55,000. The notification of sale had stated the Government revenue to be R3,146 instead of R8,146, the sale being fixed for the 5th August 1872. The sale was postponed without the issue of a second notification on an application by the judgment-debtor praying for such postponement, " the attachment and the notification of sale being maintained. On the 1st October 1872 the judgment-debtor objected under s. 256 of Act VIII of 1859 to the sale on the ground of material error in the abovementioned notification in regard to the amount of Government revenue. The Subordinate Judge overruled such objection, but omitted to pass an order under s. 257, confirming the sale. Thereupon the judgment-debtor paid into Court the amount of the decree, and then obtained from the Judge an order purporting to have been made on review under s. 376, but without notice to the respondent setting aside the sale on the ground of inadequacy of price and the abovementioned material error. The High Court, on application by the respondent under 24 & 25 Vict., c. 104, s. 15, held that the objections made were insufficient, and directed the Judge to confirm the sale. Held, by the Privy Council, that, although the alleged inadequacy of price was no ground for refusing to confirm the sale, yet that the above error in specifying the amount of Government revenue was an irregularity (see s. 249) for which, on proof of substantial injury to the judgment-debtor therefrom, the sale might have been set aside ; but that the above petition for postponement amounted to an admission by the judgment-debtor that the notification was correct, or that there was no such irregularity as would be likely to mislead. The sale was at first proclaimed for a certain date, but was twice postponed on the application of the judgment-debtor, who consented to waive the making of a fresh proclamation. A claimed to have the sale set aside on the ground of irregularity. Held, that a waiver by a judgment-debtor of a fresh proclamation after a sale has been adjourned does not necessarily prevent a judgment-creditor from objecting to a sale so held, on that ground. Semble: That the refusal by a Court to issue a fresh proclamation, if applied for by a judgment-creditor in such a case, would constitute a ground on which the regularity of the sale might be impeached. 204. ——— ——— Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV of 1882), ss. 291, 311—Sale, adjournment of—Specification of hour—Irregularity in publishing and conducting sale—Inadequacy of price. When a sale is adjourned, it is the duty of the Court to specify the date and hour of sale, notwithstanding that the adjournment is due to the application of the judgment-debtor. In the present case the sale-proclamation as originally published gave the 19th May as the date of sale and 12 A.M. as the hour; the sale was adjourned to the 26th May and no hour of sale was fixed, a further adjournment was obtained by the judgment-debtors on payment of 1,000 and the sale was fixed for the 21st July; again an adjournment was taken and the sale was fixed for the 22nd September, and subsequently on another adjournment being taken by the judgment-debtor the sale was fixed for the 24th November when the property was sold. The judgment-debtors waived fresh sale-proclamations on all these dates, and did not ask the Court to fix an hour. All these dates, i.e., the 21st July, 22nd September and 24th November are days of sale in the district and 12 A.M. is the usual hour for sales to commence. The judgment-debtors complained of the non-specification of the hour in the order of the 19th of May adjourning the sale to the 26th of May. Held, that the sale not having taken place on the the 26th May there was no reasonable ground for holding that the irregularity in the order of the 22nd September resulted in substantial injury to the judgment-debtors. debtor—Fresh sale-proclamation. An application by a judgment-debtor for an adjournment of the sale "without issue of fresh proclamation and beat of drum" does not amount to a waiver preventing him from applying to set aside the sale held on the day adjourned on the ground that proclamation of sale was not served on each of the properties and consequently the sale fetched a low price, provided that when he presented his petition for adjournment he was ignorant of the fact that the proclamation had not been properly posted up on the various properties according to law. Such a waiver does not amount to a waiver of any fraud practised upon the judgment-debtor. Giridhari Singh v. *Hurdeo Narain Singh, L. R. 3 I. 206. ——— Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV of 1882), ss. 291, 311—Waiver—Adjournment of sale at the instance of the judgment-debtor—Non-specification of hour. When a sale is adjourned under s. 291, Civil Procedure Code, it is necessary to mention the hour of sale, and its non-specification is a material irregularity within the meaning of s. 311, Code of Civil Procedure. Surnomoyee Debi v. *Dakhina Ranjan Sanyal, I. The fact that the judgment-debtor consents that the sale should be held without the issue of a fresh proclamation does not indicate that he waives the non-specification of the hour of the day to which the sale is adjourned, inasmuch as he has no control over the form of the order of the Court. To show that substantial injury was the result of the irregularity complained of, the judgment-debtor is only to show that there is reason for inferring that it was due to and resulted from material irregularity. Surnomoyee Debi v. *Dakhina Ranjan Sanyal, I. The property was knocked down to the two decree-holders jointly. An application was then made, to the officer conducting the sale, by one of the decree-holders auction-purchasers, but purporting to act in the name of, and on behalf of, the other auction-purchaser as well, asking that the purchase-money should be set off against the amount due under the decree, and that to that extent satisfaction of the decree should be entered up; he at the same time paid the auction fees. This application was made under the second clause of s. 294 of the Code of Civil Procedure. A receipt for the amount of the purchase-money was given to the officer conducting the sale, and by him was forwarded to the Court of the Subordinate Judge, under whose orders the sale was held. The judgment-debtor subsequently made an application under s. 311 to the Subordinate Judge, asking to have the sale set aside. That application was rejected; but the Subordinate Judge, instead of confirming the sale, set it aside, on the ground that only one of the decree-holders auction-purchasers had put in the receipt under the second clause of s. 294, and directed a re-sale, and this notwithstanding that the other decree-holder admitted that the receipt had been presented on his behalf also. On appeal to the District Judge, the order of the Subordinate Judge was set aside, and an order passed confirming the sale. From this order the judgment-debtor appealed to the High Court, on the sole ground that no appeal lay to the District Judge. Held, that the order passed by the Subordinate Judge was appealable, as an order passed under s. 244 of the Code of Civil Procedure. (b) IRREGULARITY—contd.

Irregularity Held, that the fact that an auction-purchaser at a sale held in execution of a decree did not pay the 2 per cent. of the purchase-money required by s. 306 of the Code of Civil Procedure at the time of the sale was a mere irregularity, which would not affect the validity of the sale, unless it could be shown that substantial injury was thereby caused to the judgment-debtor. Intizam Ali Khan v. *Narain Singh, I. 211. ———— Jurisdiction.—Sale, setting aside—Irregularity—When a Court, in which an application for execution was pending, received an order from another Court under s. 273 of the Civil Procedure Code for attaching the decree and returned the order with an intimation that it did not contain information as to the amount of the decree and subsequently held the sale. Held, that the sale was invalid and was accordingly set aside. That it was not a mere irregularity as the Court had no jurisdiction to hold the sale. MANIK LAL SEAL v. BONOMALI MUKERJEE (1905) 10 C. W. N. 193

212. ———— Value, statement of, if material—Sale proclamation—Service, if should be in every part of the property—"Property." The statement of the sale-proclamation of a value which proves to be inadequate is an irregularity, but not a material irregularity. Such statements are made without much consideration and it is well known that purchasers do not take serious notice of any statement in the sale-proclamation as to the value of the property to be sold. S. 274 of the Civil Procedure Code does not require that the sale-proclamation should be served in each of the villages comprised in the property to be sold. The word "property" in that section evidently refers to each "lot" to be sold separately from the rest. Though it is a sound rule to follow, viz., to serve a separate proclamation in each of the villages embraced in the same process when they are at such a distance from one another that there is no moral certainty of communication to any person in or interested in the one, of what is publicly done in the other, the fact that the processes were not served in each does not necessarily constitute an infringement of the provisions of s. 274 of the Civil Procedure Code. Tripura Sundari v. *Durga Churn Pal, I. 213. ———— Absence of notice to judgment-debtor—Decree—Execution of decree—Sale—Application to set aside sale on grounds of absence of notice and property sold at undervalue—Dismissal of application—Second appeal—"Publishing or conducting" sales, meaning of. Certain property was sold in execution of a decree against the applicant. He applied to the Court seeking to have the sale set aside on the ground that no notice had been issued to the applicant under s. 248 of the Civil Procedure Code, 1882, and that in consequence the property was sold at an undervalue. The Court of first instance dismissed the application and the dismissal was upheld by the lower Appellate Court. On second appeal a preliminary objection was taken that the order dismissing the application fell under s. 312 of the Code and was not appealable. Held, that the application did not fall under s. 311 and the order dismissing the same did not come within s. 312 of the Code. Held, further, that the order fell under s. 244 (c) of the Code and was appealable as a decree. The question involved was "a question relating to the satisfaction of the decree" within the meaning of the clause. The non-issue of a notice to a party concerned is not a material irregularity in publishing or conducting the sales, within the meaning of s. 311 of the Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV of 1882). It is rather an irregularity in proceedings which are anterior to the publishing or the conduct of the sale. The words "publishing or conducting" in s. 311 of the Code refer respectively to the proclamation of sale under s. 287 and to the action of the officer by whom the sale was held. The sale took place eight years after the decree. Held, that as no notice was issued to the appellant the order of both the lower Courts must be reversed and the sale set aside. It also appeared that, seventeen days after the applicant had applied for proclamation to be issued to his witnesses, he deposited the requisite fees ; and that subsequently there was a delay of seven days in the office in issuing such proclamations, which were ultimately issued only three days prior to the day fixed for the hearing. On the applicant alleging that, in consequence of such delay, he had not been allowed a fair opportunity to produce his witnesses :—Held, that the Court cannot presume that substantial injury has been caused from the mere fact of there having been a material irregularity in publishing a sale ; but when both a material irregularity and substantial injury have been proved, the Court may reasonably presume that the substantial injury is due to such irregularity. Held, also, that the applicant, having been guilty of laches himself, could not be allowed to set up the delay in the office as a ground for the non-production of his witnesses. Gopee Nath Dobay v. *Roy Luchmeepat Singh, I. No evidence having been given in the Court executing the decree of substantial injury having resulted by reason of such irregularity, i.e., the alleged misdescription :—Held, that, although the Appellate Court below had assumed that the property had been sold for less than it ought to have fetched, such substantial injury as inadequacy of price should have been proved to have occurred in order to bring the case within s. 311. Macnaghten v. *Mahabir Pershad Singh, I. 10. ——— Suit to recover purchase-money—Want of interest of debtor—Warranty of title—Liability of Sheriff and execution-creditor—Civil Procedure Code, 1859, s. 258—Irregularity in sale-proceedings. A purchaser of property, whether immoveable or moveable, at a sale in execution of a decree under the Code of Civil Procedure, 1859, held in accordance with the provisions of that Code, had no right to recover his purchase-money, though it might turn out that the right, title, and interest of the execution-debtor was nothing at all, unless the sale itself be set aside, and the sale would not be set aside by reason merely of the defect or absence of title in the thing sold on the part of the execution-debtor ; but if there was an express assertion that the goods sold were the property of the execution-debtor, the Sheriff and the execution-debtor were bound by such warranty to the extent, at least, that one of them, in whose hands the purchase-money was, was bound to restore it to the purchaser, if the purchaser had not got that for which he paid. S. 258 of Act VIII of 1859 applied wherever a sale was set aside, whether for irregularity in publishing or conducting a sale or for other grounds ; and though the right of the purchaser to recover back his purchase-money, in case of the sale being set aside, was, by that Act, given expressly only where the sale was of immoveable property, yet the same consequence would follow where a sale of moveable property in execution had been set aside. Where therefore certain shares were attached by the execution-creditor as the property of the execution-debtor, and were afterwards sold in execution by the Sheriff, and the execution-orders and warrants and the Sheriff's proclamation of sale contained assertions of interest of the execution-debtor in these shares, whereas he had no such interest :—Held, that the purchaser at the execution-sale was entitled to have the sale set aside, and his purchase-money returned to him ; but the Sheriff's liability to the purchaser in such a case ceased so soon as he had paid over the proceeds of the sale to the execution-creditor, and the purchaser's remedy thereafter was against the execution-creditor only. Bank of Hindustan v. *Premchand Raichand, 5 Bom. To entitle a purchaser, under paragraph 2 of s. 315 of the Code of Civil Procedure, to a refund of purchase-money, it is not necessary that a Court should have decided in other proceedings that the judgment-debtor had no saleable interest in the property which purported to be sold or that the purchaser should have obtained actual possession and have been deprived thereof. He then sued in 1889 to recover the purchase-money paid by him, on the ground that the judgment-debtor possessed no saleable interest in the property in question. It appeared that the son of the judgment-debtor had obtained a decree in 1888 against the plaintiff and others declaring that she, the judgment-debtor, had no saleable interest in the property, and that in that suit the present defendant had given evidence in support of the present plaintiff's contention; the judgment in that suit was now admitted in evidence against the defendant. Held, that the judgment above referred to was not evidence against the defendant; that the suit should be dismissed on the ground that there was no legal evidence; that the judgment-debtor whose interest in the land had been purchased by the plaintiff possessed no legal interest therein. Subsequently the land was claimed by one B, who sued A, the judgment-debtor, and E, the auction-purchaser, to set aside the sale and establish his title to the land. He succeeded in his suit, and in execution got possession of the land. Thereupon E (the auction-purchaser) applied, under s. 315 of the Civil Procedure Code (XIV of 1882), for a refund of his purchase-money, and the Subordinate Judge made an order directing V, the decree-holder, to repay it. V contended that he ought not to have been ordered to refund the money without having an opportunity of proving that the property had been properly sold in execution of his decree against A, and that, as he had not been made a party to B's suit, he had had no opportunity of doing this. On application to the High Court:—Held, that the order of the Subordinate Judge for the restitution of the purchase-money was wrong. S. 315 provides that the purchase-money paid at an execution-sale is to be returned when it is found that the judgment-debtor has no saleable interest in the property sold. It does not prescribe how the fact is to be ascertained, but the conclusion from s. 313 as well as from general principles is that it must be a finding on some proceedings to which the judgment-creditor was a party, or at any rate of which he had notice. Thereupon K sued H to recover the purchase-money alleging a failure of consideration. Held, that the sale not having been set aside in favour of the judgment-debtor on the ground of want of jurisdiction or other illegality or irregularity affecting the sale, but having been set aside in favour of a third party who had established his title to the property, and there being no question of fraud or misrepresentation on the part of the decree-holder, the suit was not maintainable. Rajib Lochun v. *Bimalamoni Dasi, 2 B. had not been a total failure of consideration, and the plaintiff accordingly could not maintain the action in its present shape, viz., for money had and received. In the same case on appeal to the Privy Council it was held as follows: A writ of fieri facias issued to the Sheriff authorizes him to seize the property of the execution-debtor which lies within his territorial jurisdiction and to pass the debtor's title to it without warranting that title to be good. But if the Sheriff acts ultra vires,—e.g., if he seizes and sells property not within his jurisdiction,—he cannot invoke the protection which the law gives him when acting within his jurisdiction, and he stands in the same position as an ordinary person who has sold that which he had no title to sell. Since there is not in India the difference between real and personal estate which obtains in England, and moveable and immoveable property there are alike capable of being seized and sold under a writ of fieri facias, the responsibility of the Sheriff in respect of sale in that country is governed by the law relating to chattels, rather than by that relating to the sale of real estate. A Sheriff, who in his official capacity seizes and sells property, undertakes by his conduct that he has legal authority to do so. When from his having acted beyond the territorial jurisdiction of the Court whose officer he is, the sale becomes inoperative and ineffectual, the purchaser may have a case for relief as against the judgment-creditor who has received the purchase-money, if it should appear that the Sheriff has acted under his authority and by his express directions. (b) RECOVERY OF PURCHASE-MONEY—concld.

32. ——— Decree—Conditions of sale—Title, abstract of, not corresponding with original—Setting aside sale, application for—Purchase-money, return of. A purchaser of property at the Registrar's sale in execution of a mortgage-decree accepted the conditions of sale, whereby he was required to furnish requisitions within ten days after the actual delivery of the abstract of title. The purchaser did not furnish any requisitions. On the 19th August, 1899, by an order of the Court the purchaser was to pay the balance of the purchase-money into Court (he having already made deposit), without prejudice to his right to raise any question as to title or compensation. On the 31st August, 1899, the purchaser paid the balance of the purchase-money, in compliance with the order of the 19th August, 1899. On the 26th April, 1900, the purchaser applied for annulment of the sale or for compensation. On the 30th August, 1900, the sale was set aside, but that order was reversed on appeal on the 28th February, 1902. After the order of the 28th February, 1902, the purchaser asked for inspection of the title-deeds in order to compare them with the abstract and, upon having certain Persian writing, which he discovered amongst them, read by an expert, found that the abstract of title did not correspond with the original documents of title. The purchaser then having applied to have the sale set aside and his purchase-money refunded:—Held, that the purchaser, though he had not furnished his requisitions within the time allowed by the conditions of sale, was not debarred from applying to the Court to set aside the sale on the ground that the abstract was incorrect and contained a material misdescription; and that he was, under the circumstances, entitled to have his purchase-money refunded. *In re Banister, L. 1. ——— Appropriation to vendee—Passing of property to vendee—Bankruptcy of agents for purchase—Unpaid vendor—Stoppage in transit—Termination of transit—Goods landed in dock and held by dock authorities—Bom. Act VI of 1879, ss. 43, 62—Port Trustees of Bombay—Bye-laws of Port Trust, rule 59. In August 1890 the plaintiffs, through B, A & Co., of Bombay, ordered from B, R & Co., in London, 100 bales of grey shirtings at 7*s.* 10*d.* per piece f. o. b., November-December shipment. In order to carry out this order, B, R & Co., purchased goods of the required description from D & Co., of Manchester. The heading of the invoice of the goods supplied by D & Co., contained these words: "Proceeds to be remitted to B, R & Co., London, specifically for the protection of their acceptances of G & R D's draft against this or any of these shipments," and the letter addressed by D & Co. to B, R & Co. forwarding draft contained the following clause: "It is understood that the proceeds of the goods are to be remitted to be held by you specifically for the protection of the enclosed bill, or any other of your acceptances of our drafts against such shipments, which please confirm." To this letter B, R & Co. replied: "We confirm the arrangements between us as to the disposal of remittances and against the shipments." The bales were duly marked with the plaintiffs' mark by direction of B, R & Co., and were to be delivered f. o. b. at Liverpool. D & Co. accordingly despatched the 100 bales to Liverpool, and there B, R & Co. had them shipped in eight different vessels, viz., 13 bales in each of the four steamers Nubia, Clan Drummond, Inchulva, and Roumania, and 12 bales in each of the ships Hispania, Eden Hall, City of Edinburgh, and Wistow Hall. The 100 bales were consigned to Bombay by B, R & Co. in their own name, the bills of lading being made out to "their order or to his or their assigns." B, R & Co. paid the freight at Liverpool and effected insurance on the plaintiffs' behalf. All the shipments were made before the 1st December 1890, except the 12 bales by the Wistow Hall, which were shipped on that day. On the several shipments being affected, B, R & Co., accepted bills of D & Co., payable three months after date. The bills of lading of the bales shipped in the Nubia, Clan Drummond, and Hispania were endorsed in blank by B, R & Co., and sent by post to B, A & Co., of Bombay. The Nubia arrived at Bombay in November, and the plaintiffs received the 13 bales shipped by her, B, A & Co. having endorsed the bill of lading to the plaintiffs. No specific payment was made by the plaintiffs in respect of these bales, but at that time they had a sum standing to their credit in the books of B, A & Co. The invoices of 25 more bales, viz., 13 bales ex Clan Drummond and 12 bales ex Hispania, arrived in Bombay later in November, and were handed to the plaintiffs. On the 1st December 1890 the plaintiffs paid R25,000 to B, A & Co. Neither the Clan Drummond nor the Hispania had then arrived in Bombay. On the 4th December 1890 B, R & Co. suspended payment, and on that day a receiving order was made vesting their assests in the first defendant, W; and on the next day P was appointed special manager of the estate under s. 12 of the English Bankruptcy Act (Stat. 46 & 47 Vict., c. 52). At that time the bills of lading for the remaining 62 bales were still with B, R & Co., who then handed them over to P. On the same 5th December 1890 B, A & Co. suspended payment in Bombay. On the 13th December 1890 D & Co. telegraphed to their agents in Bombay, R, S & Co., directing them to stop the goods in transit, including the 25 bales ex Clan Drummond and Hispania. On the 15th December R, S & Co., on behalf of D & Co., gave notice to the agents of the Hispania to stop the 12 bales on board that vessel. Previously to that notice, however, the bales had been landed in the dock at Bombay. They then gave the dock authorities notices, but at that time the ships' agents had already given the plaintiffs a delivery order for the goods. On the same day, viz., 15th December, R, S & Co. gave notice to the agents of the Clan Drummond to stop the 13 bales on board. These bales had not then been landed, and were then still on board. The other five steamers with the remaining 62 bales duly arrived in Bombay and went into dock. On the 22nd January 1891 the Roumania, the City of Edinburgh, and the Wistow Hall had landed all the bales which they had on board. The Eden Hall had landed 9 out of the 12 which she had brought, leaving 3 still to be discharged, and the Inchulva had not landed any of her bales, the whole 13 being still on board. On that day (2nd January 1891) R. S & Co., on behalf of D & Co., wrote to the several agents of the above steamers notices of stoppage in transit of the above bales, except in the case of the Wistow Hall, in respect of which no notice was sent. These notices was all delivered on the 3rd January 1891. Held, (i) on the evidence, that the payment of the R25,000 by the plaintiffs to B, A & Co. in Bombay was a payment for and on account of the 100 bales. In respect of transactions before bankruptcy, a payment to B, A & Co. was a payment to B, R & Co; but if that were not so, B, A & Co. were agents to receive payment. (ii) That on the goods being shipped at Liverpool, if not at an earlier date, the property in them passed from D & Co. to B, R & Co., and from the latter, by reason of the plaintiffs' contract with B, R & Co., to the plaintiffs,—B, R & Co. having, by holding the bills of lading, the constructive possessions of the goods and the legal right to their actual possession, and to retain the same until their price was paid by the plaintiffs with the charges. (iii) That the plaintiffs were entitled, as against the representatives of B, R & Co. and B, A & Co. in bankruptcy, to the bills of lading and the goods represented by them without further payment. R, S & Co., as agents of the Official Receiver, had not therefore the right to with hold the bills of lading of any of these bales from the plaintiffs. (iv) On the evidence, that when D & Co. forwarded the goods to B, R & Co. at Liverpool, they really started the goods on their voyage to Bombay, and that the transit lasted until the bales were "at home" in Bombay. Until then the right of D & Co. to stop the goods in transit lasted. (v) That effectual notice on behalf of D & Co. to stop in transit was given in respect of the 13 bales ex Roumania by the notice sent by R, S & Co. on the 15th December 1890. The general notice given on that day to the agents of the Roumania not only as to specific bales, but as to any other bales shipped on account of G and R D to B, A & Co., although indefinite, covered the shipment by the Roumania, and was given in time to prevent the bales on board that ship from reaching "home." (vi) That effectual notice by R, S & Co. on behalf of D & Co. to stop in transit was given in respect of the 13 bales ex Inchulva and the 3 bales (out of the 12) ex Eden Hall which were still on board and undischarged at the date of the notice of the 2nd January 1891. (vii) As to the 12 bales ex Hispania landed prior to the notice of the 15th December and as to the 12 bales ex City of Edinburgh and the 9 (out of the 12) ex Eden Hall landed before the notice of the 2nd January 1891, and as to the 12 ex Wistow Hall, in respect of which no notice at all was given, that the plaintiffs were entitled to them. (v ii) That the goods ceased to be in transit when landed in dock in Bombay. LILLADHAR JAIRAM NARRANJI v. WREFORD.

2. ——————— Promissory note accepted by vendor for value of goods—Suit for the price of goods sold and delivered and not on the notes—Maintainability—Partnership—Promissory note signed by one of two partners for the price of goods purchased—Suit by vendor against both partners, based on the original contract—Liability of both partners. Plaintiffs had sold and delivered opium to defendants on different occasions, taking a promissory note at each sale for the value of the parcel sold. These promissory notes had been signed by one of two partners; they were made payable on demand to plaintiffs or their order; and they had not been negotiated. Plaintiffs now sued all the partners for the amount due, framing the suit as one for the price of goods sold and delivered, and not basing it on the notes. The partner who had not signed the notes contended that the suit did not lie as framed, and that it should have been brought on the notes and not for the goods sold and delivered. Held, that plaintiffs were entitled to sue for the price of the goods sold and delivered, and that both of the partners were liable. DARGAVARAPU SARRAPU v. RAMPRATAPU (1901) . . I. L. R. 25 Mad. 580

——— Law applicable in—Christian inhabitants of the Island of Salsette—Converts from Hinduism to Christianity—Succession to property before Succession Act—Primogeniture—Hindu law, how far applicable—Manager of family—Mortgage by manager when binding on family property—Suit for redemption of mortgage—Sale in execution of decree—Purchaser, rights of—Power of Christian inhabitant of Salsette to make a will dealing with his share in ancestral property. The law of a conquered territory continues in force until altered by the Crown or the Legislature. The Island of Salsette was conquered from the Marathas by the British in 1774, and the law of succession for the Christian inhabitants of the island remained unaltered until the passing of the Indian Succession Act (X of 1865). Until that Act was passed, the law of primogeniture was not in force among the Christian inhabitants of Salsette. In the absence of a widow and daughter, the sons took the property of their father in equal shares. Quære: Whether they did so under the Hindu law or the Portuguese law, or by force of usage existing among them. A mortgage of certain property was made in 1875 by the eldest of three brothers P, M, and E, who were Christian inhabitants of the Island of Salsette. They had inherited the property from their father, who died in 1840. The family had originally been a Hindu family, but had been converted to Christianity. E died in 1876, and M died in 1883, bequeathing his interest in the property to his nephew, the plaintiff, who was P's son. In that year (1883) the mortgagee sued P alone upon the mortgage and obtained a decree which he afterwards assigned to the defendant, who sold the mortgaged property in execution of the decree, and at the sale purchased the property himself. The plaintiff now sued to redeem the property, and the question arose (1) whether, under the law applicable to Christian inhabitants of Salsette, the eldest brother P had succeeded on the father's death to the whole of the family property, and (2) if not, then to what extent the mortgage in question bound the property of the family. Held, (i) that the law of primogeniture prior to the passing of the Indian Succession Act (X of 1865) did not exist among the Christian inhabitants of Salsette, and that P, although eldest son, had not succeeded to the whole of the family property. He and his brothers took equal shares in the property of their father. (ii) That the mortgage by P had been authorized by the family and was for family purposes, and was binding upon the family property. Although P and his brothers could not be regarded as co-parceners under Hindu law, yet, having regard to the fact that they were descendants of converts from Hinduism, among whom Hindu usages largely prevailed, the question should be treated in much the same way as if the family was still a Hindu family, and the Court would not require the same direct proof of the manager's authority to mortgage as it would in the case of an English manager under similar circumstances. (iii) That the plaintiff was not entitled to redeem. What was intended to be sold at the sale held in execution of the decree upon the mortgage was the whole interest in the mortgaged property. The defendant purchased that interest, subject to the right of the plaintiff to show that his share derived from M was not bound by the mortgage, and he had failed to do so. M's share as well as P's had passed by the sale. (iv) A member of the Christian community of the Island of Salsette is entitled to deal with his share in ancestral property by will. JALBHAI ARDESHIR SHET v. MANOEL . . I L. R. 19 Bom. 680

1. _____ Acts XXVII of 1837 and XXXI of 1850—Maxim "Omnia præsumuntur contra spoliatorem"—Salt thrown overboard to avoid measurement—Salt removed in excess of permit. Applying the maxim "Omnia præsumuntur contra spoliatorem," the High Court held that, where a vessel was seized on suspicion of having a greater quantity of salt on board than was allowed by its permit, and immediately afterwards a number of men boarded the boat, and with the assistance of the agent of the owner threw a considerable quantity of salt overboard, a presumption arose that there was an excess of salt on board at the time of the seizure beyond the amount allowed by the permit. Where under a permit to pass a certain number of maunds of salt on which duty has been paid, an amount in excess of such number is removed, the whole of such salt must be considered as removed contrary to the provisions of the Salt Acts (Act XXVII of 1837 and Act XXXI of 1850); and the whole of such salt, and not merely the excess, is under these Acts liable to confiscation. 3. _____ Bom. Act VII of 1873—Act XVIII of 1877—Duty paid under former Act—Effect of new Act by which duty increased coming into operation before removal of salt—Increased duty paid under protest—Suit to recover excess—Set-off—Excise duty—Customs. Prior to the 28th December 1877, the excise duty on salt manufactured in Bombay was R1-13-0 per maund, and the Act which regulated the importation and transport of salt in the Presidency of Bombay was the Bombay Salt Act (VII of 1873). The plaintiffs, who were salt merchants, were desirous of exporting salt from the salt-works at Uran and Panvel, and accordingly, under the provisions of Act VII of 1873, made four several applications in writing to the Assistant Collector of Salt Revenue for the necessary permits on the following dates, viz., 27th November 1877, 17th December 1877, 17th December 1877, and 24th December 1877. Each application stated the amount of salt which it was proposed to export, and at the time of sending in such applications the duty payable in respect of the amount of salt therein mentioned was paid. Receipts for the duty so paid were given to the plaintiffs, and all four applications were duly registered before the 28th December 1877. The salt comprised in the first three applications amounted in all to maunds 20,972, and the whole of this quantity, with the exception of maunds 2,748 had been removed by the plaintiffs before the 28th December 1877, but at that date no part of the salt which was the subject-matter of the last application (24th December 1877), and which consisted of maunds 10,483, had yet been removed. On the 28th December 1877 Act XVIII of 1877 came into force, by which Act the excise duty on salt manufactured in Bombay was raised from R1-13-0 to R2-8-0 per maund, and on that day the sarkarkun refused to allow the plaintiffs to remove the balance of the first three lots (viz., 2,748 maunds) or the last lot of maunds 10,483, unless an additional duty, at the rate of eleven annas per maund, was paid in respect thereof, alleging that the same was leviable under Act XVIII of 1877. The plaintiffs paid under protest the additional duty demanded, amounting to R9,096-5-0, and exported the salt to British Malabar having previously obtained certificates from the Collector that excise duty, at the full rate of R2-8-0 per maund, had been paid upon the said salt. On production of these certificates at the ports of British Malabar, the salt was admitted free of customs duty. The plaintiffs subsequently brought this suit to recover the said sum of R9,096-5-0, together with a sum of R1,000 damages alleged to have been sustained by reason of the delay in removing the salt caused by the conduct of the sarkarkun. The plaintiffs contended that, having paid the duty in respect of the salt comprised in the four applications and the said duty having been received by the Collector before Act XVIII came into force, they were not liable to pay any further duty, and that Act XVIII of 1877 did not apply to the said salt. The defendant contended that the additional duty was rightly levied on the salt, and further claimed to set off against the plaintiff's claims the sum of R9,056-5-0 which the plaintiffs would have been obliged to pay in importing the salt into British Malabar if they had not already paid it to the authorities.

in Bombay, but from payment of which they had been exempted on production of the certificates abovementioned. Held, that on the 28th December 1877 the plaintiffs had acquired the right to remove the salt, whenever they might think proper, by simply complying with the usual forms required by Act VII of 1873, and that Act XVIII of 1877 did not operate retrospectively so as to destroy that right and to impose on the plaintiffs a heavier burden as a condition of their removing the salt. Held, also, however, that, as the salt was allowed to pass into British Malabar on the strength of its having already paid the duty of R2-8-0 per maund at Bombay, the sum of R9,096-5-0 must be deemed to have been appropriated by the plaintiffs to the payment of the customs duty payable on the importation of the salt into the ports of British Malabar, and was therefore no longer recoverable from the defendant. The plaintiffs, by applying to the Collector of Customs at Bombay for certificates that the duty had been paid, by presenting them at the Malabar ports, and claiming, in virtue of such certificates, that the salt should be admitted free of customs duty, virtually appropriated the R9,096-5-0 excise duty (which remained in the hands of the customs authorities as money had and received to the use of the plaintiff) to the payment of the enhanced customs duties at such ports. Act II of 1890, ss. 11, 47—Salt pans—Lease under a license from Collector—Lessee not to sublet without Collector's permission—Sub-lease by the lessee without such permission—Deposit by sub-lessee with lessee—Illegal contract—Suit by sub-lessee to recover deposit cannot lie. Y obtained from Government a lease of certain salt pans to manufacture salt under a license. One of the conditions of the lease was that the lessee should not sublet the salt pans without the written permission of the Collector. Without any such permission, however, Y sublet the pans to R who, as a security for the performance of the conditions of the sub-lease, deposited a sum of R1,000 with Y. The sub-lease was acted upon and on the expiration of its term R brought a suit for the recovery of the deposit from the representative of Y, the latter denied R's right to recover the deposit on the ground that it formed a consideration for an agreement which, having been forbidden by law, was illegal. Held, dismissing the suit, that the defendant's plea should prevail. The real object and the necessary effect of the sub-lease was to enable the plaintiff to manufacture salt without a license in the guise of a sub-lease although that was forbidden by law and by the terms of the license. 1. ———— Principles of salvage lien—Right to salvage. A claim to salvage is founded on a principle of equity which the Courts of British India are bound to recognize It accrues irrespectively of the circumstance that the rescue is from a danger incurred on inland waters, or of the circumstance that a portion of the services may be rendered from the shore. A boat laden with indigo seed left Permit Ghât, about three miles above the pontoon bridge over the Ganges at Cawnpore, on the morning of the 6th of August. While the boatmen were endeavouring to cross the stream, the boat struck the bridge at a point where the current was running with a velocity of 530 feet per minute. The boat came athwart two of the pontoons, and by the pressure of the stream canted over on its side. From this cause, and also from the strain and other injuries, it began to take in water. Had it been allowed to remain in this position, the bridge must have broken from its moorings, or, more probably still the boat and cargo would have been submerged. The persons in charge of the bridge might have at once obviated all danger to the bridge by submerging the boat. They took measures to relieve the strain on the bridge and to remove the cargo. It was impossible to remove the boat until the whole of the cargo had been discharged. This was done, and the boat was towed to a place of safety, and the cargo was removed and stored in a warehouse.

Held, that a right to salvage accrued. Persons in these provinces, to whom a right of salvage has accrued, are entitled to retain the property saved until a reasonable sum has been paid or tendered to them in satisfaction of their claim. GILMORE v. ROSE . . . . . 6 N. W. 311

2. ——— Services entitling vessel to salvage—Towage. Where a ship is in a condition of actual peril, and the service of a tug are sought for and directed to the purpose of releasing her from that condition, such services are salvage services. But where there is nothing in those services as regards risk or exertion or other conduct of the salvors to make them differ from ordinary towage services, their reward should be estimated as for towage with salvage liberality. In the matter of the "ALABAMA" . . 2 Ind. Jur. N. S. 139

3. ——— Towage—Extraordinary towage—Claim of master and crew—Award—Apportionment. The S. S. C, while employed as a Government transport to convey troops and stores from Bombay to Egypt, broke her screw shaft and became disabled. While in that condition, the S. S. H B met her and towed her back to Bombay, the voyage occupying eleven days. The owners of the S.S. C settled the claim of the owners of the S.S. H B for R37,500, but refused to recognize any separate claim to remuneration to the plaintiffs, the master and crew of the S.S. H B. Held, that the services rendered were, under all the circumstances of the case, salvage and not merely towage services, and that R10,000 was a fair remuneration, for the master and crew of the salving vessel to be apportioned, R4,000 to the master, the rest to the crew according to their ratings. The plaintiffs were entitled also to one thirty-second part of the freight, if any, which might be recovered by the S.S. C under her charter party with the Indian Government. If towage leads to the rescue of a vessel in actual danger, or in reasonable apprehension of danger, the services should be remunerated as salvage. When the steam power of the salving vessel is the efficient cause of the salvage, the owners are entitled to the larger share of the reward. This is especially the case where the master and crew of the salving vessel incur no risk to life. But the reward of the latter ought nevertheless, in the interests of commerce and humanity alike, to be on a liberal scale. The rule no longer obtains which made the salvage reward proportionate to the value of the salved ship. The Courts are only bound to give such amount as is fit and proper with reference to all the circumstances of the case, including value. RAFFIN v. S.S. "CHILKA" I. L. R. 7 Bom. 196

4. ——— Calculation of salvage award—Steamers. The Court is bound to consider the time, labour, skill, enterprise, and risk of the salvors, as well as the value of the property engaged in the service; and also the degree of danger from which the property is rescued, and the value of the property so rescued. Steamboats are entitled to a higher rate of reward than other vessels by reason of the promptness with which they are enabled

5. ——— Goods put on flat during squall. A dinghee laden with gilders valued at R20,000 was being propelled across the river when a squall coming on and the dinghee being in some danger, the gilders were taken on board a flat for safety, and kept there till the squall subsided. Held, that the owners of the flat had no claim for salvage, and that R150 was a fair remuneration for services rendered. UMA CHURN CHETTY v. GORDON 1 Hyde 212

6. ——— Arrest—Excessive bail—Costs—Salvage services—Amount of award increased on appeal. In an action of salvage in which a ship was arrested, and the bail asked for was found to be excessive, the Court (PIGOT and TREVELYAN, JJ.) held that the promovents must pay the impugnants the costs occasioned by the bail required being excessive. George v. Gordon, L. R. 9 P. D. 161, followed. In this case the Court increased the amount of salvage award from £1,500 to £2,400, in consideration of the great risk incurred by the salvors in rescuing the ship and cargo, which were very valuable, from imminent destruction. In the matter of the Ship "CHAMPION" I. L. R. 17 Calc. 84

7. ——— Amount of salvage awarded—Mode of estimating salvage services—Allocation of salvage amongst officers and crew—Bail—Costs. On the 13th August 1898 the S.S. Cashmere, being (as found by the Court) in a position of risk and hazard, which by a change in the weather might have at once become one of danger was in need of assistance which the Naseri afforded her. The services, however, rendered by the Naseri were not of an extraordinary or protracted character. The owners of the Naseri sued claiming R1,00,000 for salvage services, and the master and crew of the Naseri filed a second suit claiming R50,000. The defendant ship paid into Court R5,000 for the owners of the Naseri in the first suit and R2,257 for the crew in the second suit. The value of the S.S. Cashmere was R78,000, and that of the cargo on board was R56,510. Held, that the amount paid into Court by the defendant ship was sufficient for the salvage services rendered. Held, also, that the cargo was liable in the same proportion. 8. ——— Service to a vessel in distress, though not in imminent danger—Interruption of service by accident—Towage service convertible into salvage service—Distinction between towage and salvage service—The indicia of salvage service—Costs—Practice of the Court in giving costs. Any service rendered to a vessel in a state of peril or risk or otherwise in distress, which contributes, in some degree to its ultimate safety, entitles the person rendering the service to salvage reward. It is not necessary that the distress should be actual or immediate, or that the danger should be imminent and absolute. It will be sufficient if, at the time the assistance is rendered, the vessel has encountered any damage or misfortune which might possibly expose her to destruction, if the services were not rendered. Services rendered to a ship which is in a normal condition, and has received no injury and needs nothing more than expedition or acceleration of progress, will be treated as mere towage ; it is otherwise in the case of a vessel which is in a disabled condition or has received substantial injury. In considering the question whether the service was of the nature of salvage service, the risks of navigation, the difficulty under which it was performed, and the danger in performing it have all to be taken into consideration. An ordinary towage service may, in consequence of supervenient danger, be converted into salvage service ; but the right to salvage may be wholly or partially forfeited by improper abandonment or by wilful misconduct or gross negligence on the part of the salvors. The mere fact that the service was interrupted by accident or some like cause, if it has been productive of benefit to the owners of the vessels, will not disentitle the salvors from their reward. In assessing the award the Court will take into consideration, not only danger and difficulties to which the salvor was exposed, but also the skill with which the work was performed. The shortness of service may often be taken as showing extraordinary skill and labour. When two separate salvage actions are consolidated at the instance of the common impugnant, and no order is made giving the conduct of both to one plaintiff, the promovents are entitled to separate costs. Practice of the Court followed, and costs given on the ordinary scale provided for in the rules under the Civil Procedure Code, and not under the schedule relating to Vice-Admiralty actions. In the matter of the STEAMSHIP "DRACHENFELS." 9. ——————— Compensation for rescuing vessel—Ingredients—Mode of assessing reward. Salvage is not always a mere compensation for work and labour. The interests of commerce, the benefit and security of navigation and the lives of the seamen render it proper to estimate a salvage reward upon a more enlarged and liberal scale. The ingredients of a salvage service are enterprise in the salvors, the degree of danger and distress from which the property is rescued, the degree of labour and skill displayed and the value of the thing saved. In a claim for salvage it was shown that the salvors had not risked their lives, that the vessel saved had drifted with several men on board fourteen miles from harbour, where she had broken loose from her moorings, had no steering gear on board, and only one sail, which those on board (only two of whom were sailors) could not set, and the evidence showed that, but for the assistance rendered by the salvor the vessel would have drifted out to sea and in all probability would have foundered. It was shown that a boat and some catamarans had been sent out by the owner of the vessel, but the finding of the Court was that it was most doubtful if the vessel could have been brought back to harbour by the party thus sent out, and that the danger from which she was rescued was very great, and that she was in imminent peril. The time occupied in the actual salving was about eight hours, but the salvors lost about a day in all ; the skill displayed was considerable, and the value of the vessel salved was found to be R10,000. Held, that plaintiffs were entitled to R2,000 for the salvage services they had rendered. 3. ——— Right to cut timber—Prescriptive title—Construction of grant. In construing grants by former Governments, the rule of English law as to the construction of grants to the subject by the Crown is the correct rule to be applied by the Courts in India. Where a sanad contained only the words "The village of Manavali had been conferred on you as inam, to be enjoyed by you, your son, and grandson. The Government dues of the village,—viz., the koolbale koollkunoo (i.e., all taxes and assessments), present taxes and future taxes, together with the house-tax, but exclusive of haks due to hakdars, shall continue to be debited from year to year, from the year next succeeding,"—it was held that the plaintiff's sanad did not operate as an alienation of the soil of the villages, or confer on him a proprietary title in it, and therefore gave the plaintiff no right to the timber growing upon the soil. The owner of such sanad, having only a right in the revenues and none in the soil of a village, cannot by thirty years' user become the proprietor of the timber. VAMAN JANARDAN JOSHI v. COLLECTOR OF THANA . 6 Bom. A. C. 191

4. ——— Grant of village by Government, existing rights how affected by. The grant of a village by Government, whether native or British, is subject to all existing rights against Government, whether or not the deed of grant contains an exception or reservation of such rights. Government cannot, by alienating its own rights in a village, albeit that the sanad purports to grant the village as a whole, extinguish or affect any substantive right therein appertaining to third persons, or convey to the grantee any larger or better estate or interest than was vested in Government. It is not open to the grantor to say that such words as the above mean nothing but land revenue. The saving of the rights of the hakdars and inamdars does not prevent the property in the soil, so far as it can be regarded as vested in Government, from passing to the grantee. 7. ——— Nature of estate assigned—Prohibition of alienation. The zamindar in possession by a sanad conveyed to A as the head of a branch of the grantor's family an estate, part of the zamindari, in lieu of maintenance to which A was entitled out of the zamindari, "to hold and enjoy possession from generation to generation," subject to an allowance for maintenance to a certain class of the family described as "lowahokans" and "motalokans" (dependants and relations). A's heir afterwards alienated a part of the estate for a valuable consideration. Held, first, in the absence of evidence of any class of persons answering the description of "lowahokans" and "motalokans" (which might have created a trust), that A took an absolute estate in the lands assigned to him; and, secondly, that the limitation in the sanad "from generation to generation" did not create such an estate as to operate as a bar to alienation by sale. 8. ——————— S C, a Hindu, granted a talukh to his sister, K, by a sanad in the following terms: "You are my sister; I accordingly grant you as a talukh for your support the three villages, H, F, and K, belonging to my zamindari, with all rights appertaining thereto, at a tahut jumma of R361. Being in possession of the lands and paying rent according to the tahut jumma, do you and the generations born of your womb successively (santan sreni kreme) enjoy the same. No other heir of yours shall have right or interest." At the date of the sanad K had one child, a daughter, C. She had afterwards a son, who died in her lifetime without issue, but whose widow, by his permission, adopted, after his death, a son, C L. K held undisputed possession of the talukh, during her lifetime, and by her will devised it to C, her daughter, and C L, her grandson by adoption, in equal moieties. On K's death, H. C, as heir of his father, S C, took possession of the talukh, whereupon C and C L claiming under the will of K, sued for possession. Held, by the Court of first instance, that C took an absolute estate under the sanad on the death of her mother, K, but that having elected to take under her mother's will, and to admit the co-plaintiff C L to a half share in the estate, both plaintiffs were entitled to maintain the action. Held, by the High Court, on appeal, that C, having been born before the date of the sanad, took under it a life-interest in the talukh, in succession to the life-interest of her mother; but that, as the plaintiffs had not sued in respect of the life-interest, but claimed under the will of K, which she was incompetent to make, the suit must be dismissed. The term "sontan" bears the wider and more general meaning of issue, and is not confined to make progeny. The true meaning of of the words "sreni kreme" in a sanad, as gathered from the context, was held to be in "succession" in the sense of succession first of the mother, and then of the children born of her womb. Held, by the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council, that the earlier words of the sanad, when read together, were to be taken as conferring an absolute estate on K; and that the effect of the concluding words "no other heir of yours, etc.," was to make the absolute estate before given defeasible in the event of a failure of issue living at the time of K's death, in which event the estate was to return to the donor and his heirs; but as that event had not occurred, it followed that K took an estate which she could dispose of by will, and consequently that the plaintiffs were entitled to succeed in their suit. Certain jewellery was also divided in similar manner. A died leaving a son, C, who died in 1865 without issue, but leaving a widow. Held, by the Privy Council (reversing the decision of the High Court of Madras), that the sanad amounted to an agreement by which the joint family was divided, and that on the death of C his widow was entitled to the zamindari. Periasami v. *Periasami, L. of military service, was resumed by the Government for arrears of revenue. In 1802 the Government formed two zamindaris out of it, and granted one of them, since called Nuzvid, to the second son of the rajas, under a "sanad-j-milkiat istemrari," which described the zamindari lands comprised in it as "the six pergunnahs of Nuzvid in the Kondapalli Circar." The provisions of the sanad did not differ from those of an ordinary grant under the permanent settlement. On the question whether this zamindari was, or was not, subject to the same rule of impartibility as that to which the ancient and entire zamindari of Nuzvid had been subject before 1793:—Held, that the six pergunnahs granted in 1802 were a new zamindari, subject only to the ordinary obligations imposed on zamindaris in general; and the word "heirs" used in the sanad construed to mean heirs of the grantee according to the ordinary rules of inheritance of the Hindu law. Also that this quality had not been transmuted into partibility either by the passing of the Regulation XXV of 1802 or by that law coupled with the issue of the sanad containing certain of its terms. Venkata Rao v. *Court of Wards, I. The zamindari in which these lands were situated was settled in 1802, and was in 1850 sold for arrears of Government revenue. The appellant claimed to set aside the sanad of 1807, on the ground that Government had no right to give such a sanad, but he contended that, if it had, it could be set aside by a purchaser at a Government sale. Held, that the sanad was not a new grant, but a confirmation of the one made before the decennial settlement, and that Government was competent to give such confirmation. The Court before which the perjury is alleged to have been committed is to give the permission: the change of incumbent leaves it still the same Court. ANONYMOUS . . . . 7 Mad. Ap. 12

3. ——— Initiation of case needing sanction—Initiation by party and by Court—Criminal Procedure Code, 1861, ss. 170, 171. In a case under s. 170, Criminal Procedure Code, 1861, the initiative was taken by the party interested, and the Court took no part in the matter except in the way of giving or refusing its sanction. S. 170 contemplated cases in which the Court itself took the initiative, but it was not intended that the Court should proceed in the manner there described except when the propriety or necessity of doing so is unmistakeable. In the matter of KOONJ BEHAREE GHUR 11 W. missal of a complaint by a private person, effect of. The granting of sanction to a private person under cl. 7. ——— Practice in granting sanction—Criminal Procedure Code (Act X of 1882), s. 195—Revisional power, exercise of, by High Court. When subordinate Courts grant sanction to prosecute under s. 195 of the Criminal Procedure Code, it is incumbent on them so to frame the proceedings before them as to enable the High Court to satisfy itself from the record whether the application for sanction has been properly granted or not. A Magistrate, in disposing of a charge of theft, delivered the following judgment: "The charge of theft of doors and windows is not proved at all against the accused. They are acquitted." There was no further record of the proceedings. On an application to the High Court to revoke the sanction:—Held, that the mere fact of the charge laid by the complainant not having been proved was not in itself sufficient ground for granting sanction to prosecute him under ss. 182 and 211 of the Penal Code, and as, beyond the judgment of the Magistrate, there was nothing on the record to show that there were sufficient grounds for granting the sanction, it should be revoked. dence. This sanction was revoked by the Collector. The Chitnis appealed to the High Court against the order revoking the sanction. Held, that the inquiry made by the Assistant Collector was a departmental inquiry, and not a judicial proceeding, and that the Assistant Collector, while holding the inquiry, was not a Court. XI of 1816—Penal Code, s. 19—Judge.* A Village Magistrate, having been apprized of a disturbance in his village, forcibly separated the combatants, one of whom thereupon preferred a charge against him of causing hurt. The complaint was taken by the Sub-Magistrate upon his file without any previous sanction of the Government or other authority mentioned in s. 197 of the Code of Criminal Procedure. The Village Magistrate raised the objection that the prosecution could not legally be proceeded with until such sanction had been first obtained. The Sub-Magistrate held that such sanction was unnecessary, and kept the case on his file and commenced to enquire into it. The Village Magistrate presented a petition to the District Magistrate raising the same ground of objection, whereupon the District Magistrate quashed the whole of the proceedings, holding that the Sub-Magistrate had no jurisdiction to try the case against village officer without sanction having been first obtained. Held, that sanction was not necessary under s. 197 of the Code of Criminal Procedure. The Village Magistrate, while preventing an offence, was not acting in the capacity of a Judge or a public servant not removeable from office without the sanction of Government, and therefore the sanction referred to had no application. Held, also, that the order of the District Magistrate quashing the proceedings of the Sub-Magistrate was passed without jurisdiction. Semble: That a Village Magistrate exercising jurisdiction, and trying an offender under Regulation XI of 1816, is a Judge within the meaning of s. 197 of the Code of Criminal Procedure and s. 19 of the Penal Code. the Magistrate held that such Chairman was not the public servant who had promulgated the order, and that it was not shown that he had been specially empowered to grant the sanction. Held, that the order of acquittal was wrong. The Superintendent of the Gun Carriage Factory in Madras, who is an officer holding a commission in the Royal Artillery, brought or caused to be brought timber within the aforesaid limits, without license. On a complaint being lodged against him under the section, it was contended that he was a public servant, within the meaning of s. 197 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, and that the Court could not take cognizance of the offence, inasmuch as the sanction referred to in s. 197 had not been obtained. Held, that sanction was not necessary as the offence charged was not one which could be committed only by a public servant, nor did it involve as one of its elements that it had been committed by a public servant. Nando Lal Basak v. *Mitter, I. Sanctioning a prosecution for an offence is a judicial act and the party to whose prejudice it is done must be previously heard and a judgment formed upon legal evidence. In cases in which the Magistrate dismisses the original complaint upon a report from the police, there is no legal evidence before him on which to form his judgment. In cases, however, in which the Magistrate examines the complainant and hears the evidence and acquits or discharges the accused, and then, without notice to the complainant, sanctions his prosecution for preferring a false charge, sanction cannot be said to be improperly given. The defendant then applied to the Munsif for sanction to prosecute the plaintiff, without specifying in his application the offences in respect of which he desired to prosecute. The Munsif granted sanction, merely observing that there were sufficient grounds for sanctioning the prosecution, without giving any reasons or specifying the offence or offences in respect of which sanction was granted. Held, that the terms in which the Munsif had given his sanction to a prosecution were not sufficiently explicit, and that he should have mentioned the section or sections of the Penal Code under which he authorized criminal proceedings to be taken, as also in a general way the offence or offences to be charged, the date of commission, and the place where committed. Where therefore sanction was granted to prosecute certain persons, one of whom was a boy of eleven years, for giving false evidence in a dacoity case and the sanction did not contain the essentials referred to:—Held, that it was defective in form and could not stand, and that the High Court could not take it upon itself to rectify the informality by supplying the necessary particulars. Held, also, that the sanction for prosecution against the boy-petitioner was unadvisable in consideration of his youth, and should therefore be revoked. 23. ——— Order of Munsif directing that Magistrate inquire into a case—Criminal Procedure Code, 1882, ss. 195 and 476—"Sanction"—"Complaint"—Civil Procedure Code, 1882, s. 643. On the 2nd August 1884 a Munsif, who was of opinion that in the course of a suit which had been tried before him certain persons have committed offences under ss. 193, 463, and 471 of the Penal Code, and that the prosecution of these persons was desirable, made an order which he described as passed under s. 643 of the Civil Procedure Code, and in which he directed that the accused should be sent to the Magistrate, and that the Magistrate should inquire into the matter. In May 1885, upon an application by one of the accused to the District Court to "revoke the sanction for prosecution granted by the Munsif," it was contended that the "sanction" had expired on the 2nd February 1885, and had ceased to have effect. Held, by the Full Bench, that the Munsif's order, whether it was or was not a sanction, was a sufficient "complaint" within the meaning of s. 195 of the Criminal Procedure Code, and that the limitation period prescribed by that section was not applicable to the case. Per PETHERAM, C.J., and STRAIGHT, J.—That considering that s. 643 of the Civil Procedure Code was closely similar to s. 476 of the Criminal Procedure Code, the Munsif's order might be taken as having been passed under the latter section. Also per PETHERAM, C. J., and STRAIGHT, J.—The words in s. 195 of the Criminal Procedure Code, "except with the previous sanction or on the complaint of the public servant concerned," must be read in connection with s. 476, which was enacted with object of avoiding the inconvenience which might be caused if a Munsif, or a Subordinate Judge, or a Judge were obliged to appear before a Magistrate and make a complaint

A suit for arrears of rent under s. 93, cl. (a), Act XII of 1881, was heard by a Tahsildar having the powers of and acting as an Assistant Collector. Application was made to him for an order sanctioning the prosecution of a witness for having given false evidence in the course of the trial of the suit. The Tahsildar referred the matter to the Magistrate of the district, who was the Collector, and that officer made an order sanctioning the prosecution. From this order the witness applied to the Court of the District Judge to revoke the sanction. That Court being of opinion that the Court of the Collector was not subordinate to it in the matter within the meaning of s. 195 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1882, declined to interfere. The witness then applied to the Commissioner of the Division, and that officer holding that he had no jurisdiction in the matter, also declined to interfere. On application by the witness to the High Court for revision of the order of the Court of the District Judge :—Held, that the Court of a Collector, when granting sanction for prosecution under s. 195 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1882, in respect of false evidence given in the course of the trial of a rent case from the final decision in which there was no appeal to the Court of the Judge of the district, was still to be deemed subordinate to it within the meaing of that section, and the Court of the District Judge may be taken to be the Court to which appeals from the decisions of the Collector ordinarily lie. It is not sufficient that the evidence in the earlier case may induce some sort of suspicion that the person had been guilty of an offence; but there must be distinct evidence of the commission of an offence by the person who is to be prosecuted. Queen v. *Baijoo Lal, I. An order granting sanction ought only to be given after careful consideration, and having in view the ends of justice, and not in order to assist the private ends of individuals. It is desirable in most cases that the Court should conclude and have all the facts before it before giving sanction, and that it should not do so at an early stage of the proceedings. 12. ——— Forgery—Evidence of charge, necessity for. Sanction to a prosecution of a witness or of a party to a suit, for the forgery of a document put forward in course of the trial of that suit, should not be given, without all the testimony available at the trial and bearing on the question of forgery having been first received, and it being satisfactorily proved that there is a primâ facie case made out for the charge. Quære: Where a document was not put in evidence or dealt with as evidence, but merely had a place on the Judge's file, sanction was necessary. The Special Assistant Magistrate declined to interfere, on the ground that, as the Sub-Magistrate had had judicial evidence before him, and had also held the necessary inquiry before granting sanction, the necessary conditions had been fulfilled, and it was not for him, at that stage, to usurp the functions of a Court trying the petitioner for the offence. Held, that it is the duty of the authority giving sanction, or upholding it under s. 195, to go into the merits of the application for sanction, with reference to the evidence before it which is relied on as justifying the according of sanction. Unless there is sufficient primâ facie evidence and a reasonable probability of conviction, the Court giving the sanction or upholding it will not be properly exercising the discretion vested in it by law. In re PAREE KUNHAMMED (1902). . I. 16. ——— Perjury—Discretion of Magistrate in according sanction—Improper exercise—Criminal Procedure Code (Act V of 1898), s. 195—Indian Penal Code (Act XLV of 1860), s. 193. The primary consideration in a case of perjury under s. 193, Indian Penal Code, is that the false statement should be intentionally made. Where in a case in which sanction was asked for the prosecution of the petitioner under s. 193, Indian Penal Code, for having made false statement in his cross-examination in a Court of justice, there was no finding by the Magistrate who granted the sanction that the false statement was intentionally made and there did not appear any evidence in the case of any such intention:—Held that the sanction was bad in law. Where the petitioner who had been convicted and sentenced to imprisonment in a criminal case brought against him by certain Sonthals 17 years ago, having been asked in cross-examination whether he was ever convicted and sentenced to imprisonment in a criminal case brought against him by some Sonthals, denied having been so convicted and sentenced, and the trying Magistrate on being moved refused to grant sanction to prosecute him for perjury:—Held, that the District Magistrate did not exercise his discretion properly in sanctioning the prosecution of the petitioner without considering whether the false statement in any way affected his credibility and whether it was not possible for him to forget the circumstances of his previous conviction, and whether the question was at all relevant. Sanction to institute criminal proceedings should be in express terms and should strictly comply with the provisions of the law. It is not a sufficient compliance with the law, if the necessary elements have to be gathered from the Court's judgment by implication. No sanction should be granted unless the Court has made up its mind that the accused has committed the offences for which he is to be prosecuted. That question ought not to be left over for consideration at the trial. 10. FRESH SANCTION.

1. ——— Necessity for fresh sanction—Postponement of case—Expiration of limitation—Criminal Procedure Code, 1882, s. 195. It is competent for a Court which has granted sanction to a prosecution under s. 195 of the Criminal Procedure Code to give a fresh sanction, if the one previously granted has expired by efflux of time. The limitation of six months mentioned in s. 195 means that a Magistrate shall not take cognizance of a case under a sanction which is more than six months old, not that the whole prosecution must be completed within that period. Held, therefore, where sanction to a prosecution had been granted under s. 195, and the prosecution had been instituted, and the Magistrate, in consequence of the evidence of the complainant not being procurable, had ordered "the case to be shelved for the present," and the complainant, after the six months mentioned in s. 195 had expired, applied to the Magistrate to re-open the proceedings, that it was competent for the Magistrate, having once taken cognizance of the case, and it still remaining on his file undetermined, to take up again at any moment, and proceed with the prosecution, without fresh sanction. In the matter of the petition of GULAB SINGH. The defendant then preferred an appeal which was dismissed on the 9th August 1883. dismissed. The plaintiff then, on the 20th August 1884, applied for a fresh sanction, which was granted on the 13th April 1885. Held, that, assuming that the Munsif who granted the fresh sanction had power to do so, as to which the Court expressed no opinion, such fresh sanction should not have been granted unless some explanation was given for the omission to commence proceedings within six months ; and as no such explanation was given, nor any special grounds shown why a fresh sanction should be given, the Munsif did not exercise a sound discretion in granting such fresh sanction, and consequently his order was set aside. 4. ——— Fresh sanction, grant of, after expiry of six months from the date of the first sanction—Criminal Procedure Code, 1882, s. 195. If six months expire after the grant of sanction under s. 195 of the Criminal Procedure Code, and no prosecution is commenced under it within that time, it is not open to the prosecutor to procure a fresh sanction and to institute proceedings upon such fresh sanction. The words "six months from the date on which the sanction was given" must be taken to mean six months from the date on which it was given in the first instance, and not from any subsequent date on which the purport of the order might have been repeated. The Munsif who tried the suit out of which the application for sanction arose refused to sanction any prosecution ; the Munsif who originally sanctioned the prosecution was a different officer ; while the Munsif who gave the fresh sanction was neither the Munsif who tried the case nor the Munsif who sanctioned the prosecution originally. Semble : Under these circumstances, it is extremely doubtful whether the sanction was such as is contemplated by s. 195 of the Criminal Procedure Code. The Magistrate held an inquiry and examined three witnesses, and then refused to accord sanction. Application was then made to the Sub-Divisional Magistrate, who granted sanction. In doing so, he did not hold that a primâ facie case had been made out, or that there was a probability of securing a conviction. He expressed the view that it was essential that the truth of the matter should be threshed out, and, for that reason, sanctioned the prosecution, as that appeared to be the only course by which it could be decided whether or no the very serious offence charged had been committed. Held, that this was no ground for granting sanction, or for setting aside the order of the second class Magistrate refusing sanction. If, however, he subsequently takes cognizance under s. 190 (1) (c) and then re-issue the warrant, it is legal. In re Harilal Buch, I. L. R. 22 Bom. 949, followed. A warrant illegally issued under s. 96 cannot be treated as valid under s. 98 by the operation of s. 537 of the Code. S. 537 does not give legal effect to a defective warrant, but only validates a finding, sentence or order, defective in procedure. The information, on which a Magistrate takes cognizance under s. 190 (1) (c), must be recorded. Thakur Pershad Singh v. Emperor, 10 C. W. N. 775, followed. It is nowhere laid down how much of such information the accused is entitled to have recorded, but, though all the allegations necessary to prove the offence have not been made out, if enough has been laid before the Magistrate to make out a primâ facie case, he is justified in initiating proceedings, and the High Court will not interfere. Proceedings instituted on statements which, though alleging no specific dates, are not vague or indefinite as to the facts mentioned therein, are not bad. If proceedings were instituted by a Magistrate from personal feelings of enmity derived from a long past dispute between one of his subordinates and the accused, and he was consciously straining the law to injure the latter, it would be the duty of the High Court to set them aside, but the Court would not do so, if the Magistrate was only acting mistakenly. The alleged defamation was contained in a Resolution of the Bombay Government, dated the 6th November, 1899, which after reciting the substance of certain papers which had been laid before the Government, stated that, after careful consideration of the facts disclosed in those papers and of the explanation tendered by the plaintiff, the Governor in Council had come to the conclusion that the plaintiff had been guilty of misconduct reflecting gravely on his reputation for honesty and trustworthiness. The Resolution then set forth the penalties inflicted in respect of the said misconduct. The defendant contended, inter alia, that the suit was not maintainable. Held, that the Court had no jurisdiction, and that the suit was not maintainable, on the following grounds : (i) The Governor of Bombay and Members of Council are by Statute exempt from the jurisdiction of the High Court, so far as acts done in their public capacity are concerned : that being so, no action lies against the Secretary of State for India in Council in respect of such acts of the Governor and Members of Council ; (ii) The Secretary of State can only be sued in respect of those matters for which the East India Company could have been sued, viz., matters for which private individuals or trading corporations could have been sued, or in regard to those matters for which there is express statutory provision. No suit would lie against the East India Company in respect of acts of State or acts of Sovereignty, and therefore no suit in respect of such acts lies against the Secretary of State in Council. (iii) The plaintiff was a public officer, whose employment was one which could only be given to him by the Sovereign or the agents of the Sovereign. Such public servants hold their offices at the pleasure of the Sovereign and are liable to dismissal at his will and pleasure, if the power of dismissal is not limited by statutory provision. The power of dismissal includes all other powers (e.g., of reduction of censure). It is open to the Government, by Resolution or otherwise, to censure or reprimand an officer. (iv) The Resolution complained of by plaintiff, being an official communication, was absolutely privileged. It could not be put in evidence or produced in Court, and no secondary evidence of it could be given. In respect of such official communications, no allegation of malice is allowed, and no proof of malice takes away the privilege. No action, therefore, could be based on any libel, however malicious, contained in the Resolution. It was contended for the defendant that the notice of action given by the plaintiff under s. 424 of the Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV of 1882) was insufficient, inasmuch as it did not allege malice, while in his plaint the plaintiff charged malice against the officers of the Government who were parties to the issue of the Resolution. Held, that the notice was sufficient. Such a notice is sufficient if it substantially fulfils its object in informing the parties concerned generally of the nature of the suit intended to be filed. JEHANGIR M. On a suit being brought by plaintiff for the illegal detention by the Village officer of plaintiff's property, the Village officer pleaded that he had acted under the orders of a Tahsildar, and that the suit should have been brought against the Secretary of State, and not against the Village officer. Held, that the suit was maintainable against the Village officer. 6. ——— Suit against Government—Stat. 21 & 22 Vict., c. 106, ss. 41, 42 and 65—Negligence of chief constable—Suit to recover damages—"Liabilities lawfully contracted and incurred"—Construction. In a suit instituted against the Secretary of State in Council to recover damages on account of the negligence of a chief constable with respect to goods seized, it was contended that the liability of the Secretary of State in Council is to be determined with reference to what would have been the liability of the East India Company, were it still in existence. Held, that the suit was not maintainable, inasmuch as the Chief Constable seized the goods not in obedience to an order of the executive Government, but in performance of a statutory power vested in him by the Legislature, for the appointment of the chief constable was not made by the Bombay Government, but by an officer clothed by the Legislature with power in that behalf; the seizure of the goods was not in any sense productive of benefit to the Revenues of the Bombay Government nor was it a transaction out of which profit could be derived and there had been no ratification or adoption of the Act. The term "Government of India" in s. 42 of the Statute points to its bearing the meaning not of the Governor General in Council, but of the superintendence, direction and control of the country. The words of ss. 42 and 65 are capable of the construction that the reference in them to the East India Company is in case of the earlier section to furnish a clue to the character of the charge, rather than to the conditions which can bring it into being, and in the later section to indicate the mode in which the liability may be enforced, and not the circumstances under which it may be incurred. In order that a suit should lie against the Secretary of State in Council, it must be one in which the East India Company might have been made liable and the liability alleged must be one incurred on account of the Government of India. In such a suit the plaintiff must, in order that he should succeed, establish that the liability was incurred on account of the Government of India, so that he must show that it was incurred by some one competent for that purpose. Before it can be said that a liability on account of the Government of India had been incurred by the Bombay Government as the result of the act or omission of the chief constable, so as to be chargeable on the revenues, it would be necessary to exclude those conditions which afford a principal exemption from liability for the act of an agent. But it is settled law that where the duty to be performed is imposed by law and not by the will of the party employing the agent, the employer is not liable for the wrong done by the agent in such employment. If the result of the appeal be against me I hereby bind myself to allow the plaintiff to recover the whole amount of the said decree, which I should pay, by my immoveable property, and, if the said property be insufficient, from me. Until the whole decretal amount is discharged I will not sell or make a gift of the said property to others. I thus execute this security bond." The bond was attested by two witnesses, but was not registered. The order of Court "Security accepted" was endorsed on it. Held, that the security bond amounted to a mortgage within the meaning of s. 58 of the Transfer of Property Act and not being registered was invalid under s. 59 of the Act as a mortgage and did not affect the property. The bond was also compulsorily registrable under s. 17 of the Indian Registration Act. The words "Security accepted" hereby showed that the Court thought the security sufficient. The bond does not derive its validity from these words, and it cannot therefore be brought within s. 17, exception (i) of the Registration Act. Tokhan Singh v. *Girwar Singh, I. L. In an appeal to the Sudder Court from a decree of the Zillah Court by a party then temporarily absent in England, but having real estates and factories within the jurisdiction of the Court, no security was furnished by the appellant's vakil within six weeks after lodging the appeal. The respondent in the first instance put in an answer to the grounds of appeal filed by the appellant, but afterwards filed a petition for dismissal for non-compliance with the requirements of Bengal Regulation XIV of 1829, s. 2, cl. 1, contending that the appellant was a resident of a foreign territory, and had not furnished security within six weeks as required by that regulation. The Sudder Court held that such security ought to have been furnished by the appellant, who, residing in England pendente lite, was to be considered as resident in a foreign territory within the meaning of the regulation, and dismissed the appeal. Held, by the Judicial Committee (remitting the suit to India for trial), that the Sudder Court had not, by Regulation XIV of 1829, any power ex mero motu to dismiss the appeal, (i) as the appellant was guilty of no default under that regulation, not having been called upon by the respondent or the Court to furnish security for costs; (ii) as the appellant was not guilty of laches in not voluntarily offering security, the regulation providing only that a suit or appeal should not be proceeded with until security was furnished. Semble: The putting in an answer to the appeal before objecting to the want of security for costs operated as a waiver by the respondent of the want of security for costs required for Bengal Regulation XIV of 1829, s. 2, cl. 1. Quære: Whether Act III of 1845 repealed Bengal Regulation XIV of 1829, s. 2, cl. 1. for the costs of an appeal (similar orders having been previously made on the application of other defendants), it appeared that an unusual number of defendants had been joined in the suit, which had been withdrawn on a previous occasion when nearly tried out; and that the plaintiff, who sued as a relator, was poor and resided out of the jurisdiction, and had not paid interlocutory costs, for which an attachment had issued. Held, that an appellant will not be ordered to give security for costs previously incurred; that the fact of similar applications having been granted in the suit, the poverty of the appellant, and the fact of his dwelling out of the jurisdiction, as well as the peculiar circumstances of the case, non-payment of interlocutory costs, a former withdrawal of the suit, and the joining of an unusual number of defendants, are grounds for granting an order for security to be given by an appellant for the costs of an appeal: that a relator suing to enforce a public right must give security for the costs of those against whom he proceeds. On an application by the plaintiff that the case be struck off for default of deposit, and that the defendant pay costs already incurred at the time of the application, it was ordered that the defendant should deposit a sum to cover costs of the future appeal, and in default that the case should be struck off, although the summons to show cause was not in point of form to that effect. 25. ———— Amount of security not fixed—Civil Procedure Code, s. 549—Security for costs—Dismissal of appeal—Practice. S. 549 of the Civil Procedure Code contemplates an order by which some ascertained amount of security is required. The last paragraph of the section seems to contemplate that, on failure to furnish security within the time fixed, an order for rejecting the appeal should be obtained from the Court that gave the order to furnish security. Upon the application of the respondent in a second appeal pending before the High Court, an order was passed requiring the appellant to furnish security for the costs of the appeal, and to lodge such security at any time before the hearing. This order purported to be made under s. 549 of the Civil Procedure Code, but neither the application nor the order stated the amount of the security required. At the hearing of the appeal, no security having been lodged, the respondent objected that, with reference to the terms of s. 549, the Court had no option but to dismiss the appeal. Held, that the objection had no force, no such order as was contemplated by s. 549 having been made. Held, also, that the proper course was to have applied to the Judge who passed the order for security, at any time before the case came on for hearing, for the rejection of the appeal, and that it was too late at the hearing to ask the Court to reject the appeal. They were tried jointly by the Magistrate under s. 117 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, and each of them was ordered to execute a bond with sureties for his good behaviour for three years. Held, that, even supposing the Magistrate was right in considering that there was habitual association between these persons in regard to the first and second grounds, there certainly would be no such connection between them in regard to their characters so as to make them dangerous persons and thus to render their being at large without security hazardous to the community, and that proceedings should have been separately taken against each of them. S. 110 of the Code of Criminal Procedure is not applicable where certain acts amounting to extortion are committed by certain persons in the performance of their duties as burkandazes in a zamindari, as it cannot be said that these persons are in the habit of committing extortion as individual members of the community, because if they were discharged by the zamindar or ceased to be in his employ, the acts would no longer be committed, it being no longer to their interests to do such acts in the interest of their employer, and they certainly would not be likely to commit them in their own private capacities. The object of enabling a Magistrate to take security for good behaviour is for the prevention and not for the punishment of offences. HARI TELANG v. QUEEN-EMPRESS . . . . I. L. R. 27 Calc. 781 required by a Magistrate, before issuing an order under s. 112, may to some extent be of a hearsay and general description; but when the party to whom the order is directed appears in Court in obedience thereto, the inquiry must be conducted on the lines laid down in s. 117. It is not because a man has a bad character that he is therefore necessarily liable to be called upon for sureties of the peace or for good behaviour. There must be satisfactory evidence in the one case that he has done something, or taken some step, that indicates an intention to break the peace or that is likely to occasion a breach of the peace; and in the other, that he is within the category of persons mentioned in s. 110, the determination of which question must always be guided by the considerations pointed out in Empress v. Nawab, I. L. R. 2 All. 835. A Magistrate is not competent, upon information that suggests the likelihood of a breach of the peace, to resort to s. 110 of the Criminal Procedure Code, and it is altogether ultra vires for him to demand security for three years in such a case. In ordering the arrest of a person under s. 114 of the Criminal Procedure Code, the Magistrate must act on recorded information; it is not enough for him to express a belief that such a course is necessary. Not only must he have "reason to fear the commission of a breach of the peace," but "that such breach of the peace cannot be prevented otherwise than by the immediate arrest of such person." Where an order has been passed under s. 107 of the Criminal Procedure Code requiring more persons than one to show cause why they should not severally furnish security for keeping the peace, the provisions of s. 239 read with s. 117 are applicable, subject to such modifications as the latter section indicates, and to such procedure as the exigencies of each individual case may render advisable in the interests of justice. A joint inquiry in the case of such persons is therefore not ipso facto illegal; and even in cases where one and the same proceedings taken by the Magistrate under ss. 107, 112, 117, and 118 improperly deals with more persons than one, the matter must be considered upon the individual merits of the particular case, and would at most amount to an irregularity which, according to the particular circumstances, might or might not be covered by the provisions of s. 537. Queen-Empress v. Nathu, I. L. R. 6 All. 214, and Empress v. Batuk, All. Weekly Notes (1884) 54, referred to. An order passed by a Magistrate under ss. 107 and 112 of the Criminal Procedure Code, requiring any person to "show cause" why he should not be ordered to furnish security for keeping the peace, is not in the nature of a rule nisi implying that the burden of proving innocence is upon such person. The onus of proof lies upon the prosecution to establish circumstances justifying the action of the Magistrate in calling upon persons to furnish security. Dunne v. Hem Chunder Chowdhry, 4 B. L. R. F. B. 46, and Queen v. Nirrunjun Singh, 3 N. W. 431, referred to. Where, according to the nature of the information received by the Magistrate, there were two opposing parties inclined to commit a breach of the peace:—Held, applying by analogy the principles relating to the trial of members of opposing factions engaged in a riot, that the Magistrate acted irregularly in taking steps against both parties jointly and in holding the inquiry in a single proceeding. Such a procedure is not ipso facto null and void, but only where the accused have been prejudiced by it. Empress v. Lachan, All. Weekly Notes (1881) 28, and Hossein Buksh v. Empress, I. L. R. 6 Calc. 96, referred to. In proceedings instituted under s. 107 of the Criminal Procedure Code against more persons than one, it is essential for the prosecution to establish what each individual so implicated has done to furnish a basis for the apprehension that he will commit a breach of the peace. In holding such an inquiry it is improper to treat what is evidence against one of such persons as evidence against all, without discriminating between the cases of the various persons implicated. Queen-Empress v. Nathu, I. L. R. 6 All. 214, referred to. Although in an inquiry under s. 117 the nature or quantum of evidence need not be so conclusive as is necessary in trials for offences, the Magistrate should not proceed purely upon an apprehension of a breach of peace, but is bound to see that substantial grounds for such an apprehension are established by proof of facts against each person implicated, which would lead to the conclusion that an order for furnishing security is necessary. What the nature of the facts should be depends upon the circumstances of each case, but where the nature of the Magistrate's information requires it, overt acts must be proved before an order under s. 118 can be made, and such an order cannot be passed against any person simply on the ground that another is likely to commit a breach of the peace. Queen v. *Abdool Huq, 20 W. But when the evidence was entirely in a person's favour, and showed him to be of excellent character and in every respect contrary to the sort of person against whom the section was directed, to apply its provisions to him on a week and unsupported charge of mischief by fire was foreign to the intentions of the Legislature, and not only illegal but oppressive. In the matter of the petition of HAMIDOODEEN AHMED . . 24 W. To prove a charge under s. 110, that a person is by habit a thief and a dacoit, or that he is so desperate and dangerous as to render his being at large without security hazardous to the community, there should be proof of specific acts showing that he, to the knowledge of some particular individual, is a dangerous or desperate character. It is not sufficient that persons, however respectable, should come forward and depose that they have heard that such person is a thief and a dangerous character, when they themselves have no personal knowledge of or acquaintance with him. the defendant within a year or so before the institution of the proceeding under s. 110, Criminal Procedure Code, cannot justify the making of the order under s. 118, Criminal Procedure Code. When the persons against whom proceeding under s. 110, Criminal Procedure Code, is instituted for being a habitual offender is a well-known resident of a city, his fellow citizens though not living in his immediate neighbourhood are competent witnesses to prove his general repute. (a) to (f) of s. 110 is a sufficient statement of the substance of the information as required by the former section. It is not necessary to give a list of the prosecution witnesses in such order. S. 192, cl. (1), is not restricted to cases of offences only, but is wide enough to include cases under Chapter VIII of the Code. Even if there was no power under the section to transfer such cases the whole proceedings would not, by reason of s. 529 (f), be void. Akbar Ali Khan v. Domilal, 4 C. W. N. 821, followed. S. 256 of the Code does not apply to an enquiry under s. 117. The prosecutor and the accused are both equally entitled to a full cross-examination of witnesses called by the Court under s. 540 on matters relevant to the enquiry. The Court cannot restrict the cross-examination of such witnesses by either party to the subjects on which it had examined them. Where an attempt was being made to protract the examination-in-chief of the defence witnesses to a most unnecessary extent so as to delay, if not to prevent, the final termination of the case, and the address of counsel had proceeded for fifteen days, it was held that the Magistrate was not unreasonable in fixing a time limit for the examination-in-chief of the remaining witnesses, and for the close of the address. In dealing with cases under Chapter VIII of the Code the Magistrate ought, especially where no previous conviction is proved, to test the prosecution evidence with great care. Evidence of association with bad characters, who were always suspected of being concerned in dacoities and many

If the existence of a right claimed by one party in a proceeding under the section is denied by the opposite party, and is not quite patent, the Magistrate should always endeavour to ascertain for the purposes of the proceeding their respective rights and liabilities, and not in all cases treat them as matters proper for the Civil Court exclusively. Where a doubt exists as to the existence of the rights and obligations, respectively, of the parties, the Magistrate should bind both parties down. Where, however, there is no doubt, the party in the wrong should be bound down, and not the one who has the legal right. No order of the Magistracy should in any way encourage the infringement of a legal right, or prevent the exercise of such right in a legal way, or do away with, even temporarily, the performance of an obligation. The right to the foreshore is a riparian right and ordinarily goes with the land above, and the proprietor has primâ facie the right of khuntagari or tolls. Dhunput Singh v. Denobundhu Saha, *9 C. of an estate, and pending these proceedings, a Magistrate instituted proceeding under s. 107, Code of Criminal Procedure, against one of the disputing parties and it was contended on their behalf that there being a bonâ fide dispute between the parties as to title and possession, the proceeding under s. 107, Code of Criminal Procedure, taken against one party alone to the exclusion of the other would prejudice the former in the land registration proceedings:—Held, that such a consideration was foreign to the matter under enquiry in the proceeding under s. 107, Code of Criminal Procedure. Held, further, that the question whether the one party or the other were in peaceful possession would have to be decided in the proceeding, but no objection could on that account be taken to the initiation of proceeding under s. 107, Code of Criminal Procedure, against one or the other party, if on the facts presented before the Magistrate at the time of its initiation it appeared that such party were out of possession and were seeking to obtain possession by unlawful means which were likely to cause a breach of the peace. Where some of the party against whom proceeding under s. 107, Code of Criminal Procedure, was instituted were further appointed special constables although the latter order was in abeyance at the time they moved the High Court: Held, that in consequence of the order the petitioners might have a reasonable apprehension that they would not have a fair and impartial trial. The High Court, therefore, transferred the case from the Magistrate's file. The Magistrate having allowed bail to the petitioners on condition of their undertaking that no attempt would be made by them or their agents to realise rent by force, and nothing would be done to induce a breach of the peace. Held, that the condition could not be imposed under s. 112, Code of Criminal Procedure, and should be struck out of the bail bond. Where an order purporting to be made under s. 144, Code of Criminal Procedure, directed the petitioners "not to commit any act that may likely induce a breach of the peace and not to take forcible possession of the village which is not in their possession." Held, that the order was indefinite and not in accordance with the terms of the section. Where, therefore, a person, called upon to show cause why he should not be bound down under the section, appeared before the Magistrate and agreed to be bound down, whereupon the Magistrate directed him to execute a bond without taking any evidence at all:—Held, that the order was illegal. The incitement of the members of a public meeting to exert themselves to secure "swaraj" does not amount to the offence of sedition under s. 124A of the Penal Code, and is consequently not within the purview of s. 108 of the Criminal Procedure Code. 2. ——— Government authority for prosecution—Sufficiency of authority—Complaint—Regularity of proceedings—Criminal Procedure Code (Act V of 1898), ss. 4 (h), 196, 200—Presumption of regularity of official acts—Evidence Act (I of 1872), s. 114—Re-publication of seditious articles—Penal Code (Act XLV of 1860), ss. 124A, 499, Exception (4)—Printer, liability of—Act XXV of 1869, s. 7. Orders under s. 196 of the Criminal Procedure Code should be expressed with sufficient particularity and with strict adherence to the language of the section. But the real question in such cases is whether the prosecution was instituted under the authority of Government. An order purported to accord sanction to prosecute the editor, manager and the printer of a newspaper under s. 124A of the Indian Penal Code without specifying their names, and containing a misdescription of the seditious article. A police officer received it from the Commissioner of Police, and under his directions applied for and obtained warrants from the Chief Presidency Magistrate against the accused. He was examined by the Magistrate, but not on oath, and his deposition was not recorded. On the day of the trial the same police officer filed an amended order under s. 196 of the Criminal Procedure Code correcting the error in the name of the article in the previous orders. Held (i) that the prosecution was regularly instituted. Queen-Empress v. Bal Gangadhar Tilak, I. L. R. 22 Bom. 112, referred to. Kali Kinkur Sett v. Nritya Gopal Roy, I. L. R. 32 Calc. 469, and Reg. v. Judd, 37 W. R. 143, distinguished. (ii) That the order under s. 196 of the Criminal Procedure Code was not a "complaint" within s. 4 (h), but that the application of the police officer for warrant in respect of an offence under s. 124A of the Indian Penal Code, coupled with his oral allegations, though not made on oath nor recorded, amounted to a "complaint." Queen-Empress v. Sham Lall, I. L. R. 14 Calc. 707, followed. (iii) That the presumption under s. 114 of the Evidence Act supplied any omissions either as to the method of the communication of the order to the prosecuting officer, or in the order-sheet of the Magistrate. (iv) That the article in question was incompatible with the continuance of the Government established by law and was seditious. It is the duty of every citizen to support the Government established by law and to express with moderation any disapprobation he may feel of its acts and measures. (v) That the re-publication of seditious articles from another newspaper, one of which only was filed as an exhibit by the prosecution and used and the case against the editor of that paper on his trial for sedition, was not a report of the proceedings of a Court of Justice, and was not justifiable under the circumstances. (vi) That the presumption contained in s. 7 of Act XXV of 1867, in the absence of evidence to the contrary, rendered the printer liable for seditious matters published in his paper. APURBA KRISHNA BOSE v. EMPEROR (1907) I. L. R. 35 Calc. 141

3. ——— Reasonable criticism of Government—Incitement to insurrection—Penal Code (Act XLV of 1860), s. 124A—Admissibility of seditious articles not forming the subject of the charge—Liability of printer for seditious matter in a newspaper—Act XXV of 1867, s. 7. A reasonable criticism of the action of Government in a particular matter without any attempt to create hatred or contempt against it is not sedition, but an incitement to insurrection falls within the scope of s. 124A of the Penal Code. Seditious articles published in the same newspaper, not forming the subject of the charges, on which the prisoner is being tried at the time, are admissible to show the intention of the person, who printed or published the latter. S. 7 of Act XXV of 1867 makes the printer or publisher responsible for everything appearing in the newspaper, whoever the author of the seditious articles may be, unless he can prove absence from the office of the paper in good faith and without knowledge that during his absence seditious matter would be published. It is not absence in good faith for the printer to go away, but with the full knowledge of what is going to happen in his absence and for the purpose of shirking his liability. Queen-Empress v. *Bal Gangadhar Tilak, I. 6. ——— Ground for mitigation of sentence—False evidence. Discussion as to the extent of punishment to be passed on certain raiyats who, in a case of criminal trespass brought by an indigo planter, falsely swore that cotton, and not indigo, had been raised on the land in question during the past year. Punishment reduced. SETON-KARR, J., would have reduced the punishment still more for reasons given. QUEEN v. DHURRANI DUTT RAI . . 8 W. R. Cr. 7

7. ——— Punishment for escape from custody—Penal Code, s. 224—Additional punishment. The punishment for escape from lawful custody (s. 224) in a case in which that is one of the offences of which the prisoner is convicted, must be "in addition" to any punishment awarded for the substantive offence. QUEEN v. DHOONDA BHOOYA 8 W. R. Cr. 85

8. ——— False evidence—Simple misstatement. A deliberate misstatement made in a Court of Justice, whether it tends to endanger the life and property of others or to defeat and impede the progress of justice, is not an offence which should be lightly passed over; but for a simple misstatement from which no such inferences can be drawn, a comparatively light sentence will suffice, particularly where the prisoner pleads guilty, and throws himself on the mercy of the Court. QUEEN v. GURJOON AHEER . . 7 W. R. Cr. 37

9. ——— Voluntarily causing hurt—Sentence by Subordinate Magistrate—Causing grievous hurt. Where a District Magistrate annulled a conviction passed by a Subordinate Magistrate (first class) of voluntarily causing hurt by means of an instrument for stabbing, cutting, etc., under s. 324 of the Penal Code (an offence cognizable by the Subordinate Magistrate), and directed the Subordinate Magistrate to commit the accused to the Court of Session for trial on the charge of voluntarily causing grievous hurt by means, etc. (a charge cognizable by the Court of Session), the High Court annulled the order of the District Magistrate, and restored the conviction and sentence of the Subordinate Magistrate. REG. v. HANMAPA BIN MALAPA . . . . 7 Bom. Cr. 37

10. ——— Taking illegal gratification—Order to refund money. In a conviction of taking illegal gratification, a simple order to refund the money taken is not a sufficient punishment. In the matter of MUTTY LALL CHUTTOPADHYA 16 W. R. Cr. 74

11. ——— Kidnapping—Maximum sentence. The maximum sentence prescribed for the offence of kidnapping should only be awarded in a case of the most aggravated nature. QUEEN v. BHOODEEA . . . . 8 W. R. Cr. 3

12. ——— Measure of punishment—Murder—Severity of sentence, mitigation of. Where a prisoner convicted of murder against the opinion of the assessors was sentenced to transportation for life, the High Court reduced the sentence to ten years' rigorous imprisonment, remarking on the severity of the Penal Code and on the necessity of administering it so as to make it apply to the various gradations and decrees of crime in this country. QUEEN v. HOSSEIN ALLY 7 W. R. Cr. 47

13. ——— Rape—Circumstances for consideration. The measure of punishment in a case of rape should not depend on the social position of the party injured, but on the greater or less atrocity of the crime, the conduct of the criminal, and the defenceless and unprotected state of the injured females. QUEEN v. JHANTAH NOSHYO . . . . . 6 W. R. Cr. 59

14. ——— Rioting with deadly weapons. In a case of rioting with deadly weapons, the one side found guilty of using them and causing grievous hurt are properly punishable more severely than the men of the other side. QUEEN v. MOORUT MAHTON . 8 W. R. Cr. 3

15. ——— Rioting and unlawful assembly—Affray. Where the evidence in a case failed to establish anything like an unlawful assembly, the conviction was reduced from rioting and being members of an unlawful assembly to one for affray, although grievous hurt from which death resulted was caused to one of the persons. The insufficiency of the punishment allowed by the law in cases of affray pointed out. QUEEN v. PHOOLLEE MISSER . . . . 12 W. R. Cr. 72

19. ——— Simultaneous conviction for offence, and order for security for good behaviour. When a conviction of an offence is contemporaneous with an order for taking security for good behaviour, the sentence for the substantive offence is to be first carried out, and the person to be bound then brought up for the purpose of being bound. QUEEN v. SHONA DAGEE 24 W. R. Cr. 13

20. ——— Sentence running from period prior to conviction—Illegal sentence. A Sessions Judge has no power to declare that a sentence shall run from a period prior to the conviction. QUEEN v. BUL SINGH . . . 4 N. W. 8

21. ——— Commencement of sentence where appeal is brought—Date of committal to jail. Where on the appeal of Government an order of acquittal is set aside and sentence passed, that sentence will commence to run from the date of the committal of the accused to jail, and not from the date of their arrest or of the sentence on the appeal. EMPRESS v. MAHUDDI . 6 C. L. R. 349

22. ——— Sentence to commence at future date—Conviction, and admission to bail to give means of appeal. Where a Magistrate, after sentencing two prisoners to separate terms of imprisonment, admitted them to bail, in order that they might have the means of appealing:—Held, that such admission to bail did not make the previous sentence one to commence at a future time, and consequently illegal. 51. ——— Penal Code, s. 71, —Criminal Procedure Code, ss. 39, 235—Rioting, grievous hurt, and hurt—Punishment for more than one of several offences. On the 8th August 1884 a Magistrate of the second class began an inquiry in a case in which several persons were accused of rioting and of voluntarily causing grievous hurt. On the 6th September the powers of a Magistrate of the first class were conferred on the Magistrate by an order of Government, which was communicated to him on the 8th September. On the 9th September the case for the prosecution having closed, the Magistrate framed charges against each of the accused under ss. 323 and 325 of the Penal Code, recorded the statements of the accused and the evidence for the defence, and on the 10th September convicted the accused of all the charges, passing upon each of them, in respect of each charge, sentences which he could pass as a Magistrate of the first class, but could not have passed as a Magistrate of the second class. On appeal, the Sessions Judge, on the ground that the prisoners had committed the offence described in s. 148 of the Penal Code, held that the sentences passed by the Magistrate were illegal, as being inconsistent with the provisions of s. 71, paragraphs 2 and 4; and he accordingly reduced the sentences of imprisonment which the Magistrate had passed to the maximum of imprisonment which the Magistrate could have inflicted under s. 148. Held, by the Full Bench (PETHERAM, C.J., and BRODHURST, J., dissenting), that the sentences passed by the Magistrate were legal. Per OLDFIELD and DUTHOIT, JJ., that the provisions of s. 71 of the Penal Code had no application to the case, inasmuch as the offences of causing grievous hurt and hurt formed no part of the offence of rioting. Per BRODHURST, J., that the sentences passed by the Magistrate were, as a whole, illegal; that if he had convicted the accused under s. 148 of the Penal Code, his order would, under the circumstances, have been legal, and that a

In prosecution of the common object of an unlawful assembly, M, with his own hand, caused grievous hurt. M and other members of the assembly, as to whom it did not appear whether or not any of them personally used force or violence, were convicted of rioting under s. 147 and grievous hurt under s. 325 of the Penal Code, and were each sentenced to separate terms of imprisonment for each offence. The highest aggregate punishment, which was M's, was six years' rigorous imprisonment, being one year for rioting and five years for causing grievous hurt. Held, that, assuming s. 71 of the Penal Code to be applicable, the sentences were not illegal as the combined periods of imprisonment did not, in the case of any prisoner, exceed the maximum punishment of seven years' rigorous imprisonment which could have been awarded for the offence punishable under s. 325. Held, also, that the riot could not in any of the cases be considered a part of the offence under s. 325, that s. 71 did not apply, and that the sentences were legal. Queen-Empress v. *Ram Partab, I. Four of the accused were also charged with and convicted of, respectively, causing hurt during the riot to the two men and a woman, and were sentenced to separate terms of imprisonment under ss. 147 and 323 of the Penal Code. Held, that the sentences were legal. During the course of a riot, in which X was attacked and beaten by several of the rioters, one of them, K, inflicted grievous hurt on X by breaking his rib with a blow stuck with a lathi ; X and three others of the rioters were charged with offences under ss. 147 and 325 of the Penal Code, and K was convicted under those sections. The other three were convicted under s. 147 and also under s. 325 read with s. 109. Separate sentences were passed on K, and also on the other three for each of the offences : Held, that the sentences on K were legal, but that, as there was nothing to show that the other three had abetted the particular blow which caused the grievous hurt, although they had each of them assaulted X, the conviction of them under s. 325 read with s. 109 could not be supported. In the matter of the petition of MOHUR MIR v. QUEEN-EMPRESS. In the matter of the petition of KALI ROY v. QUEEN-EMPRESS . . . I. 57. ——— Rioting armed with deadly weapons—Separate and distinct offences—Causing hurt and grievous hurt—Resistance and obstruction to Police—Penal Code, ss. 71, 148—152, 332, 333. Eight persons, who were charged with a number of others, were tried on various charges consisting of rioting armed with deadly weapons (s. 148, Penal Code), assaulting or obstructing a public servant when suppressing a riot (s. 152), and voluntarily causing hurt and grievous hurt to deter a public servant from his duty (ss. 332 and 333). The common object set out in the charge was " to resist the execution of a decree obtained by A against B in the Court of the Second Subordinate Judge of Alipore, dated 30th April 1891, and also by means of criminal force or show of criminal force to overawe the members of the police force in the execution of their lawful powers as police-officers," and it was held that resistance to the police was one of the component parts of the offence of rioting charged. At the trial in the Court of Session all eight accused were convicted of the offence charged under s. 148, and each was sentenced to the maximum punishment allowed under the section, viz., three years' rigorous imprisonment. Seven out of the eight were convicted of offences under s. 152, and sentenced each to an additional term of two years' rigorous imprisonment for those offences. Two out of the seven accused were further convicted of offences under s. 332 of the Penal Code, the hurt therein charged being caused to police officers engaged in suppressing the riot, and each sentenced to a further additional term of two years' rigorous imprisonment for that offence. The eighth accused, who was not convicted of an offence under s. 152, was convicted of an offence under s. 333, the grievous hurt being similarly caused to a police officer, and for that offence was sentenced to five years' rigorous imprisonment in addition to the sentence of three years passed on him under s. 148. It was contended on appeal—(1) that the sentences passed under s. 152 in addition to those under s. 148 were illegal ; (2) that separate sentences under s. 152 and ss. 332 and 333 were illegal ; (3) that the cumulative sentences under s. 148 and ss. 332 and 333 were illegal in so far as they exceeded the maximum sentence provided for either of the offences. Held, as regards (i), that as resistance to the police was one of the component parts of the offence of rioting of which the accused were convicted and sentenced to the maximum punishment provided by s. 148, and having regard to the provisions of s. 71, the additional sentences under s. 152 were illegal. Held, as regards (ii), that separate sentences under s. 152 and ss. 332 and 333 were illegal, as the hurt inflicted on the police officers was the violence towards them which constituted the essence of the offence under s. 152. Held, as regards (iii), that the separate

58. ——— Penal Code, ss. 71, 148, 149, 326—Separate sentences for rioting and grievous hurt. When a prisoner is convicted of rioting and of hurt, and the conviction for hurt depends upon the application of s. 149 of the Penal Code, it is illegal to pass two sentences, one for riot and one for hurt. But in such a case the two sentences would be legal, provided the total punishment does not exceed the maximum which the Court might pass for any one of the offences. When, however, the accused is guilty of rioting and is also found to have himself caused the hurt, he may be punished both for rioting and for hurt. In such a case the total punishment can legally exceed the maximum which the Court might pass for any one of the offences. Queen-Empress v. Ram Sarup, I. L. R. 7 All. 757, approved. 59. ——— Personating public servant—Extortion—Conviction for each offence proved necessary—Separate sentences—Sentence necessary upon each conviction—Penal Code (Act XLV of 1860), ss. 71, 170, 383—Criminal Procedure Code, ss. 35, 235. Where more than one offence is proved in respect of which the accused has been charged and tried, a conviction for each such offence must follow, whether s. 71 of the Penal Code applies to the case or not; and, subject to the provisions of s. 71, a separate sentence must be passed in respect of each such conviction. Under s. 35 of the Criminal Procedure Code, sentences of imprisonment cannot be passed so as to run concurrently. In a trial for offences under ss. 170 and 383 of the Penal Code committed in the same transaction, it appeared that but for personating a public servant the accused would not have been in a position to commit the act of extortion complained of. Held, that the first and second paragraphs of s. 71 of the Penal Code did not apply to the case; that the third paragraph also did not apply because the words "constitute an offence" refer to the definitions of offences contained in the Code, irrespective of the evidence where by the acts complained of are proved, and personating a public servant as defined in s. 170 was not a constituent element of extortion as defined in s. 383; that in the present case the former offence was completed before the latter had begun; and that separate sentences for each offence were therefore not illegal. 12. ——— Criminal Procedure Code, 1861, s. 59—Power to commute punishment after sentence of imprisonment. Under s. 59 of the Penal Code, a Court can sentence to transportation only in a case in which the offence is punishable with imprisonment for seven years or upwards. It may, in passing sentence for the offence, commute the imprisonment to transportation, but it cannot commute the sentence after the sentence of imprisonment has been passed. QUEEN v. PREM CHUND OUSOWAL . . . . W. R. 1864, Cr. 35

13. ——— Commutation of sentence after amalgamating two sentences. To bring s. 59 of the Penal Code into operation, the punishment awarded on one offence alone must be seven years' imprisonment, and cannot be made up by adding two sentences together and then commuting the amalgamated period to transportation. 14. ——— Commutation of sentence—Imprisonment in default of payment of fine. S. 59 of the Penal Code does not authorise the substitution of transportation for the imprisonment to which a Court can sentence an offender in default of payment of fine. KUNHUSSA v. QUEEN I. L. R. 5 Mad. 28

15. ——— Imprisonment—Penal Code, s. 377—Unnatural offence. When an offence is punishable either with transportation for life or imprisonment for a term of years, if a sentence of transportation for a term less than life is awarded, such term cannot exceed the term of imprisonment. QUEEN v. NAIADA I. L. R. 1 All. 43

16. ——— Commutation of sentence—Powers under Act XV of 1862, s. 1—Imprisonment or transportation. An officer who, in the exercise of the powers described in s. 1, Act XV of 1862, had passed a sentence of imprisonment for seven years, had power, under s. 59 of the Penal Code, to commute that sentence into one of transportation for the like period. 7. ——— Commutation of sentence—Penal Code, ss. 376, 511—Attempt at rape. A was convicted of an attempt to commit rape, and was sentenced by the Judge to rigorous imprisonment for seven years, which he commuted, under s. 59 of the Penal Code, to transportation for the same term. Held, that, under ss. 376 and 511 of the Penal Code, a sentence of imprisonment for the offence committed could not be for a longer term than five years, and such sentence could not be commuted, under s. 59, to transportation for a longer term. QUEEN v. MERIAM 1 B. L. R. A. Cr. 5: 10 W. R. Cr. 10

18. ——— Commutation of sentence—Imprisonment. When the law gives the alternative punishments of death, transportation for life, or rigorous imprisonment extending to ten years, a sentence of fourteen years' transportation is illegal. If the Judge thinks it proper to pass a sentence of transportation short of life, he should pass a sentence of imprisonment for the term fixed by law, and then, under s. 59, change it to transportation for that period. 9. WHIPPING.

1. ——— Sentence giving both whipping and imprisonment—Power of Magistrate—Act XIII of 1856, s. 27. Act XIII of 1856, s. 27, gave a Magistrate power to award either imprisonment or whipping, but not both, and a sentence which gave both was illegal. QUEEN v. FYZO . . . . Bourke O. C. 269

2. ——— Person convicted of two or more offences under Penal Code—Imprisonment and whipping. When a person is convicted at one time of two or more offences punishable under the Penal Code, the Court is empowered to sentence the prisoner in the one case to rigorous imprisonment and in the other case to whipping under Act VI of 1864. ANONYMOUS . 5 Mad. Ap. 18

3. ——— Imprisonment in lieu of whipping—Criminal Procedure Code, s. 395—Court not authorised to inflict fine in lieu of whipping. A Court has no power, under s. 395 of the Criminal Procedure Code, to revise its sentence of whipping by inflicting a fine. In cases where the sentence of whipping cannot be carried out, all that the Court can do is either to remit the whipping altogether or to sentence the offender, in lieu of such whipping or of so much of the sentence of whipping as was not carried out, to imprisonment, etc. The word " imprisonment " in s. 395 of the Criminal Procedure Code means a substantive sentence of imprisonment, and not imprisonment for default in payment of a fine. A. The Magistrate found A guilty of the offence, and sentenced him to three months' rigorous imprisonment. The Magistrate also found B guilty of abetment of the offence of voluntarily causing hurt to C, and sentenced him to one month's rigorous imprisonment and a fine. On appeal, the Sessions Judge held that there was no evidence to convict A, and he accordingly released the prisoner. The appeal of B, however, was rejected, on the ground that the evidence, though it did not prove him guilty of abetment, proved him guilty of voluntarily causing hurt; and therefore, under s. 426 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, the sentence could not be reversed. No "error or defect either in the charge or in the proceedings on trial" was alleged. Held (by MITTER, J.), that s. 426 of the Code of Criminal Procedure did not apply. SEQUESTRATION.

1. ———— Writ of sequestration—Contempt of decree or order of Court—Rule of Bombay Supreme Court, 389—"Forthwith." The process of sequestration for contempt of a decree or order of Court, as it existed in the late Supreme Court, will, in a proper case, issue out of the High Court. The object of rule 389 of the Supreme Court Rules, which required a party who wished to enforce an order by sequestration to indorse upon the copy of the order served upon his opponent a memorandum to the effect that in default of performance of the order he would be liable to be arrested and to have his estate sequestered, was to enable the party making such endorsement to apply ex parte for the writ. In the absence of such a memorandum indorsed upon the copy order, a party desirous of enforcing an order by sequestration must give proper notice to his opponent of his intention to apply for the writ. An order commanding an act to be done "forthwith" is sufficiently in conformity with the rule that requires the time within which an act ordered to be done is to be performed to be specified in the order. SERVICE INAM.

——— Lands—Resumption. The combination of an interest in land and an obligation as to service may fall under three heads, viz. : (i) there may be a grant of land burdened with service ; (ii) there may be a grant in consideration of past and future service ; and (iii) there may be the grant of an office the services attached to which are remunerated by an interest in land. In either of the first two classes of grants it may be made a condition that the interest in the land should cease when the services are no longer required, but in the absence of a provision to that effect lands held under those grants are not resumable at will. Where a plaintiff inamdar asserts that he has a right to resume, he has to establish that the combination in such as permits of resumption, and where there has been long and undisturbed possession enjoyed by the defendant and his predecessors, it will require strong evidence on plaintiff's part to make out his case. But it is not competent to him to exclude his successors from the entire management of the vatan. In 1825 the ancestor of the plaintiff who was a desai and the last proprietor of the deshgati vatan of Tegur, granted to the ancestor of the defendants a kararpatra whereby, in cosideration of the services the latter was to render to the former in recovering the vatan, the defendants' ancestor was to enjoy one-third of the vatan as vatani mutalik from generation to generation. Subsequently the plaintiff's ancestor granted to the defendants' ancestor a sanad which referred to the kararpatra already executed, and vested the entire management of the vatan in the defendants' ancestor from generation to generation after the said vatan was recovered. After protracted legal proceedings, in which the defendants' ancestor assisted the plaintiff's great-grandfather, the vatan was recovered in 1839. In 1846 the defendants' ancestor actually entered into the management and continued to manage till 1850, in which year Government put the vatan under attachment. From 1850 to 1864 he remained out of possession in consequence of the attachment. In 1864 Government removed the attachment and restored the vatan to the plaintiff's father. On being asked by the Collector to appoint some one to take possession and management of the vatan, the plaintiff's father wrote a reply on the 15th July 1865 that he had appointed the defendants' father to manage it, and the defendants' father continued to manage it till his death in 1880. On his death, a fresh mookhtearnama was executed to the defendants 1 and 4 by the mother of the plaintiff, who was then a minor. Under that mukhtearnama, the defendants managed the vatan till 1882, in which year the plaintiff, having attained his majority, wished to manage it himself, but was opposed by the defendants. The services in connection with the vatan had ceased in 1864. The plaintiff therefore brought the present suit in 1884 to recover the vatan, with mesne profits. The defendants set up the kararpatra and the sanad by which they contended they had acquired the hereditary right to keep the whole vatan in their possession and management and to take one-third of the income derived from the same. The plaintiff impeached these documents as forgeries, and contended that in any case they were not binding on him, as it was not competent to his ancestor to make a permanent alienation of the vatan or its management beyond his lifetime. The Court of first instance awarded the plaintiff's claim. On appeal by the defendants to the High Court:—Held, reversing the decree of the lower Court, that the rights of the defendants under the kararpatra were in force and binding on the plaintiff notwithstanding that the services incidental to the vatan had ceased. That document had been executed not merely to create a permanent office for the services of which a certain share in the vatan was allotted as remuneration, but it proceeded on the special service to be rendered to the family of the grantor by the recovery of the vatan itself. In other words, the performance of the service as mutalik was not the entire consideration or motive for the grant, nor did it expressly provide for the grant ceasing when the services should be no longer required. Held, also, that the sanad purported to exclude the grantor's successors in the vatan entirely from the management of the vatan, and to vest it in the permanent mutalik, and, whilst leaving them as the absolute owners of the two-thirds, to deprive them of all control over it. This was virtually to attach an incident to the vatan inconsistent with its nature which the plaintiff's ancestor was not competent to do. The parties were entitled to the joint management of the vatan as tenants-in-common in respect of their undivided shares. BHIMAJI BALVANT v. GIRIAPA TIMAPA DESAI . I. L. R. 14 Bom. 82

Alienability of lands when services are abolished—Bom. Act II of 1865—Bom. Act VII of 1863. Held, (i) that in the absence of fraud and collusion, adverse possession for twelve years during the lifetime of one holder of service vatan lands is a bar to succeeding holders. (ii) In the absence of fraud and collusion, judgment against one holder of service vatan lands is res judicata as regards a succeeding holder. (iii) Such lands become alienable when the services are abolished, except in cases where there is a concurrent family custom operating similarly to keep the vatan estate together. Such a custom may continue and may singly bind the hands of the successive holders of the property after the former restriction has failed or been removed. The abolition of the public duty does not alter the nature of the estate. If the family custom forbids alienation beyond the lifetime of the alienor, the custom will operate equally after the patrimony has ceased to be a vatan, as before. Where, however, such a concurrent custom does not affect an estate, then when it is freed from its connection with the public office the reason arising from that connection for the preservation of the estate necessarily fails, and the lands become subject to the ordinary law of descent and disposal. Per WEST, J.—(i) Lands with respect to which a summary settlement under Bombay Acts II and VII of 1863 has been effected are wholly exempt from official obligation. (ii) Where service lands, or what were deemed service lands have been aliened, and at a later period the service has been disclaimed or abolished, this subsequent abolition or discharge renders the title of the alienee in possession undisputable by the alienor's heirs, assuming that there is no special family custom operating apart from the law which preserves service lands for the intended uses. In 1865 the Government restored the rest of the vatan, again acknowledging K as the holder, the agreement with her being under "the Gordon Settlement." In 1865 K mortgaged two villages (part of the vatan) to one S (father of the defendants), who was the vatani karkun, for R9,900, which had been advanced by him to K, while the vatan was under sequestration. Possession was given to S, and the village officers were directed to pay him the revenues. Subsequently K repented of her bargain, and directed the village officers not to pay the revenues to S. He accordingly brought a suit against her for the revenues of 1869-70, and obtained a decree, in execution of which he sold the villages and bought them at the sale. In 1878, however, the Collector cancelled the sale under the Vatan Act (Bombay Act III of 1874). In 1873 S obtained a further decree against K for the revenue of two years (1870—72) and for possession as mortgagee. He got possession through the Court in 1875. K and P, who had been on good terms, quarrelled, and on the 16th March 1872 K adopted one B as a son to her deceased husband B D. In December 1872 P sued K and B, praying that he might be declared the son of B D, and that the adoption of B might be cancelled. In 1879 the High Court held that P was the legitimate son of B D, and that B's adoption was invalid. The legitimacy of P being thus established, the Collector, in 1878, entered the vatan in his name. At that time and until 1880, P and S were on friendly terms, the two having joint possession of the mortgaged villages, P being subsequently to October 1878 the recognised occupant, and S taking some, if not all, of the revenues of the two villages. In 1880 S died, and his sons, the defendants, quarrelled with P, who in 1881 obtained an order from the Collector directing the village officers to pay the revenues of the two villages to him, and not to the defendants. This order was subsequently set aside, and thereupon P in August 1887 filed the present suit to have the mortgage executed by K to S on the 15th September 1865 declared null and void and to recover possession of the two villages. In the alternative, he prayed for redemption of the mortgage. The defendants pleaded, inter alia, that the villages were not vatan; that they were entitled to the villages by reason of adverse possession; that the suit was barred by limitation; and that the plaintiff was estopped from disputing the mortgage, etc. Held (i), on the evidence, that the property in question was part of a dasai vatan, and as such was held on service tenure. (ii) That the property in question was subject to the rule which was in force in 1865, when the mortgage to S was executed, viz., that alienation by way of mortgage of any portion of vatan property had no force beyond the life of the vatandar who mortgages it. (iii) That the plaintiff having been declared to be the legitimate son of B D, he was from the date of his birth in 1848 the rightful vatandar, and K, unless she was manager acting on his behalf, was a trespasser. The fact that Government had entered the vatan in her name, and that the "Gordon Settlement" was effected with her, would no make her vatandar as long as B D's son (the plaintiff) was alive. (iv) That if K was a mere trespasser, then the plaintiff's right to recover the lands free from incumbrance, on the ground that he was the vatandar, had been lost by limitation, and the property had become K's by adverse possession. The plaintiff, however, as her step-son, was her heir. The mortgage was proved and was binding on him as heir, and as such he had a right to redeem it. 16. _____ Vatan service land, alienation of—Gordon Settlement in the Southern Maratha Country—Effect of the application of, to service vatan—Alienability of such vatan where services have been dispensed with—Vatandars (Bombay) Act III of 1874—Bom. Reg. XVI of 1827—Bom. Acts II and VII of 1863. R and his sons were members of an undivided family. In execution of certain money-decrees passed against R, the lands in dispute were sold to various persons from whom they were afterwards bought by the defendant. In 1875 R died, and in 1887 his sons and grandson filed this suit against the defendant to recover the lands. They alleged that the lands were service vatan lands and inalienable, and that the execution-sales affected nothing except R's life-interest, and that on R's death they (the plaintiffs) became entitled. They also contended that, even if the Court should find that the lands were not service vatan lands, they were at all events ancestral property, and that the plaintiff's interests therein were not affected by execution-sales under decrees to which they were not parties. Held, on the evidence affirming the judgment of the Court below, that, with the exception of two fields, none of the lands in question were service vatan lands. Held, further, that the two fields which were so excepted, and which had been the subject of a "Gordon Settlement" in 1864, remained inalienable vatan lands, although the services in respect of them had been dispensed with. The settlements made under Bombay Acts II and VII of 1863 made the lands thenceforth transferable as the property of the holder. Radhabai v. Anantrav, I. L. R., 9 Bom. 215. What is termed a "Gordon Settlement" was an arrangement, entered into in 1864 by a Committee, of which Mr. Gordon as Collector, was Chairman, acting on behalf of Government, with the vatandars in the Southern Maratha Country, by which the Government relieved certain vatandars in perpetuity from liability to perform the services attached to their offices in consideration of a judi or quit-rent charged upon the vatan lands. These settlements were given binding legal effect by cls. 2 and 3 of s. 15 of Bombay Act III of 1874. At the time when these settlements were made, lands were alienable by Bombay Regulation XVI of 1827 (as construed by the Courts) beyond the life of the actual incumbent, and the Gordon Settlement of 1864 (unless where it was otherwise specially provided by a particular settlement) was not intended by either party to those settlements to convert the vatan lands into

20. ——— Commutation of services—Desaigiri allowance—Right to hold as personal gratuity—Amin sukhdi—Suit to establish right to amin sukhdi. The parties, who were desais of Mahudha, in addition to their "desaigiri" allowance enjoyed an allowance called "amin sukhdi." In 1847 the plaintiff sued the defendant's father and the Collector of Kaira for a share of the allowance; but as the whole of it had been reserved by the Collector to the defendant's father as the officiating desai, the suit was rejected under Act XI of 1843. In 1866 an arrangement was come to, under which a sum of R40-2-0 was to be annually available over and above the remuneration of the officiator. On the 9th of July 1867 the defendant received this sum for the first time. In 1873 a new arrangement was effected, under which the service was abolished, the Government resuming half of the allowance and giving up the other half freed from service unconditionally to the desais. On the 4th of October 1878 the plaintiff brought this suit to establish his right to a share of the moiety of the amin sukhdi allowance given to the desais by the Government and to recover his share of the amount received by the defendant. The defendant contended that the allowance was impartible and in the nature of a personal gratuity exclusively enjoyable by himself. Held, that, independently of its origin and the light in which it was regarded by the Government and the parties, the amin sukhdi allowance having been actually included in and dealt with as part of the desaigiri vatan, and a moiety of it having been subsequently freed from the obligation of service, the desai who happened to officiate at the time the allowance was freed from service had no right to hold the moiety exclusively as a personal allowance to himself. The question to whom a saranjam, or jaghir, shall be granted, upon the death of its holder, is one which belongs exclusively to the Government to be determined upon political considerations; and it is not within the competency of any legal tribunal to review the decision. Inam villages and lands, with the mokasa, included originally in one saranjam granted under the Maratha rule for the support of troops, remained after 1820, when the rule of the Peshwa had ceased, a personal and military jaghir, forming a mixed estate of saranjam and inam. The tenure remained, under British rule, political; and no distinction could be drawn in this respect between the inam lands and the saranjam. The whole estate passed to the persons whom the Government at its discretion for political reasons recognised as the grantee, without its being competent to any Court of law to question the decision of the executive authority in the matter. 36. ——— Resumption of land granted with condition of service—Land granted as remuneration for service—Service attached to grant of hereditary office—Adverse possession—Limitation. Land granted with a condition of service attached to the grant cannot be resumed when the service is no longer required. But land granted as remuneration for service may be resumed when the service is no longer required, except when there has been a grant of an hereditary office to those who are to perform the service. In that case, the land can only be resumed when the need of such service altogether ceases. Where the services are still required, and the grantee has a right to the hereditary office, he cannot be deprived of the land on the mere ground that the grantee prefers to appoint some one else to officiate. The ancestors of the plaintiff appointed the ancestors of the defendants as hereditary kulkarnis, and granted to them certain lands as remuneration for service as kulkarni and as karkun. The service required as karkun ceased in 1863-64. Members of defendants' family officiated as kulkarnis for more than two hundred years. They continued to officiate till 1887. Their services were then dispensed with, and a stranger was appointed kulkarni by the plaintiff. In 1894 the plaintiff sued to recover all the lands. Held, (i) that the appointment of the defendants' family as hereditary kulkarni was valid. (ii) That the claim to recover possession of part of the lands assigned for the remuneration of the defendants as karkun was time-barred by the defendants' adverse possession since 1863-64. (iii) That the defendants' possession of the lands assigned for the remuneration of the defendants as kulkarni was not adverse to the plaintiff previously to 1887, but that, as the hereditary kulkarnis of the village, the defendants were entitled to enjoy the land to long as the services of a kulkarni were required, whether their services were accepted or were refused, provided they duly discharged the duties of the office should their services be required. BHIMAPAIYA v. RAMCHANDRA BHIMRAO . I. L. R. 22 Bom. 422

37. ——— Non-performance of service, effect of—Adverse possession—Limitation, liability to. Where lands are held as remuneration for services, the fact that no services have been performed does not of itself make the holding adverse. To make the holding adverse, there must be a refusal to perform service or a claim to hold the land free of service. KOMARGOWDA v. BHIMAJI KESHAV . . . I. L. R. 23 Bom. 602

38. ——— Non-performance of service—Payment of assessment by mortgagee—Change of title—Redemption. Plaintiff was the holder of certain inam lands, which were exempted from payment of assessment in consideration of his rendering certain services to Government. In 1873 the lands were mortgaged to defendant, on condition that he was to enjoy the usufruct in lieu of interest. In the famine of 1876 plaintiff left the village, and as no service was rendered, Government appointed another person to perform the service and demanded payment of the full assessment from defendant. Defendant paid the assessment and continued in possession. But Government did not forfeit the holding, and the lands continued, as before, in plaintiff's name in the vatan register. In 1896 plaintiff filed a suit to redeem the lands. Held, that, in the absence of a declaration of forfeiture of the holding, the steps which Government took to recover the assessment in lieu of service had not the effect of creating any change of title, and that the plaintiff was therefore entitled to redeem. 39. ——— Chakeran lands—Chowkidari duties. In a suit for the resumption of certain chakeran lands on the appellant's talukh, Government contended that the lands were appropriated to the maintenance of a chowkidar, and that the holder of these lands was liable to the performance of none but police or chowkidari duties. The talukhdar (appellant) contended that the lands were gram surinjami lands not liable to the performance of any but personal services to him, and not legally appropriated for the performance of these services, but resumable by him. Held, by the Privy Council, that the lands in question were to be considered as appropriated to the maintenance of a chowkidar in the talukh ; that the right of appointing such officer belonged to the talukhdar ; and that such officer was liable to the performance of such services to the talukhdar as, by usage in the zamindari, chowkidars were accustomed to render to the zamindar. 41. Forfeiture of tenure—Alienation without grantor's consent. In a suit to obtain khas possession of lands which were found to have been held of plaintiff and his ancestors by defendants and their ancestors upon a service tenure, but which the grantees alienated to strangers, without any acquiescence on the part of the grantor, and then ceased to perform the services, it was held that the defendants had forfeited their right to hold the land at all. 44. ——— Land tenure—"Mokhassadars"—Distinction between outright grant subject to performance of services, and grant of an office with remuneration from use of lands—Primâ facie ownership—Burden of proof of right to eject or resist ejectment. The tenure known as "mokhassa" is one which is created by an assign ment of a village or land to an individual, either rent-free or at a low quit-rent, on condition of service. Where the grantor of land on mokhassa tenure has made the grant as payment for services in lieu of money, semble that he may discontinue the employment and, with it, the remuneration, and resume the subject-matter of the grant. But when the grant was outright, subject only to the performance of certain services, the grantor is only entitled to insist upon the performance of the services, and is not entitled to eject the grantees until such performance is refused. Where the lands granted were the lands of the zamindar, and the grant was on the condition that services should be rendered, and that a certain sum should be payable to the zamindar in recognition of his ownership, primâ facie the ownership would remain with the zamindar : Sanniyasi v. Salur Zamindar, 1. L. R. 7 Mad. 268 ; and the burden of proving the plea that the plaintiff was not entitled to eject would lie on the person resisting ejectment : Mahadevi v. Vikrama, 1. L. R. 14 Mad. 365, referred to. A village was granted on a quit-rent of R144 per annum, and on condition that the grantees would provide the services of certain persons to act as custodians of the zamindar's property and to give personal attendance on the zamindar. These services were rendered intermittently, and not continuously, and batta was paid to the grantees when on duty. The quit-rent had never been varied throughout a period of 120 years, and the land descended hereditarily from father to son, there having been no instance of resumption during that period. Moreover, the present holder of the zamindari had taken leases from the mokhassadars as if they were the owners of the land, and had purchased other lands from them. Held, that the village had been granted in perpetuity to the mokhassadars, and that the present holder of the zamindari was not entitled to dispense with the services and resume the lands. Forbes v. Meer Muhamed Tuquee, 13 Moo. R. I. A. Sup. Vol. 181 : 13 B. L. R. 124, followed. A mokhasah village had been held by the defendants and their ancestors in a yearly quit-rent of R144 from a period antecedent to the introduction of the British Government on conditions of service to provide a specified number of men as custodians of the grantor's property and to attend him on hunting or military expeditions. The services were rendered intermittently and not continuously, and batta was paid to the grantees when actually on duty. The quit-rent had never varied for a period of 120 years, and there had been no interference with a devolution of the property from heir to heir nor any instance of resumption during that period. Held, in a suit for resumption by the zemindar, that he was not entitled to dispense with the services and resume the village at his option. His position is analogous to that of the Ghatwals of Birbhum. The under-ground rights, including mining rights belong to the Digwar, the right to receive the fixed rent alone being reserved to the zamindar. Sriram Chukrabutty v. Kumar Hari Narain Singha, 10 C. W. N. 425 ; s.c. 3 C. L. J. 59, followed. Government has an interest in maintaining intact the mouzahs set apart for the remuneration of the Digwar, and it has all along assumed itself to possess the right to do so. Where therefore the zamindar instituted a suit against the Digwar with the object of establishing his exclusive right to the sub-soil and minerals. Held, that the Government was a necessary party to the suit. BROJO NATH BOSE v. DURGA PERSAD SINGH (1907) 12 C. W. N. 193

48. ——— Resumption—Digwars of Ramgurh—Dismissal by Government and re-settlement with them as sikmi talookdars—Default, proof of—Act VIII of 1878, settlement under—Effect. The Digwari service in this case corresponded closely with what in other cases have been termed ghatwali. There is nothing in the use of the term Digwar to raise any presumption in favour of the contention that the holders of land by a service so named hold as personal servants of the Rajah. If anything, the presumption would seem to be the other way. The power of Government, although generally exercised through the Rajah, was always recognised as supreme with respect to the supervision over the Digwars in regard to the discharge by them of their police duties. The Rajah of Ramgurh never possessed or exercised a right to dismiss the Digwars and to resume the Digwari grants, save in cases of default ; and by the terms under which persons held Digwari grants, no such power was given or reserved to the Rajah. The dismissal by Government of the Digwars and the substitution for them as a new system of rural police supposed to be of superior quality did not entitle the Rajah to resume the lands as for default. The subsequent settlement of the lands by Government, purporting to act under Bengal Act VIII of 1878, with the dismissed Digwars, treating them as sikmi talookdars, and imposing on them assessments, for road and police purposes on an amount far beyond the burden which previously rested on the holdings in the shape of supplying patrols, amounted to a continuance in the form imposed by statute of their public duties. There was no default. NAM NARAIN SINGH v. TEKAIT GANJHU (1889)

22. ——— Amendment of sentence—Alteration of conviction—Criminal Procedure Code, 1861, s. 22. Held, that an order of a Sessions Judge, by which he altered a conviction by the Assistant Sessions Judge of " dacoity " to one of " robbery " was illegal, not being an amendment of a sentence or order within the meaning of s. 22 of the Criminal Procedure Code. Held, further, that, if the accused were, in the opinion of the Sessions Judge, improperly convicted of " dacoity," he ought to have declined to confirm the sentence and to have left them to be charged with and tried for " robbery." 23. ——— Concurrent jurisdiction with Magistrate—Criminal Procedure Code, 1861, s. 434—Report to High Court. A full-power Magistrate was not immediately subordinate to the Sessions Court, and therefore a Sessions Judge had no concurrent jurisdiction with the Magistrate of the district, under s. 434 of the Code of Criminal Procedure. His proper course, if he thinks that an illegal sentence or order has been passed by a full-power Magistrate, is to make a report to the High Court, which will then, if it thinks fit, call for the proceedings. REG. v. SHIVASAPA . 7 Bom. Cr. 73

24. ——— Power to call for and refer to the High Court proceedings of Magistrate—*Criminal Procedure Code, 1869, s. 23. 55. ——— Criminal Procedure Code, s. 289—"No evidence"—Acquittal of accused without taking opinions of assessors. The words "there is no evidence" in s. 289 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1882, cannot be extended to mean no satisfactory, trustworthy, or conclusive evidence ; but the third paragraph of the section means that, if at a certain stage of a Sessions trial the Court is satisfied that there is not on the record any evidence which, even if it were perfectly true, would amount to legal proof of the offence charged, then the Court has power, without consulting the assessors, to record a finding of not guilty. But where a Court so acts only because it considers the evidence for the prosecution unsatisfactory, untrustworthy, or inconclusive, it acts without jurisdiction, and its order discharging the accused is illegal. Even if not illegal for want of jurisdiction, such action is a serious irregularity, which may or perhaps must have caused a failure of justice within the meaning of s. 537 of the Code of Criminal Procedure. *In the matter of the petition of Narain Dass, I. They there denied that they had been taken as approvers, whereupon the Sessions Judge placed them in the dock, called on them to plead, and permitted the depositions made by them before the Magistrate, but not their confessional statements, to be read to the jury. Held, that the trial of the the two persons, who had not been committed to the Sessions Court, was ultra vires. The proper course was to have treated the evidence given by them before the committing Magistrate as evidence in the case under s. 288 of the Code, and to have allowed the other accused to cross-examine them. Per curiam: The Sessions Judge committed an irregularity in refusing to place on the record the confessional statements of persons whom he treated as accused. On the 27th of April U was tendered a pardon, and was thereafter treated as an approver, in which capacity she gave evidence against J. J was then committed to the Court of Sessions to take his trial, U being sent up as an approver. 59. ——— Powers of Sessions Judge on revision—Further enquiry, power of Sessions Judge to direct—Criminal Procedure Code (Act X of 1882), ss. 423, 435, 436, 439. A complaint was made before a Magistrate, which involved a charge of dacoity against the accused person and others. The Magistrate, in dealing with the case, proceeded under s. 209 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, and, finding no case of dacoity primâ facie established, proceeded to frame charges under s. 254 of the Code charging the accused with offences under ss. 380 and 448 of the Penal Code, viz., theft in a building and criminal trespass. Having heard the whole of the evidence, he then acquitted the accused under s. 258 of the Code, and gave him sanction under s. 195 to prosecute the complainant under s. 211 of the Penal Code. The complainant then applied to the Sessions Judge to revoke that sanction. The Sessions Judge proceeded to consider the whole case, and finding that a proper inquiry had not been made and all evidence available not taken, and that, had this been otherwise, a Sessions case might have been established, directed the Magistrate to hold a further inquiry, and to proceed, in accordance with the result of such inquiry, either to commit the accused to the Sessions or grant the sanction, as the case might be. Held, that the Sessions Judge had exercised a jurisdiction not vested in him by law. Acting as a Revision Court, he could send for the record for any purpose mentioned in s. 436, but he was not competent under s. 436 to direct a fresh inquiry, inasmuch as the accused had not been improperly discharged of an offence triable exclusively by a Court of Session, but had been acquitted of an offence within the Magistrate's jurisdiction. The Sessions Judge had in fact exercised the jurisdiction vested in him as an Appellate Court under s. 423, as if an appeal had been presented to him from an order of an acquittal; such powers in revision cases are only conferred on the High Court. The accused appealed, and in appeal denied that he had committed the offence. The Sessions Judge was of opinion that, as the accused had pleaded guilty at the trial, he had no power to deal with the appeal except as regards the amount of punishment awarded. He therefore referred the case to the High Court. Held, that the Sessions Judge was competent to deal with the whole appeal. S. 412 of the Criminal Procedure Code (Act X of 1882) had no application. Apart from the general power given to an Appellate Court to order re-trial, under s. 423 (b), Code of Criminal Procedure, a Sessions Judge is empowered by s. 232, Code of Criminal Procedure, to direct a re-trial to be had upon a charge, framed in whatever manner he thinks fit, on the ground that the accused had been misled in his defence by the absence of a charge or a defect in the charge. Certain owners of land were convicted under s. 154 or s. 155 of the Indian Penal Code, for acts or omissions on the part of their agents. The charges framed by the Magistrate against them, however, referred only to the knowledge and belief and acts and omission of the accused themselves. The Sessions Judge, on appeal, held that, by reason of the omission to insert the words "or their agents or managers" in the charge, the accused had been seriously prejudiced in their defence, and directed a new trial upon charges so amended as to have reference to the acts and omissions of the agents. Held, that the order for re-trial was legally made by the Sessions Judge. contract—Damages. The right of set-off exists where there are cross-demands arising out of one and the same transaction, or where these are so connected in their nature and circumstances as to make it inequitable that the plaintiff should recover and the defendant be driven to a cross-suit. In a suit to recover money due under a contract made between the plaintiff and defendants:—Held, that the defendants were entitled to set off the amount of damages which the defendants had proved they had sustained by reason of the plaintiff's breach of the contract sued on. 8. ——— Civil Procedure Code, s. 111—Suit for balance of account. The defendant was lessee from Government of a bridge of boats over the Ganges under a lease for five years, the consideration for which was payable by instalments extending over the term of the lease. The lease contained, amongst other provisions, one to the effect that the Government, if it saw fit at the expiration of the lease to farm the bridge to any other contractor, should be bound to take over the lessee's plant at a fair valuation to be determined by arbitration; and another clause provided that "should the Government, however, see fit to cancel the lease during its currency with a view to substitute a pontoon bridge or for any other cause, for which the lessee is not responsible, he will be entitled to compensation from Government for all losses." The lessee died before the expiration of the lease, and the Magistrate of the district, acting on behalf of the Government, proceeded to deprive his representatives of the use of the bridge and to seize the stock and materials. The Magistrate then directed two persons to assess the value of the stock which was ultimately fixed at R10,900. The Magistrate added a percentage, bringing the total amount up to R12,100, and a suit was filed on behalf of Government against the representatives of the deceased lessee giving credit to the defendants for such amount, and claiming the balance due in respect of the last two instalments under the contract. Held, that the sum of R12,100 assessed in the manner above described could not strictly be regarded as a set-off. The suit was one for balance of account, and the defendants were entitled to dispute the correctness of the plaintiff's estimate of the item allowed in their favour. 9. ——— Civil Procedure Code, ss. 111, 216—Cross-claims of the nature of set-off. The plaintiffs agreed to purchase from the defendant certain timber. They paid part of the price in advance and took delivery of some part of the timber, but refused to take delivery of the rest, and subsequently sued the defendant to recover part of the price paid, alleging that the portion of which they had taken delivery was not of the quality contracted for. Held, that in such a suit the defendant might claim by way of set-off compensation for the loss which he had incurred in the re-sale of that portion of the timber, the subject of the contract, or which the plaintiffs had failed to take delivery. S. 111 of the Code of Civil Procedure is not exhaustive of the descriptions of cross-claim which may be allowed by way of set-off. Clark v. Ruthnavaloo Chetti, 2 Mad. 296; Kistnaswamy Pillay v. Municipal Commissioners for the Town of Madras, 4 Mad. 120; Kishorchand Champalal v. *Madhowji Visram, I. 10. ——— Right to set-off a claim for unliquidated damages—Civil Procedure Code (Act X of 1877), s. 111—Costs—Act XXVI of 1864, s. 9. The provisions of the Civil Procedure Code (Act X of 1877) do not give the right to set off claims for unliquidated damages, but that Code does not take away any right of set-off, whether legal or equitable, which parties to a suit would have independently of its provisions. Where, therefore, in a suit for the price of goods sold and delivered, the defendant admitted that there was a sum of R1,159-12-0 due by him to the plaintiff, but sought to set-off the sum of R972 as damages sustained by him by reason of the non-delivery of some of the goods contracted for, it was held that, as the claim of the defendant against the plaintiff was connected with the same transaction and arose out of one and the same contract as that in respect of which the plaintiff's suit was brought, and as the amount of the defendant's claims was capable of being immediately ascertained, the defendant might set-off his claim. Clark v. Ruthnavaloo Chetti, 2 Mad. 296, and Kistnasamy Pillay v. Municipal Commissioners of Madras, 4 Mad. 120, followed. Where the defendant proved a set-off against the plaintiff, and thus reduced the amount which he (plaintiff) was entitled to recover from the defendant, for breach of contract:—Held, that, notwithstanding the provisions of s. 9 of Act XXVI of 1864, the plaintiff was entitled to his costs. 11. ——— Right to set-off a claim for an unascertained amount—Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV of 1882), s. 111. The provision of the Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV of 1882), s. 111, does not take away from parties any right to set-off, whether legal or equitable, which they would have had independently of that Code. And such right exists not only in cases of material debts and credits, but also where cross-demands arise out of the same transaction, or are so connected in their nature and circumstance as to make it inequitable that the plaintiff should recover, and the defendant should be driven to a cross-suit. Where, therefore, a decree had been obtained against certain persons in respect of arrears of rent of an ijara held jointly by them, and one of them having been forced, to pay the whole amount of decree, sued the others, for contribution, and where in such suit the defendants pleaded that, although the plaintiff had paid off the whole of the decree in question, he was not entitled to recover any portion from them, inasmuch as he was indebted to them for his share of the ijara rents, the whole of which had been paid by them to the zamindar in previous years, as well as in respect of rent due to them for the share on account of a portion of the land which he himself held in nij-jote, and for which he had paid no rent, and that, on accounts being gone into, it would be found that their claim exceeded that of the plaintiff:—Held, following Clark v. Ruthnavaloo Chetti, 2 Mad. 296, and Kishorchand Champalal v. Madhowji Visram, I. L. R. 4 Bom. 407, that notwithstanding the provisions of s. 111 of the Civil Procedure Code, the defendants' claim for the share of rents paid by them to the zamindar on account of the same ijara might properly be pleaded as a set-off and be taken into account in determining the plaintiff's suit as arising out of the same transaction, but that their claim for rent for the portion of the lands held by the plaintiff in nij-jote could not be treated in such manner, but must form the subject-matter of a separate suit. 12. ——— Right to set off damages for breach of contract—Civil Procedure Code, 1882, s. 111—"Ascertained" sum. A suit was brought by P against the Elgin Mills Company for recovery of the price of wood supplied under two contracts, each of which contained a clause by which the plaintiff contracted to indemnify the defendants for loss arising by reason of failure on his part to supply the wood as contracted for. Defendants claimed a set-off as damages for loss incurred by the plaintiff's failure to supply all the wood contracted for, such loss having arisen on the 25th October 1879 and subsequently. Held, that, although, taking the word "ascertained" to mean "liquidated," the claim of the defendants for damages would not come within the meaning of a set-off under s. 111 of the Civil Procedure Code, that section was one regulating procedure and was not intended to take away any right of set-off, whether legal or equitable, which parties would have had independently of its provisions, that the right of set-off would be found to exist not only in cases of mutual debts and credits, but also where the cross-demands arose out of one and

13. ——— Civil Procedure Code, 1859, s. 121—Suit or award determining several items—Mutual liability under award. G and R referred to arbitration disputes between them regarding the partition of their paternal estate. The concluding portion of the award ran as follows: "Both parties shall jointly satisfy the debts on the creditors demanding payment, which debts are joint and have hereunder been declared payable by both parties. Should one party neglect to pay or show carelessness in the matter, and should the other be obliged to pay the whole amount of any such debts, the latter shall be competent to realize from the former portion of the debt paid on his account, together with costs and interest by the enforcement of this award, and shall also be entitled to recover the amount by suit in Court. Both parties shall act up to this award in its entirety. The sum of R338-0-9 which has been found due and payable by G to R as per account showing the mutual dealings between the parties, shall be made good as follows, i.e., G shall pay to R the whole amount of R338-0-9 by the middle of the month of Pous 1276 Fasli, either in a lump sum or by instalments, and in case of non-payment within the said period he shall be charged with interest at the rate of one per cent. up to the day of payment." R sued to recover from G the money found to be due and payable to him under the award. G admitted the claim, but desired to set-off half the amount of certain debts which were payable under the award by the parties jointly, and which he alone had satisfied. The lower Appellate Court deducted from the claim items of the demand admitted by R, but refused to determine G's right to set off the items which R disputed on the ground that they could be more conveniently inquired into in a separate suit. It was held (per STUART,

17. ——— Civil Procedure Code, 1882, s. 111—Court-fee on set-off. In a suit to recover a sum of money due as wages, the plaintiff alleging that the defendant had engaged him to sell cloth on his account at a monthly salary, the defendant cla imed a set-off as the price of cloth which he alleged the plaintiff had sold on his account on commissio . It appeared that the defendant had previously sued the plaintiff to recover the same amount as was now claimed by way of set-off, as being due for the price of cloth sold and delivered by the defendant to him ; and the plaintiff (then defendant) pleaded that there had been no sale to him, but the cloth had been delivered to him on commission sale.

The suit was dismissed on the ground that there was no proof of a sale of cloth, and the question whether any sum was due for cloth sold on commission sale was not gone into. The cloth now alleged to have been delivered on commission sale was the same as that alleged in the former suit to have been actually sold to the plaintiff. Held, that the defendant was entitled, under s. 111 of the Civil Procedure Code, to set off the amount claimed as due for goods sold on commission against the plaintiff's demand. Held, also, that the court-fee payable on the claim for set-off was the same as for a plaint in a suit. 21. ——— Purchase by patnidar of shares in zamindari—Set-off on payment of rent. The four defendants obtained jointly a patni lease of R, and subsequently purchased jointly a 5 annas share in the zamindari. Defendants 1 and 2 separated from 3 and 4, each taking 8 annas of the patni and 2½ annas of the zamindari, and then defendants 3 and 4 sold their zamindari right in 2 annas and 15 gundas share to K, the plaintiff, retaining 5 gundas share on their own account. The plaintiff sued to recover the rent of 2 annas and 15 gundas from the defendants 1 and 2, who denied the plaintiff's claim, while they admitted that they were liable for 8 annas rent of the patni, treating themselves as their own zamindars for 2½ annas share in the zamindari, and the alleged payment of 5½ annas of the patni rent to the 8 annas share-holder in the zamindari, and a set-off against the other 2½ annas against their own claim as zamindars. Held, that, as the defendants 1 and 2 were strangers to the transfer of the rights of defendants 3 and 4 to the plaintiff, they had, as between themselves and the plaintiff, a right still to do what they did formerly, namely, set-off their patni liability against their zamindari right. The lower Court refused to consider the defendant's plea, on the ground that it was in the nature of a set-off, and that, not being a debt due from the plaintiff to the defendant, it was not such a set-off as could be allowed by the Court. Held, that the plea was a plea of payment merely and not in the nature of a set-off. 33. ——— Civil Procedure Code, 1859, ss. 121, 195—Claim for unliquidated damages—Suit on bill of exchange—Cross-demands. Ss. 121 and 195 of the Code of Civil Procedure (Act VIII of 1859) had not the effect of enlarging the right of set-off. In a suit against the acceptor to recover the amount due upon several bills of exchange, the defendant sought to set-off a claim for unliquidated damages unconnected with the bills of exchange. Held, that defendant had no right to set off his claim against the debt due to the plaintiffs. 44. ——— Act VIII of 1859, s. 121—Co-sharers—Suit for contribution. In a suit brought against a lessee of a portion of an estate by one of the co-sharers for money alleged to be due as the plaintiff's share of arrears of rent for a certain period, where the claim was admitted: —Held, that the defendant was not entitled to set-off under s. 121, Act VIII of 1859, the plaintiff's share of the Government revenue of the whole estate which had been paid by the defendant for the period for which the arrears of rent were alleged to be due. Held, also, that there was no such connection between the claim of the plaintiff and the counter-claim of the defendant as would entitle the defendant, as a matter of equity apart from legislative enactment to a set-off. 45. ——— ——— Suit for contribution—Shares on zamindari and shikmi rights. Plaintiffs, as being entitled collectively to an 11-anna share of the jumma of a talukh and alleging that they had obtained such portion of their share as the 14-anna talukhdars were liable for, sued the 2-anna sharer for what he ought to have contributed. The lower Appellate Court, finding that the defendant had a 2-anna share in the zamindari, as well as in the shikmi, considered that the one right might be set off against the other, and that the plaintiffs had consequently no claim against the defendant. Held, that this conclusion was erroneous, for though there were in a certain sense opposing rights, still they were not mutual rights as between the parties to the present suit. The plaintiffs were entitled to get a 2-anna share of the jumma from the defendant and the 14-anna talukhdars jointly, and the defendant was entitled to get a like share from these 14-anna talukhdars and himself jointly, but the defendant had no right to set off the debt thus due to him against the debt due to the plaintiffs from the same persons. 46. ——— Debts not mutual—Disputed claim for rent in suit for payments made to save estate. A and B were the proprietors of a jote, of which B leased half of his share to C as mirasidar. The zamindar brought a suit for rent of the jote against A and B and got a joint decree, in execution of which he put up the jote for sale. C, in order to save his miras right, paid the amount of the decree before sale, and then sued A and B for the amount so paid. Held, that C was entitled to recover, and that a claim for rent by B against C, but which C disputed, could not be admitted as an answer to C's claim in the present suit or as a set-off. It is essential to the validity of a set-off that the debts should be mutual, due from and to the same parties and in the same right. 49. ——— Account, suit for—Cross-appeal. Of two appeals heard together the first was brought on the dismissal of a suit, in which the representatives of one, now deceased, of two parties claimed for his estate an account against the other, their suit having been dismissed on failure to prove the contract between the parties; and the second appeal was from a decree between the same parties for damages for the detention of property which had belonged to the estate of the deceased. In the first the plaintiffs appealed; and in the second the defendant, who also, by cross-appeal claimed a sum which, as he alleged, would have been found due to him had accounts on both sides been taken in the first of the above suits. Held, that, as the first suit was for an account only, and not for the recovery of money rendering it at least doubtful whether a set-off could be pleaded in defence, and as also no issue had been framed or even asked for on the question, it was not open to the defendant to raise it on this cross-appeal. 50. ——— Civil Procedure Code, 1882, s. 111—Counter-claim for damages—Costs of preparing a deed—Stamp duty. In December 1882 the plaintiffs agreed to supply the defendants with machinery for their mill near Calcutta. The defendants, being unable to pay for it in accordance with that agreement, entered into a supplementary agreement with the plaintiffs on the 10th August 1894, whereby it was arranged that the plaintiffs should accept shares in the defendant's company and debentures charged on the property in satisfaction of their claim. The agreement provided that the defendant company should forthwith execute an indenture of trust in favour of trustees to be named by the plaintiffs for the purpose of securing the said debentures, such indenture to be prepared by the plaintiffs' solicitors together with the debentures, at the expense of the company, and to be approved by the company's solicitors. It was lastly provided that this agreement should be treated as forming part of and supplemental to the agreement of December 1892. This agreement was signed by J. Marshall on behalf of the plaintiffs. The indenture and debentures were duly prepared by the plaintiffs and approved by the defendants' solicitors. The plaintiffs, having paid the solicitors' bill of costs in respect of the preparation of the indenture and debentures, now sued to recover the amount from the defendants under the terms of the above agreement of 1894. The defendants alleged that the plaintiffs had failed to carry out their part of the agreement of 1882, and contended that they were entitled in this suit to claim damages against the plaintiffs and to set them off against the plaintiffs' claim. Held, that the defendant should not be permitted in this suit to claim damages against the plaintiffs for their alleged failure to carry out their part of the contract of 1892. Their counter-claim or set-off did not fall under s. 111 of the Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV of 1882), as it was not a claim for an ascertained sum of money, and, that being so, they could not claim as of right to have it investigated in this suit. Nor was there any equitable ground for admitting the counter-claim, as it could not be doubted that there would be considerable delay in investigating it, and there was no reason why the plaintiffs should have to wait so long for the money to which they were now legally entitled. Held, also, that the plaintiffs were entitled to include in their claim the stamp duty paid on the trust-deed. The agreement contemplated that the defendants should pay all the costs incidental to the execution of the deed. DOBSON & BARLOW v. BENGAL SPINNING AND WEAVING CO. . . I. L. R. 21 Bom. 126

(d).* In a suit for recovery of arrears of rent, the defendant's claim to set off the amount of a decree obtained by him against the plaintiff was disallowed by the Court below, on the ground that the decree had not been attempted to be enforced:—Held, that the lower Court was wrong in not entertaining the claim of set-off raised by the defendant. In the meantime, on the 9th May 1877, B applied for the attachment of the money claimed by M in his siut, and obtained an order prohibiting M from receiving, and S from paying, any sum which might be found in that suit to be due by S to M. On the 23rd June 1877 M obtained a decree in his suit against S, and S obtained a decree in his suit against M, S's decree being for the larger sum. On the same day, under the provisions of s. 209 of Act VIII of 1859, satisfaction for the smaller sum was entered on both decrees, and execution taken out of S's decree for so much as remained due. At the same time S objected to B's attachment, but his objection was disallowed. Held, in a suit by S against B to have the order disallowing his objection set aside and the propriety and legality of the set-off above mentioned established, regard being had to the provisions of s. 209 of Act VIII of 1859, that the attaching order of the 9th May could have no operation or effect, and that, even if B had followed up that order and attached M's decree against S, that step would not have put him in a better position, for the same section being followed, and the decrease being essentially cross-decrees, that for the smaller sum became absorbed in the one for the larger, and attachment could not affect it. In 1828 S obtained a decree, upon which he did nothing immediately ; but in 1844 he sold the attached property in execution and purchased it himself. Thirteen years after B commenced proceedings to set aside that sale, and in 1860 obtained a final decree reversing the sale, restoring to him the possession and awarding him mesne profits. The mesne profits were ascertained, and a third party (R) attached the decree in respect of a judgment-debt due to himself from B. Upon this S, after trying ineffectually to stay R's proceeding, brought a suit claiming to set off the amount of the decree of 1828 against the decree of 1860. Held, that whatever equitable right S might have in consequence of the situation of the parties, it should have been urged in the suit before decree, and not in execution when rights of third parties had accrued, and that what R sought was not the mesne profits attached by S under the decree of 1828, but the amount

Subsequently, on application for a review, she obtained a further decree for the rest of her claim. The latter decree was reversed on appeal by the High Court, who gave defendants all costs of the proceeding in proportion. Plaintiff allowed more than three years to elapse from the date of the former decree without applying for execution ; but when defendant applied to execute his decree for costs, she petitioned for a set-off of so much of the costs as had been decreed to her. Held, that these two judgments and decrees must be treated as reduced to one, wherein judgment was given in part for the plaintiff and in part for the defendant ; and before issuing a warrant of execution the Court was bound to ascertain how much, on the whole case, was due to the party executing, and to issue a warrant for that sum and no more. Held, further, that no question of limitation could arise in respect to the execution of the first decree, which became incapable of execution as soon as the High Court's decree in appeal (which was for a larger sum) was passed ; but that the latter, under s. 209, Code of Civil Procedure, could only be executed to the extent of the difference between the two decrees. 35. ——— Civil Procedure Code, 1882, ss. 246, 247—Execution of decree—Cross-decrees—Simple money-decree—Decree enforcing mortgage. S. 246 of the Civil Procedure Code is applicable to cross-decrees and not to cross-claims under one decree. To make s. 247 of the Code applicable in the case of cross-claims under one decree, the parties entitled thereunder to recover from each other must hold the same character and possess identical rights of enforcing execution, and enforcement of the decree can only be refused, or satisfaction entered up, when this is the case. Held, therefore, where a decree for money of a Court of first instance directed that the money should be realizable from certain specific property of the defendant, and exempted his person and other property, and the lower Appellate Court modified this decree by extending it to the person of the defendant, and in second appeal the High Court set aside the lower Appellate Court's decree and restored that of the first Court, directing that the cost of the defendant in the lower Appellate Court and in the High Court should be paid by the plaintiff, that, inasmuch as the plaintiff was only entitled to recover the judgment-debt due to him from the defendant from such specific property, whereas the defendant was entitled to recover the judgment-debt due to him from the plaintiff from his person and property, the provisions of s. 247 were not applicable. The plaintiff deposited within time the purchase-money with the exception of a sum less than the amount of costs awarded to him. He subsequently applied for delivery of possession of the property in execution of the decree and for the recovery of the costs awarded to him, deducting from such costs the unpaid portion of the purchase-money. Held, applying, by analogy of ss. 221 and 247 of the Civil Procedure Code, the equitable doctrine of set-off, that the plaintiff was entitled, when depositing the purchase-money under the decree, to deduct therefrom the sum the decree awarded to him as costs, and that therefore the decree did not become null and void by reason that he had not deposited the full amount of the purchase-money within time. Degumburee Dabee v. *Eshan Chunder Sein, B. 40. ——— Civil Procedure Code, ss. 246, 247, 411—Cross-decrees in same decree—Recovery by Government of Court-fees in pauper suit. A plaintiff suing in formâ pauperis to recover property valued at R60,000 obtained a decree for R1,439. The Court, with reference to the provisions of s. 411 of the Civil Procedure Code, directed that the plaintiff should pay R1,196 as the amount of Court-fees which would have been paid by him if he had not been permitted to sue as a pauper. The Collector having applied under s. 411 to recover this amount by attachment of the R1,439 payable to the plaintiff, the defendant objected that (i) certain costs payable to her by the plaintiff under the same decree, and (ii) a sum of money payable to her by the plaintiff under a decree which she had obtained in a cross-suit in the same Court, should be set-off against the R1,439 payable by her to him, with reference to ss. 246 and 247 of the Code, and that thus nothing would remain due by her which the Government could recover. No application for execution was made by the plaintiff for his R1,439, or by the defendant for her costs. In appeal from an order allowing the Collector's application, it was contended that the "subject-matter of the suit" in s. 411 of the Code meant the sum which the successful pauper-plaintiff is entitled to get as a result of his success in the suit; but that in the suit and the cross-suit taken together, the plaintiff ultimately stood to lose a small sum, the defendant being the holder of the larger sum awarded altogether. Held, that the contention had no force, as execution had not been taken out by the plaintiff or the defendant or both, and it could not be said that the Government had been trying to execute the plaintiff's decree, or was a representative of the plaintiff as holder of the decretal order in his favour for R1,439 so as to bring into operation the special rules of ss. 246 and 247 of the Code between him and the defendant. Held, also, that the plaintiff was one who, in the sense of s. 411, had succeeded in respect of part of the "subject-matter" of his suit, and on that part therefore a first charge was by law reserved and secured to the Government, which was justified in recovering it in these proceedings from the defendant, who was ordered by the decree to pay it in the same way as costs are ordinarily recoverable under the Code, Held, that the decrees in the suit and the cross-suit not having reached a stage in which the provisions of ss. 246 and 247 of the Code would come into play, no questions of set-off and consequent reduction or other modification of the "subject-matter" of the suit decreed against the defendant as payable by her to

Each obtained possession of the immoveable property decreed to him. B appealed to the Privy Council from both decrees in respect of the two-thirds awarded to A. In April 1866, pending the appeal, A applied for an account of the mesne profits due to him after setting-off the mesne profits due to B, but as he failed to comply with a condition requiring him to give security for the amount claimed, in case the Privy Council should allow B's appeal, the application was struck off. In January 1867 B applied for the mesne profits of the one-third decreed to him, and the Court found R18,700 to be the amount so due, but, on application by A stayed further execution pending the Privy Council's decision. In 1873 the Privy Council dismissed B's appeal. In 1885 A, in execution of the Privy Council's decree, applied for R50,000 as mesne profits in respect of the two-thirds. B at the same time applied that the R18,000 declared in 1867 to be due to him in respect of the one-third might be set-off against the amount claimed by A. Held, that the question of the amount due to A up to the date when he acquired possession of the two-thirds, and which had never yet been decided, should be re-opened from the point at which it was left in 1866; that if this amount exceeded the R18,000 declared in 1867 to be due to B, satisfaction of A's claim to that extent should be entered up and the balance recovered from B; and that this course, if not strictly in accordance with the letter, was in accordance with the spirit of ss. 246, 247 of the Civil Procedure Code, and at all events should be allowed on principles of natural equity. Held, also, that, until the amount due to A had been definitely ascertained in the execution department, B's right to maintain his set-off did not arise; that the set-off was therefore not barred by limitation; that the order of January 1867 was equivalent to a decree for the amount declared thereby as due to B; that when the execution department had determined the amount due to A, that decision also would

On 25th January 1911, B transferred his decree to C, but A only received notice of the assignment in October 1900. Held, that C was not entitled to execute the decree against A. The transfer from B to C could take effect against A in respect of his cross-decree only after A received notice of it. That being so, the decree so transferred, being for a smaller amount than A's, became incapable of execution under the equitable principle enunciated in s. 246 of the Code of Civil Procedure. At the date of the completion of transfer by notice, B's decree was subject to the equity, and, consequently, the right of C as the transferee of it was also subject to that equity under s. 233 of the Code. S. 246 of the Code of Civil Procedure is not inapplicable to a case where cross-decrees are passed by the Court whose duty it is to execute them, and neither decree has been transferred for execution to another Court. Rewa Mahton v. *Ram Kishen Singh, L. ——— Accounts—Settlement of accounts by passing a promissory note—No fraud or coercion used—Waiving of examination of accounts by plaintiff of his free will—Accounts not to be re-opened. The plaintiff and defendant had mutual dealings and accounts. In settling these accounts the plaintiff of his own free will and accord and without any fraud practised or undue influence exerted by the defendant claimed his right to an examination of the accounts for the purpose of ascertaining the balance due and agreed to treat a gross sum of ₹3,556 as due from him and accordingly executed a promissory note for that amount. The plaintiff then sued for a declaration that the promissory note in question was fraudulent and had been obtained from him by undue influence and was good only to the extent of such sum as might be found due on taking an account between the parties. At the trial the allegations of fraud and undue influence on the part of the defendant and want of free consent on the part of the plaintiff were held not proved. Held, that, on the principle enunciated by the Privy Council in McKeller v. *Wallace, 5 Moo I. At the time of the settlement the plaintiffs believed that they were the superior holders of all the lands in the village, including certain wanta lands. It subsequently appeared, however, that the wanta lands were the property of certain girassias, who were in possession as owners, and that the plaintiffs were not the holders of these lands within the meaning of s. 32 of Bombay Act VII of 1863. The Government, however, required the plaintiffs to pay the entire quit-rent of the village for the Samvat years 1939-1940, as fixed by the sanad. The plaintiffs paid under protest and brought this suit to recover the amount (R400-12-6) paid in respect of the wanta lands. Held, that the plaintiffs were entitled to a refund of the quit-rent paid in respect of the wanta lands. A settlement under Bombay Act VII of 1863 is an agreement effected by proposal and acceptance (see s. 2), and is subject to the ordinary rules applicable to contracts. Here both parties entered into the settlement in the belief that the plaintiffs were the superior holders of all the lands in the village. There was therefore a common mistake as to a matter of fact which both parties must have regarded at the time as essential to the agreement, it being made so by the Act itself under which they assumed to contract. Such a mistake under s. 20 of the Contract Act (IX of 1872) renders the agreement void. The settlement as to the wanta lands might be treated as distinct from that which applied to the remaining lands of the village, the former being void, and the plaintiffs being therefore entitled to a refund of the quit-rent paid in respect of such lands under s. 65 of the Contract Act. A sanad issued under Bombay Act VII of 1863 merely declares what by s. 6 of

2. ——— Claim to permanent settlement after expiration of temporary one—Forfeiture of right by conduct. When a temporary settlement expires, whether the holder thereof had been the proprietor of the land within the meaning of the old regulations or a stranger, the proprietor is entitled to come forward and to claim as of right from the Government a permanent settlement of the land, unless he has by his own conduct forfeited that right. 3. ——— Purchase of zamindari rights during maafi grant—Rights on expiry of maafi grant. An auction-purchaser of the rights and interest of one of several zamindars who at the time of the purchase held only certain nankar land in lieu of their zamindari right during the continuancy of the maafi grant by Government to another party stands in the place of the zamindar, not in respect of the nankar land only, but in respect of all the right to settlement as zamindar after the maafi grant comes to an end. 5. ——— Right on resumption—Suit to set aside settlement. In a suit by a person claiming certain lands which have been resumed by the Government, the plaintiff is entitled, on the allegation that he is the rightful owner of the lands, and that the defendant obtained a settlement by false allegations of ownership and of possession, to an adjudication of his right to a settlement. It is not discretionary with the Collector under such circumstances to settle with any person he pleases for the land, nor is such settlement, if made, final as regards all claims. 6. ——— Ghatwali tenures—Suit against Government for settlement—Limitation. A ghatwali tenure was resumed by the Government under Bengal Regulation II of 1819. After the resumption, H N, the former holder of the tenure, claimed settlement as proprietor. The Government denied his title, but offered him a lease on his giving security. On his failure to find security, the Government in 1841 made a temporary settlement with J S, who entered into possession of the land. No malikana was reserved to or ever paid to H N. In 1862 the Government settled the land permanently with J S. The heir of H N then brought a suit in the Civil Court, praying that this settlement should be set aside, and for a declaration of his right to have a settlement concluded with him. Held, that, supposing H N ever to have had any legal right to a settlement as proprietor, the suit to enforce such right was barred by limitation, he having been effectually dispossessed, and the cause of action, if any, having accrued in 1841. Note.—The Court appeared to consider that in fact H N never had any right to maintain an action in the Civil Court to compel the Government to make a settlement with him. 7. ——— Right to settlement of person whose tenure is not cancelled—Lease by Government after purchase at sale for revenue. A was the owner of a talukh in a zamindari which was purchased by the Government at a auction-sale for arrears of revenue. The Government did not cancel the talukh, but settled it with A for twelve years. When the term was expired, the Government refused to make a new lease with A, and instead leased it for a year to B. Held, that the refusal of the Government to settle the land with A in no way affected his right to a settlement on the expiration of the lease to B. On the expiry of the temporary settlement, the plaintiff, as owner of the parent estate, sued to establish his right to the permanent settlement of 3148. Held, that the suit would not lie, and that the plaintiff had no claim to have a settlement of 3148. 9. ——— Right to pottah of waste lands—Alleged failure to cultivate or pay assessment. The plaintiff sued, as the mirasidars of a village, to establish their right to the grant of a pottah of certain waste land of the village which had been granted to some of the defendants. The Collector, who was made a defendant, stated that the hookumnamah rules of the district directed that land should be given to mirasidars on their tendering sufficient security, and that the plaintiffs on previous occasions had received lands for which offers had been made by others in consideration of the plaintiff's preferential right, but that they had failed to cultivate the lands or pay the assessment in breach of their agreements. Held, that the plaintiffs were entitled to the relief sought for. 3. EVIDENCE OF SETTLEMENT.

1. ——— Evidence necessary to establish creation of taluks—Shikmi talukhdars—Registration of tenure. The registration of a talukh, or of the sanads creating it, is not absolutely necessary to prove the creation of the talukh before the decennial settlement. The omission of any mention of such a talukh in the decennial or quinquennial settlement, and the inclusion of the lands in the decennial settlement as part of the zamindari for which the jumma is assessed, does not afford any strong inference against the evidence of the talukh being only a shikmi talukh paying rent to the zamindar; the talukhdars were not required to mention it, nor was it necessary for the zamindar to do so. 2. ——— Evidence of loss of proprietary right—Possession of sir land. The possession of a share in an estate on settlement may or may not be accompanied by the possession of sir land; and the fact of a sharer holding no sir land is not of itself sufficient to show that he had lost all proprietary right in the village. 3. ——— Settlement of noabad talukh in Chittagong—Power of Government to make settlement—Waste lands—Resumption—Kabuliat, effect of—Acceptance of kabuliat by the landlord—Ratification—How far the acts of Government officers bind the Government—Reg. III of 1822, s. 5, cl. 1—Reg. VII of 1822, s. 7, cl. 1—Evidence—Presumption of due performance of official acts—Acquiescence—Acceptance of rent after term of settlement. The plaintiff sued the Secretary of State for India in Council for the declaration that a certain noabad mehal of his in the district of Chittagong was a permanent talukh, not resumable by the Government. He based his claim on two grounds: (i) that the mehal existed from before the time of the Decennial Settlement, and the settlement of 1800 confirmed the permanent right of the talukhdar in the same; and (ii) that, at any rate, a kabuliat executed in 1836 by his predecessors in title with the approval of the Collector had the same effect. In defence, it was alleged (1) that the mehal was not in existence at the time of the Decennial Settlement, and the settlement of 1800 was a temporary one; and (2) that the kabuliat was never accepted by the Government, but that, on the contrary, the Government passed distinct orders that the settlements of 1836 were for thirty years only, which order was duly published by an istahar to the effect. It was found on the evidence that the talukh was not shown to have been in existence before 1800, and the settlement proceedings of that year and the variation of rent from time to time did not support the plaintiff's contention. Held, that the kabuliat of 1836 was merely an offer on the part of the talukhdar for the time being and was not binding on the Government, its terms not having been accepted either by the Government or by any duly authorised officer thereof; that both by law and by the special instructions issued for the guidance of settlement officers, no settlement could be binding on the Government unless confirmed by the Governor General in Council. There being no proof given by either party as to whether the istahar above mentioned was or was not duly published:—Held, that the publication of the istahar must be presumed, having regard to the presumption in favour of the due performance of official acts. Held, also, that, even assuming that the officers of the Government induced by their act and conduct a belief in the talukhdar that the kabuliat had been accepted by the Government, or that a permanent settlement had been sanctioned by the Government, that did not amount to a ratification of the kabuliat, inasmuch as such conduct of the officers was in violation of their duty as such officers and in direct contravention of the express orders of the Government. Held, also, that the acceptance by the Government of rent at the old rate from the talukhdar for a long time after expiration of thirty years did not amount to an acquiescence in the terms of the kabuliat. Unsettled and unoccupied waste land, not being the property of any private owner, must belong to the State. PROSUNNO COOMAR ROY v. SECRETARY OF STATE FOR INDIA

VII of 1822, s. 20.* Where the plaintiff's title was recognised by the settlement officer in 1836, who assigned an allowance of 5 per cent. on the Government demand:—Held, that the Collector had no power in subsequent years during the pendency of this completed settlement to interfere with the arrangement of the settlement officer, except to the extent allowed by s. 20, Regulation VII of 1822. S. 20, Regulation VII of 1822, did not confer on the Collector the power of remodelling the arrangements completed by the settlement officer under s. 10 of the Regulation; nor could the notification of Government extend to revenue officers an authority that the law did not allow to them. 2. ——— Effect on ex-maafidar—Status of maafidar after settlement of resumed maafi. An ex-maafidar, with whom a sub-settlement has been made of the resumed maafi, is presumably not a hereditary cultivator, but his position is that of a proprietor subject to payment of Government revenue. 3. ——— Effect on maafidar—Settlement with maafidar—Payment of revenue. Where a plot of maafi land was on resumption settled with the ex-maafidar, who engaged for the Government revenue for the term of settlement, and the settlement was made under s. 5, Regulation XIII of 1825, and paragraph 151, circular order, Sudder Board of Revenue, as provided by s. 5, Regulation XXXI of 1803:—Held, that they were in possession as owners, and on the expiry of the settlement the mere fact of its having expired would not deprive them of the right of being assessed with revenue as proprietors of maafi land, for where there has been a grant of soil, and possession taken and long continued thereunder, the ownership thereof vests in the grantee, although the grant as to exemption from payment of revenue may

7. ——— Effect of resumption and settlement of lakhiraj—Invalid lakhiraj. Assessment of revenue by Government upon invalid lakhiraj land after resumption does not confer a new estate on the lakhirajdar, and does not cancel or extinguish a mokurari lease granted by the lakhirajdar previously to the settlement and during the time he was in possession of the land as lakhiraj. 8. ——— Abadkari talukhdar—Acceptance of farming leases—Sale of Government right. A Government settlement, whether permanent or farming, so far from destroying the rights of a talukhdar, always preserves them if there be really a dependent tenure. Neither the acceptance of farming leases by the talukhdar qua farmer, subject to the Government proprietary right, nor the sale of that Government right, in any way, ipso facto, extinguishes any talukhdari right existing in the abadkari talukhdar in that capacity, if otherwise valid. 11. ——— Settlement with talukhdar after his refusal to re-settle at increased rent—Waiver of refusal to pay enhanced rent. Where, upon a talukhdar's refusal at the end of the period of his settlement to re-settle with Government at an increased rate, the jumma was put up to auction, after which the Government did re-settle with the talukhdar upon the former conditions and the former description of the nature of the taluk, it was held that Government renewed the contract, and placed the talukdhar in exactly the position in which he would have stood had he never refused to pay the increased rent. OGNEE COOMAR ROY v. KUMOLA KANT ROY 11 W. R. 38

12. ——— Private rights—Limitation—Right of action as proprietor. Certain land having been settled by Government for a period of ten years, one S bought the benefit of that settlement at an auction-sale for arrears of rent, and afterwards sold his rights to one M. On the expiration of the temporary settlement, Government effected a permanent zamindari settlement with M. In the following year (1865) the zamindari title was sold, and the purchaser now (1869) sues to recover possession of certain specified land. The lower Appellate Court, finding that none of the persons above mentioned had possession within twelve years immediately preceding the filing of the plaint, considered the suit barred. Held, that the question was one solely of a private right, and that the plaintiff did not stand in the position of Government in regard to the statute of limitations. Held, also, that the plaintiff's claim was traceable solely through M, from whom he bought; that at the time of settlement Government has nothing more than a right of action by virtue of its being proprietor, and not the right of action S had as auction-purchaser; and only the former right passed by the settlement. 7. EXPIRATION OF SETTLEMENT.

1. Revocation of sanad—Bom. Act VII of 1863, s. 7—Jurisdiction of Civil Court. Where a sanad by way of summary settlement of land revenue has been granted by Government under Bombay Act VII of 1863, Government cannot reform or set it aside without the assent of all parties interested therein. To do so would be an assumption by Government of the function of a Civil Court. A Civil Court cannot, on the ground that Government has, by mistake, granted such a sanad to a person not the owner of the land, reform or set aside the sanad. S. 7 of Bombay Act VII of 1863 renders the quit-rent, fixed by the sanad, binding alike on Government and on the rightful owner of the land, but the latter may recover the land from the grantee of the sanad, subject to the quit-rent, fixed by the sanad, payable to Government; and such grantee will be declared to have taken the sanad as a trustee for the rightful owner. Where Government had granted seven sanads to certain garasis in respect of lands, part of which had been previously sold by the garasis and Government had attempted to revoke and cancel those sanads, and had subjected the lands to a full assessment on the ground that the garasis were not entitled to any of the said lands and that the sanads had been granted by mistake:—Held, that such attempted revocation, cancellation, and re-assessment were void and of no effect, and that the grantees were entitled to hold the lands on the terms mentioned in the sanads, but, so far as regarded the sold portion of the said lands, in trust for the vendees thereof and their heirs, representatives, and assigns. Quære: Whether a Civil Court can give relief, either by reforming or cancelling such sanads against mistakes, other than those relating to ownership, which may be found to exist in the sanads. 3. ——— Dispossession—Dependent talukhdars—Cause of action. When a dependent talukhdar, holding under a temporary settlement, has that settlement placed in abeyance by the Collector taking the collections into his own hands khas, the Collector's act is not one of dispossession from which limitation can count, but limitation will reckon from the date when the purchaser, at a sale after the Collector had ceased to hold khas, had himself made collections, and so created cause of action by dispossession of the former talukh. 4. ——— Shikmi talukhdari right—Payment in lieu of shikmi talukhdari right. Where a shikmi talukhdar accepted from Government a pottah which admitted him to be a person having a right to a settlement and gave him as a separate and distinct allowance under the head of expenses (in addition to the usual allowance for collections, etc.) the allowance which had, under the previous settlement, been made to him under the head of malikana: —Held, that, if he had notice and accepted the payment because he knew that his right as malik of the shikmi talukh was no longer recognized, then the shikmi talukhdari right came to an end at that time. The powers in s. 8 of Act XIV of 1863 were the powers spoken of in s. 150 of Act X of 1859, and were distinct from the powers given to a Collector by the second clause of s. 162. S. 10 of Act XIV of 1863 enacted that, if a suit for enhancement of rent be brought before any officer empowered under s. 8 to hear the same, such suit should be heard and determined by such officer and it was not provided that he might refer it for trial and decision to another. 3. _____ Blank transfers—Tenders. On the 19th April plaintiff sold to defendants sixty shares in the N Bank, to be delivered and paid for on Thursday, April 26th. The sold note was as follow: "Baboo Lall Mohun Mullick. Sold by your order, and on your account, to Messrs. Pyary Chand Mittra and Sons (Metcalfe Hall) sixty shares in the N Bank at R4 premium per share. (Signed) Sree Coomar Sircar, Broker." The bought note exactly corresponded. On the 23rd April plaintiff received from defendants the following: "With reference to the sixty N Bank shares sold by you, we shall thank you to send us three transfer deeds on Friday next, viz., two for twenty-five shares each and one for ten shares." On the 26th April plaintiff sent to defendants sixty N Bank shares, some standing in the name of H and some in the name of P, accompanied by transfer, all executed by P alone. These shares were all returned by the defendants, with the following memorandum: "The accompanying shares in the N Bank purchased for delivery to-day are not in order." Later on the same day, the 26th, plaintiff took personally to defendants the same sixty shares with transfers, executed some by H and some by P, the name of the transferor corresponding number by number with the name in the shares. On this, as on the previous occasion, the name of the transferee was left blank. These shares were also rejected by the defendants as not in order. Plaintiff then, on April 27th about 1 P.M., had the shares registered in his own name, and, within two hours afterwards, sent them to the defendants with corresponding transfers, and with the following letter: "In compliance with request in your memorandum of the 23rd instant, I now send you the sixty shares N Bank, with three transfer deeds, and will feel obliged by your paying the amount to the bearer." The defendants declined to receive the shares, and they were re-sold at a loss. The plaintiff never had any personal interest whatever in the shares, either on the 26th or 27th April, and was a mere benami holder for H and P. The articles of association of the N Bank required transfers to be in the form F appended to Act XIX of 1857. The transfers tendered by plaintiff were on each occasion in that form. The defendants swore that the "Friday, the 27th April, mentioned in their memorandum of the 23rd April, was inserted by accident, instead of Thursday," the 26th April, and that they consequently rejected the tender on the 27th. Held, (i) that the contract, as it stood on the bought and sold notes, was a contract by the vendor (as in Stephen v. De Medina) that "in consideration of such a sum I will execute any proper conveyance which you tender me." (ii) That the memorandum of April 23rd, coupled with the fact of the vendor having made tenders of transfers of the shares, was evidence enough to show that the vendor bound himself to tender a proper conveyance to his vendees. (iii) That the document of conveyance must be complete at the time of tender, or capable of being then made complete. (iv) The transfers, with a blank for the name of the transferee, were incomplete and insufficient, the vendor showing no authority from H and P. (v) That the Court below must deal with the question of fact, whether or no the mention of Friday, the 27th, instead of Thursday, the 26th, was a mistake; and Semble, that, if the defendants had received the blank transfers and acted upon them the waiver would have rendered them complete. 4. _____ Sale of shares for future delivery—Refusal of purchaser to accept—Readiness and willingness to deliver—Pledge of shares to third person. Where a contract is made for the future delivery of shares, and the purchaser, before the delivery day, gives notice to the vendor that he (the purchaser) will not accept the shares, the vendor is thereby exonerated from giving proof of his readiness and willingness to deliver the shares. Semble: The mere fact that such shares are pledged to a third person is not sufficient to show that the vendor is not ready and willing to deliver them, if there is nothing to show that the pledgee is not willing to assist the vendor in carrying out his contract, and it being apparently for the advantage of the pledgee that he should do so. DAYABHAI DIPCHAND v. MANIKLAL VRIJBHUKAN 8 Bom. A. C. 123

5. _____ Equitable assignment of right to sue—Readiness and willingness to deliver—Tender—Constructive tender. A contract for the delivery of shares at a future day is a contract that can be assigned in equity, and the assignee of such a contract can, in his own name, maintain a suit to recover damages for its breach in the Civil Courts in India. In such a suit the plaintiff would be subject to any equities that might subsist between his assignor and the defendant. In order to support an allegation of readiness and willingness to deliver, an actual tender is not in all cases necessary, e.g., a tender will be dispensed with where the defendant has refused to perform the contract, or where, on the day for the performance of it, he has absconded, and, having closed his place of business, has left no agent or other person to represent him. (c), ss. 287, 311, 313—Belchamber's Rules and Orders of High Court, Calcutta, 382—386—Deficiency in area of land—Application by purchaser to set aside sale or for compensation.* A purchaser at an execution sale of immoveable property held by the Sheriff applied to set aside the sale or for compensation on the ground of deficiency in the area of the land sold. Held, that such an application in relation to sales held by the Sheriff was not sanctioned by any provisions of the Civil Procedure Code, and s. 313 did not apply. Held, also that, as the interest of the purchaser was adverse to the interest of the judgment-debtor, the former was not the representative in interest of the latter, and therefore s. 244 of the Civil Procedure Code did not apply. Ishan Chunder Sircar v. *Beni Madhub Sirkar, I. such arrangement. The defendant made several shipments in excess of the plaintiff's limits and the plaintiffs treated them as consignments on the defendant's account, selling them on defendant's account and forwarding him account sales, and drawing bills on the defendant for any balance due to them in the transactions, which bills the defendant refused to pay. In an action brought by the plaintiffs for the balance due to them from the defendant in respect of the shipments which had been treated by the plaintiffs as consignments in the defendant's account, the defendant admitted he had sold the bills and received the money for them; they were produced by the plaintiffs, the acceptors. Held, that the bills being produced by the acceptors after due date, and the defendant having received a notice of dishonour, and no demand for payment of the bills, the presumption was that they had been paid by the plaintiffs. In exercising their option of treating shipments in excess of their limits as on their own account or as consignments on account of the defendant, the plaintiffs were entitled to treat each shipment separately, and were not compelled to decide on an average of the shipments taken all together. consequence of a collision, the harbour-master tried to anchor her, but failing to do so, as her cable jammed, finally brought her up inside the ship A, which was moored off the Howrah side of the Hooghly, this being the only berth the T could then secure. The next flood swung both ships, and the T fouled the A, damaging her, and causing her to part her cables, in consequence of which she suffered further damage from subsequent collisions. The owners of the A sued the T for the whole damage done. The defence was that the promovents, by adopting certain precautions, might have prevented the accident; that the T, being in charge of the port authorities, was not liable, and that no care or skill on her part could have prevented the accident. The T did not allege a liability of any of the vessels subsequently collided with. Held, that liability for damages occasioned by collision rests, primâ facie, on the colliding vessel. That a ship in port is bound to be prepared for such exigencies only as might be expected to arise from the circumstances she knew to surround her, that is, a ship is protected by the port rules from liability for damage only when it is due to the acts or omissions of the officials in charge of her. Held, also, that the ship is liable for all the consequences occasioned by an accident that results from any defect in her equipment, or want of care or skill of her crew, etc. In the matter of the "THALATTA" . . Bourke Ad. 1

Held, on appeal, that an accident to the gear of a ship does not of itself alone render her liable for damages for a collision of which it is a remote occasion; and that a ship at anchor in the port should keep a look-out, and be ready to take all reasonable means for her own safety in an emergency. "THALATTA" v. "ANNE" . Bourke A. O. C. 87

3. ——— Liability of ship for fault of pilot—Port Rules, 1856—Act XXII of 1855. The ship H, in charge of a pilot (acting as harbour-master), when proceeding across the bow of the ship I S, which was at anchor, to take up a clear mooring, came into collision with and slightly damaged her, and this suit was for the damage so occasioned. Both sides relied on Act XXII of 1855 and the Port Rules of 1856, the plaintiff contending that the officer in charge was not such officer as the said Act and Rules referred to; and the defendant that he was. The suit was dismissed with costs. Held, that a ship is primâ facie liable for damages occasioned by a collision resulting from an error in judgment of the officer in charge of her. Held, also, that a vessel is exempted from liability for the fault of a pilot in charge of her,—first where a master is authorized to employ a pilot, and is exempted from responsibility if he elects to do so; and, secondly, where the employment of a pilot is compulsory, and the owners of the vessel so employing him are relieved from responsibility for his misconduct; that the legislation regarding the employment of pilots and other officers in the port of Calcutta is contained in Act XXII of 1855 and the Port Rules of 1856; that where no special requisition is made by the port authorities, under rules 2 and 7, a ship may move at her discretion in the port; and that it is unlawful, under s. 12 of Act XXII of 1855, to moor a vessel in the port without having a port officer on board to take command of the ship. In the matter of the "HANOVER". Bourke Ad. 15

4. ——— Collision from bore in the river—Inevitable accident. The ship Thames was lying a mere hulk, waiting for repair when a board drifted her stern foremost up the river, and she came into collision with another ship. No negligence was proved against the master, and the accident was held to be inevitable and no costs were decreed on either side. ABDOOLA ROHOMAN MOOSAN v. "THAMES" . Bourke Ad. 21

5. ——— Moving vessel in harbour—Act XXII of 1855—Negligence of pilots—Bombay Harbour Rules—Lights on vessels, duty to carry or show. The taking of a steam-vessel in a trial trip from Mazagon to the sea and back again is a moving of such vessel within the meaning of s. 12 of Act XXII of 1855. For such a trip, therefore, the employment of a pilot is compulsory. Where the employment of a pilot is compulsory on board a vessel, and such pilot being on board, an accident happens through negligence in the management of the vessel, it lies upon the owners, in order to exempt themselves from liability, to show that the negligence causing the accident was that of the pilot. If such negligence is partly that of the master or crew and partly that of the pilot, the owners are not exempted from liability. If it be proved on the part of the owners that the pilot was in fault, and there is no sufficient proof that the master or crew were also in fault in any particular which contributed or may have contributed, to the accident, the owners will have relieved themselves of the burthen of proof which the law casts upon them. Rules of Bombay harbour with regard to the showing of lights by vessels in the harbour considered. Independently of special regulation or legislation, there is no general obligation by maritime law on sailing vessels, either under way or at anchor, to carry a light throughout the night, although, for the sake of avoiding a misfortune, it may, under particular circumstances, become their duty to carry or show a light. Although that is so, yet the Court will go some way to treat the dark boat as the wrong-doer; and if a vessel be either under way or at anchor at night in a channel, fair way, or ordinary track or path of other vessels, she is bound by general maritime law either to carry or show a light in order to indicate her position when other vessels are approaching her, and in sufficient time to enable them to avoid her. The Court found that both vessels were to blame for the collision. Held, following the English authorities, that the plaintiffs could only recover from the defendants half of the damages which they had sustained. Held, also, following the City of Manchester, 5 P. D. 221, that in such suit each party should bear their own costs. OOKERDA POONSEY v. STEAM-SHIP "SAVITRI" . . . I. L. R. 10 Bom. 408

7. ——— Damage by ship under way colliding with another at anchor—Burden of justifying—Duty of ship at anchor. Where a ship under way comes into collision with another at anchor in a proper place, and showing at night an anchor light, it is obvious that the burden of justifying is heavily cast on the ship under way. At the same time there is an obligation on the anchored ship to keep a competent watch, to show an anchor light, and to do everything to avert a collision and lessen the damage from it. If, as was the case here, the damaged ship is placed in a difficulty entirely by the erroneous course or conduct of the other, and is obliged to take a step on the instant, she is entitled to claim from a Court a favourable consideration for her action, even if that should afterwards appear not to have been the best possible. A steam-ship, entering the fairway of a river with the tide flowing, collided with the promovent's tug at anchor in a proper place, and showing an anchor light. Near the tug was a pilot brig, astern of which the steam-ship wanted to round, attempting to pass between the tug and the brig. She could, however, have taken a course astern of both. At the approach of the steam-ship both the anchored vessels, heading against the tide, hove on their anchors, and drifted back. The justification set up by the owners of the steam-ship was that she was misled by the pilot brig's drifting, the anchor light of the latter having been kept up. Blame to a third ship, if blame there were, was held to be no excuse for the colliding ship, as against the tug's complaint. The main charge against the tug was that she did not slack away chain as soon as there was danger, but hove on her anchor. It was found, however, that if the tug were already drifting when the collision took place, there was no reason to suppose that by slacking away chain at the earliest possible moment the collision would have been averted or lessened in force. On the other hand, the facts against the impugnants' steam-ship were: (i) that her course could, without difficulty, have been directed so that by going astern of the tug from the port side instead of crossing her bows, all risk of collision would have been avoided; (ii) that there was a want of sufficient look-out on board the steam-ship, especially as regarded the tug; (iii) that there was possibly also a miscalculation on the part of the steam-ship of the room to pass, with reference to the force and set of the tide. She was accordingly alone held to blame, and her owners liable in damages. MARY TUG CO. v. BRITISH INDIA STEAM NAVIGATION CO. . . I. L. R. 24 Calc. 627

8. ——— Jettison—Right to general average contribution—Right of shippers of jettisoned cargo—Default of master—Right of shipowner—Remedies of shippers—Lien on cargo saved in consequence of jettison. In jettison of part of a general cargo, the right of those entitled to contribution, and the corresponding obligations of the contributors, originating in the actual presence of a common danger, not in the causes of it, are mutually perfected whenever the goods of some of the shippers (not being wrong-doers, or those responsible for the latter) have been advisedly sacrificed, and the property of others has been thereby preserved. Such exceptions as that recognized where the average loss has been occasioned by the ship's being unseaworthy [Schloss v. Heriot, 14 C. B. (N. S.), 59], and as that made in the refusal of contribution to shippers of deck-cargo when jettisoned, are in truth but limitations on the above rule, which have been introduced from equitable considerations. Where a ship was stranded owing to the negligence of her master, and thereby ship and cargo were placed in a position of such danger as to make it necessary, to jettison part of the cargo in order to save the remainder and the ship:—Held, that innocent owners of the jettisoned cargo were entitled to general average contribution; but that the owners of the ship were not entitled (their legal relations to the shippers not having been varied by contract). The rules of Maritime Law as to the rights and remedies in a case of jettison are: first, each owner of jettisoned goods becomes a creditor of the ship and cargo saved; and, secondly, he has a direct claim against each of the owners of the ship and cargo, for a pro rata contribution towards his indemnity. Contribution can be recovered by the owner of jettisoned goods either by direct suit or by enforcing through the ship-master, who is his agent for this purpose, a lien on each parcel of goods saved, belonging to each separate consignee, for a due proportion of his claim. In a suit by the owners of the cargo against (1) the captain, who was one of the owners of the ship, (2) a mortgagee of the ship, and (3) the agent of the latter in whose name the ship was registered, to recover the value of the cargo sold:—Held, (i) that the owners of the cargo were not entitled to a personal decree against either the mortgagee or his agent, inasmuch as the captain was not their agent to pledge their credit for moneys required for repairs; (ii) that the owners of the cargo were not entitled to a maritime lien on the ship which would take precedence of the mortgage. The owner, resident at Singapore, though frequently applied to, omitted to furnish funds to repair her, or to pay the wages of the mariners; and the master being unable to raise funds for these purposes on the credit of the ship or owner, on the application of the mariners, the ship was, in order to levy their wages, sold by the Magistrate under the provisions of ss. 55 and 56 of Act I of 1859. The master, who had been engaged at Singapore, then brought a suit on the admiralty side of the High Court, to recover out of the surplus proceeds of the ship his wages up to the time when he could return to Singapore, and his passage-money to that port. Held, that he was entitled to recover such wages and passage-money. In re the "PERSIA." Ex parte GARDNER 6 Bom. 1. ——— Offence of using unlicensed slaughter-house—Beng. Act VII of 1865, s. 7—Slaughter-house license—Transfer of slaughter-house. R was fined by the Deputy Magistrate for using an unlicensed slaughter-house. He subsequently gave an ijara or lease to A to carry on the business. R was prosecuted again for evading the law by "slaughtering cattle or allowing cattle to be slaughtered" without a license. He was fined R200 by the Deputy Magistrate. On appeal to the Sessions Judge, he was acquitted. On the motion of the Municipal Commissioners for a rule to set aside the order of the Sessions Judge, it was held (per JACKSON, J.) that R, by giving a lease to A, had parted with his interest, and had ceased to have any power to allow or disallow the slaughtering of cattle; that s. 7 provides penalties only, and does not describe an offence or relate to a conviction. It is quite another question whether the act itself is an offence irrespective of s. 7, and whether R could be dealt with as an abettor. Per MITTER, J. (dissenting).—The Judge has found that the lease was given by R with the avowed object of continuing the slaughter-house, and admittedly for the express purpose of evading the law; the case therefore falls within the express words of the section, "or

1. ——— Act V of 1843—Mahomedan law—Succession—Willa—Emancipated slaves. Assuming that, by the willa rule of the Mahomedan law, the heirs of the master who emancipates a slave are entitled to the property of which the emancipated slave dies possessed to the exclusion of his natural heirs, the effect of s. 3, Act V of 1843, which enacts "that no person who may have acquired property by inheritance shall be dispossessed or prevented from taking possession thereof on the ground that the person from whom the property may have been derived was a slave," is to abrogate the rule of the Mahomedan law, and to secure the succession of the heirs of the emancipated slave, as if he had never been a slave. The provisions of the Act apply not only where the person whose property is claimed has been emancipated after the passing of the Act, but also where he has been emancipated before its passing. The exclusion of the natural heirs of an emancipated slave in favour of the heirs of his emancipator is a disability arising out of the status of slavery similar in its nature to the exclusion, under the Mahomedan law, of the natural heirs of an emancipated slave by a master or his heirs ; and since the general scope and object of Act V of 1843 is to remove all such disabilities, the Civil Courts are bound, in constructing it, to give it the widest remedial application which its language permits, and cannot consequently limit it to those cases only in which the person from whom property is inherited was a slave at the time of his death,

In the same case, in the Court below, it was held that the effect of Act V of 1843 is to prevent the enforcement of any rights which would, if that Act had not been passed, have arisen out of the status of slavery ; and a suit, brought by the heir of the master of a slave girl, emancipated by and married to such master, in his lifetime, to recover, as such heir, property in the hands of persons descended from her, is one the cognizance of which is barred by s. 2 of the Act. 2. ——— Spiritual slavery of disciple to guru—Act V of 1843—Agreement to become slave. This was a suit brought in 1881 by the head of an adhinam for declarations that a muth was subject to his control ; that he was entitled to appoint a manager ; that the present head of the muth was not duly appointed and his nomination by his predecessor was invalid ; and for delivery of the possession of the moveable and immoveable properties of the muth to a nominee of the plaintiff. The claim extended also to religious establishments at Benares and elsewhere connected with the muth. The muth was founded by a member of the adhinam. Many previous heads of the muth had agreed to be "slaves" of the head of the adhinam, but for over sixty years the head of the adhinam had exercised no management over the endowments belonging to the muth, and in a suit (compromised) of the year 1854 the present pretensions of the adhinam had been denied in toto. Held, that the agreement of the head of the muth to become the "slave" of his guru could have no legal operation since 1843, and that the adverse possession of the defendant from that year was fatal to any claim of the plaintiff under such agreement. Whether the party is to sue in the Civil Court or in the Small Cause Court depends entirely upon the nature of the claim and the right which is sought to be enforced. Where goods have been illegally seized and sold in execution, a suit by the owner thereof against the purchaser for the goods or their value will lie in a Small Cause Court, if the value of the goods is within the amount limited by law for the jurisdiction of such Court ; but if the plaintiff makes the decree-holder and the judgment-debtor parties to the suit and requires a declaration of his right to the property, such a suit will not lie in the Small Cause Court. Twelve other creditors also brought twelve other similar suits and obtained decrees against other persons, who were also described as owners of the Wahalan Mills, and attached the same property. In suit No. 1548 of 1897 R M (the present plaintiff), under s. 278 of the Civil Procedure Code, claimed the property. His claim was disallowed, and he was ordered to bring a suit under s. 283. No claim or order was made in the case of the other twelve suits. R M now sued in pursuance of the above order to recover his property, and he included as defendants not merely those defendants (Nos. 1 and 2) who had been plaintiffs in suit No. 1548 of 1897, but also those who had been plaintiffs in the twelve other suits, and who had attached the property in execution of their decrees. It was objected that no suit would lie against the latter, as in their suits no claim had been made to the goods which they had attached and no order made under s. 281, Civil Procedure Code. Held, that the Court of Small Causes had jurisdiction to try the suit. In substance the suit was a suit for goods, though, as a matter of form, the decree might contain a declaration. A suit for the release of goods wrongfully seized is not a declaratory suit under s. 42 of the Specific Relief Act (I of 1877), that although the value of the property claimed by the plaintiff was admittedly over R2,000, the Court of Small Causes had jurisdiction. The landlord's rights included the right to cut certain green trees for his own use and certain other green trees for agricultural purposes, as well as all trees planted by himself, at his option; and he was further entitled to take and use all decayed and fallen trees. The landlord sued the tenants to recover R20, being the value of trees which, it was alleged, the tenants had cut and taken away. The suit was instituted on the ordinary side of the Court of first instance, and no objection was raised, either there or on appeal, as to the competency of that Court to entertain it. The District Munsif passed a decree in plaintiff's favour for a portion of the amount claimed, which was increased by R1-8-0 by the Subordinate Judge, on appeal. Upon a civil revision petition being filed in the High Court:—Held, that the suit was one for damages for breach of covenant, and as such was cognizable by a Court of Small Causes, and that the Court in which it had been instituted had no jurisdiction to entertain it. SMALL CAUSE COURT, MOFUSSIL —contd.

139. ——— Declaratory Decree—Suit to determine co-parcener's rights in moveable property. A Small Cause Court has no power to entertain a suit for a declaratory decree. There is nothing to prevent a Small Cause Court from determining whether a person who has been made a co-plaintiff and claims as a co-parcener of the original plaintiff has any right to the property sued for. The decree in such a case, if given in favour of the plaintiffs, must order that the parties do recover possession of property sued for in such shares as the Judge may consider them to be entitled. A declaratory decree of the relative rights of the parties cannot be made. AKBAR ALI v. JEZUDDIN . I. L. R. 8 Calc. 399

140. ——— Suit for declaration of right to bring property to sale as liable to attachment. A suit in which the plaintiff sues for a declaration of his right to bring certain property to sale as the property of his judgment-debtor cannot be entertained by a Small Cause Court. RAMESHUR KULWAR v. BEHAREE SETH 3 N. W. 208 : Agra F. B. Ed. 1874, 254

141. ——— Suit for declaration of right and for consequential relief. A suit in which the plaintiff prays the Court to consider and declare his right as heir, and for consequential relief, is not within the cognizance of a Small Cause Court. KOLA AHEER v. SAJNA AHIMUR . 3 N. W. 105

142. ——— Act XI of 1865, s. 6—Declaration that bond is satisfied—Claim for money on bond. A claim for money on a bond as specified in Act XI of 1865, s. 6, does not include case for a declaration that the bond has been satisfied and is inoperative. A suit of that description, if maintainable, must be brought in the regular Court. AGUR MULLICK MUNDAL v. DEBNATH CHATTERJEE . . . 24 W. R. 190

143. ——— Suit for declaration of right to moveable property wrongfully taken. Where a suit is brought for property wrongfully taken by the defendant praying for restoration of such property, either to the plaintiff directly or to some other person wholly or partly as agent for the plaintiff, it is a "suit for property" within the meaning of the Small Cause Court Act (XI of 1865), and if the property is moveable and of less than R500 in value, the suit is then a small cause. Accordingly where the plaintiffs, who were co-members with the defendants of a division of a caste, and as such tenants-in-common with them of certain cooking vessels of less than R500 in value, were excluded by the defendants from possession and common use of the vessels, and sought for a declaration that the plaintiffs and the defendants were equally entitled to the use of the said vessels, and for restoration of the same to some third person who should hold them to the use of the plaintiffs and defendants:—Held, that the suit was not a suit for a declaratory decree, but for the recovery of property within the meaning of the Small Cause Court Act (XI of 1865), and as such was exclusively triable Courts were Court. The proceedings of the lower by Small Cause pronounced null, and the plaint directed to be returned for presentation in the proper Court. KALIAN DAYAL v. KALIAN NARAR

144. ——— A suit for a declaration of right by a person against whom an order has been passed under s. 280 of the Civil Procedure Code, 1877, will not lie in the Small Cause Court. Ramdhan Biswas v. *Kefal Biswas, 1 B. 145. ——— Decree—Suits to recover certain decrees, and claim to execute them. In addition to a claim to recover certain decrees, amounting together in value to less than R500, the plaintiffs claimed a decree authorizing them to put the same into execution. The suit was not a suit of the nature cognizable by a Court of Small Causes. BALAM DAS v. DWARKA DAS . 7 N. W. 88

146. ——— Suit on decree of Civil Court. A suit cannot be maintained in a Small Cause Court in the mofussil to enforce the decree of a Civil Court. MANCHHARAM KALLIANDAS v. BAKSHE SAHEB MIR MAINUDIN KHAN
6 Bom. A. C. 231

147. ——— Suit for balance due on decree of Small Cause Court. A suit cannot be maintained in a Small Cause Court in the mofussil to recover the unsatisfied balance of a decree of such Court. SANDES v. JOMIR SHAIKH
9 W. R. 399

148. ——— Suit for instalment of decree under Act X with stipulation for execution of decree in default. Where a defendant agreed to pay the amount of a decree under Act X by two instalments, and the remedy provided for the enforcement of the contract in the event of the defendant making default was the execution of the decree, and not a suit in the Civil Court:—Held, that a suit would not lie in the Small Cause Court to recover the amount of the second instalment. AGHORE CHUNDER MOOKERJEE v. WOOMASOONDEREE DEBEA . . . 7 W. R. 216

149. ——— Suit to set aside decree of Small Cause Court. A suit to set aside a decree of a Small Cause Court when no defect of jurisdiction is manifest on the face of the proceeding

and HUREE PARSAD MALEE v. KOONJO BEHARY SHAHA . . Marsh. 99 : 1 Hay 238

153. ——— Dower—Suit for dower under kabinnamah. A suit for the maujjil or exigible portion of dower due to plaintiff under a kabinnamah is cognizable by a Small Cause Court, under s. 6, Act XI of 1865, notwithstanding that questions of very considerable difficulty may be raised in it collaterally with regard to the validity of the marriage. The decision of the Small Cause Court on such collateral matters has not the same effect as the decision of the Court which had jurisdiction to determine then in a suit regularly brought for that purpose. HALA KHOORY BIBEE v. BASOO KOSHYE
17 W. R. 512

154. ——— Suit for deferred dower—Act XI of 1865, s. 6. A suit for deferred dower or muwajjal, payable to the wife by the husband upon her divorce, or upon the husband's death by his heirs out of his estate, is cognizable by a Small Cause Court. HAYATUNNISSA BIBEE v. ASIROODDEEN . . . . 18 W R. 304

155. ——— Suit for property conveyed in lieu of dower. Held, that a suit for R100 would not lie in the Small Cause Court upon a deed by which the defendant conveyed to the plaintiff, in lieu of the amount (R100) due to her as a dower, a half share in all his property, moveable and immoveable, and under which deed, therefore, the plaintiff was entitled to a moiety of all such property, but could not sue for the sum originally stipulated for. NEELOO BEBEE v. MISSER BISWAS 6 W. R. Civ. Ref. 12

156. ——— Dwelling or carrying on business—"Dwelling"—Actual residence. The actual presence of the defendant within the jurisdiction of the Court is not necessary, if he was there dwelling at the commencement of the suit, and a temporary dwelling is sufficient to give jurisdiction to a Small Cause Court. ANANTHA NARAYANA v. PERIYANA KONE . . . 5 Mad. 101

157. ——— Dwelling—Casual residence—Act XLII of 1860, s. 4. Mere casual presence, or even residence for a temporary purpose, without the intention of remaining is not dwelling within the jurisdiction of a Small Cause Court within the meaning of s. 4 of Act XLII of 1860. A person, resided at Coimbatore, but had some cultivated land within the local jurisdiction of Ootacamund to which place he came to answer another demand against him. Held, that he did not dwell within the jurisdiction of the Ootacamund Small Cause Court. SAMINATHA PILLAI v. VARISAI MAHOMED RAVATTAN . . . 2 Mad 304

158. ——— Temporary absence—Dwelling—Act XI of 1865, s. 8. Although a defendant may be temporarily absent from his dwelling-house, yet if he retains the same, he will be held to dwell there within the meaning of the Small Cause Court Act (XI of 1865). To dwell in a place is to have one's permanent abode there. MADHO DOSS v. SITA RAM . . 3 N. W. 121

159. ——— Temporary absence from imprisonment—Residence. Temporary imprisonment beyond the jurisdiction of a Small Cause Court was held not to bar the jurisdiction of that Court in respect of defendants who formerly resided within its jurisdiction and whose families continued to reside within it, the inference from the latter fact being that the defendants had an intention of returning to their former place of abode on the termination of their imprisonment. GOPAL CHUNDER SIRCAR v. KURNODHAR MOOCHEE 7 W. R. 349

160. ——— Dwelling—Temporary residence—Attendance at race meeting. In the case of a person attached to a regiment stationed at Shahjehanpore, who had been gazetted to two years' furlough in India, served with a summons issued out of the Small Cause Court at Meerut whilst attending a race meeting at the latter place in respect of a debt contracted beyond the jurisdiction of that Court:—Held, that, if he had not availed himself of furlough, but was only present on short leave at Meerut, he was not dwelling within the jurisdiction of the Meerut Court, or if, having availed himself of furlough, he retained his permanent residence at Shahjehanpore, and merely visited Meerut for a few days, he was in that case also not dwelling at Meerut, but if, having availed himself of furlough and having retained no permanent place of residence at Shahjehanpore nor having any permanent place of residence elsewhere, he attended the race meeting at Meerut with the intention of leaving that place after the races and of proceeding elsewhere in the enjoyment of his furlough, in such case he must be held to have been dwelling at Meerut when the summons was served. MAYHEW v. TULLOCH . . . . 4 N. W. 25

161. ——— Residence as domestic servant. A suit is not maintainable at K against a defendant who is employed as a domestic servant at M, and who is not shown to have any immediate or early intention of returning to K where his family are continuing to reside; the word "dwell" in s. 8, Act XI of 1865, it being held, must be used in the strict sense of actual residence. PORGASH PARAY v. HACHIM . 7 W. R. 417

162. ——— Act XI of 1865, s. 8—Place of dwelling. A servant residing within the jurisdiction of one Small Cause Court who has a family house within the limits of the jurisdiction of another Small Cause Court in which his father lives, and which he himself occasionally visits, does not dwell within the local limits of the latter Court within the meaning of s. 8 of Act XI of 1865, and although the cause of action may have arisen there, a suit against him will not lie in that Court. GENDU MALHARI v. GOVIND ATMARAM . 10 Bom. 409

163. ——— Suit against wife—Husband not in jurisdiction. A suit against a woman living under the protection of her husband is not cognizable in a Small Cause Court, if at the time of the commencement of the suit the husband does not dwell, nor personally or through a servant or agent carry on business or work for gain within the local limits of the jurisdiction of the Court. BOWMAN v. SHAWE . . 10 W. R. 240

164. ——— Commission agent—Residence—Carrying on business. A person who carries on business at a place by a commission agent, to whom he only consigns goods, cannot be said to carry on business or personally to work for gain within the local limits of a Court where the commission agent resides. GOPEE MOHUN ROY v. PROTAP CHUNDER ROY . . 11 W. R. 530

165. ——— Act XI of 1865, s. 8—Residence—Zamindari business. Zamindari business is not such business as is intended by Act XI of 1865, s. 8, and mookhtears and karpurdazes carrying it on are not servants or agents within the meaning of s. 11. Where zamindars from the mofussil come in occasionally to the head-quarters of a Small Cause Court to prosecute or defend suits,

166. ——— Act XI of 1865, s. 9—Suit against Agent of Governor General. A suit against an Agent to the Governor General on the part of a Government, is substantially a suit against Government, and ought, under s. 9, Act XI of 1865, to be brought in a Court having jurisdiction at the seat of Government. ROOPUN TEWAREE v. BUCKLE . . . 10 W. R. 142

167. ——— Residence in Cantonment—Practising in Small Cause Court jurisdiction. Where a pleader resides within the limits of a Cantonment, and practises as a pleader within the jurisdiction of a Small Cause Court, both the Cantonment Magistrate and the Small Cause Court Judge have concurrent jurisdiction over him to the amounts respectively cognizable by them. SHAPURJI JEHANGIR v. MORGAN 4 Bom. A. C. 187

168. ——— Dwelling—Act XI of 1865, s. 8. The defendant, an officer in a regiment stationed at Vellore, was sued for money due for the rent of a house occupied by him at Madras. While absent on leave on medical certificate, he rented the plaintiff's house at Madras, where he was residing at the time of the institution of the suit; but he returned to Vellore previous to the hearing of the suit. The Small Cause Court Judge of Vellore held that the defendant was dwelling at Vellore at the time of the institution of the suit within the meaning of s. 8 Act XI of 1865. Held, that there was nothing in point of law to prevent the Judge from affirming his jurisdiction. KISHUN SINGH v. STURT . . . . 5 Mad. 471

169. ——— Defendant residing out of jurisdiction—Act XXIII of 1861, s. 4. The provisions of s. 4 of Act XXIII of 1861 were applicable to Courts of Small Causes in the mofussil. ANPURNABAI v. SAKHARAM JAGANNATH 6 Bom. A. C. 256

170. ——— Cause of action—Defendant residing out of jurisdiction—Act XXIII of 1861, s. 4. When a cause of action had arisen within the local jurisdiction of a Small Cause Court, but one of several defendants resided out of such jurisdiction, sanction might be given, under s. 4 of Act XXIII of 1861, by the High Court to the Small Cause Court to try the suit. 171. ——— Suit against joint obligors—Act XLII of 1860, s. 21. An order from the High Court was necessary to enable a Court of Small Causes to entertain a suit against several obligors, one of whom at the time of filing the plaint was neither resident nor personally working for gain within the limits of its jurisdiction. Such order should be applied for after the reception of the plaint, upon a statement of the circumstances of the particular case. S. 21 of Act XLII of 1860 was to have the same operation as if Act XXIII of 1861 had formed part of Act VIII of 1859 when it became law. SABHAPATI MUDALI v. MUTTUSVAMI MUDALI . . . . 1 Mad. 103

172. ——— Madras Civil Courts Act (III of 1873)—Act XI of 1865, s. 8. Since the passing of the Madras Civil Courts Act (III of 1873), the general control over all the Civil Courts is vested in the District Judge to whom the application should be made. It is only in cases where the defendant is beyond the local jurisdiction of the District Court, and the Court before whom the suit is instituted has not otherwise jurisdiction under Act XI of 1865, s. 8, that a reference to the High Court is necessary. ANONYMOUS 8 Mad. Ap. 10

173. ——— Suit for debt against defendants with joint liability—Act XXIII of 1861, s. 4. A suit for debt against two defendants whose liability was joint, but one of whom at the time of filing the plaint was neither resident nor personally working for gain within the limits of the jurisdiction, might be tried by a Small Cause Court within whose jurisdiction the other defendant was resident at the time of the commencement of the suit, provided an order was obtained from the High Court under s. 4 of Act XXIII of 1861. RUNGIAH PILLAI v. CHINNASAMI PILLAI . 3 Mad. 374

174. ——— Joint bond—One of parties out of jurisdiction—Act XI of 1865, s. 12. In a suit brought on a bond jointly executed by the defendants, one of whom resided in Calcutta and the other within the jurisdiction of the Munsif's Court at Alipore :—Held, that it was cognizable by the Small Cause Court, although the authority of the High Court was necessary before it was tried, and therefore, under s. 12, Act XI of 1865, the Munsif had no jurisdiction to try the suit. KHODA BAKSH MISTRI v. BENI MANDAL 6 B. L. R. 719 note : 14 W. R. 156

175. ——— Endowment—Suit by Mahomedan for share of property under terms of certain endowment—Provincial Small Cause Courts Act (IX of 1887), Sch II, cl. 18. A suit by a Mahomedan to obtain a share in property distributable under the terms of a certain endowment is a suit of the nature contemplated by cl. 18 of Sch. II of the Provincial Small Cause Courts Act (IX of 1887), and therefore not cognizable by a Court of Small Causes. MIHR ALI SHAH v. MUHAMMAD HUSEN I. L. R. 14 All. 413

176. ——— Foreign judgment—Jurisdiction—Suit on foreign judgment. A suit upon a foreign judgment is not cognizable by a Court of Small Causes established under Act XI of 1865. ANAKATTIL NARAYANA KRISHNAN KARTHAVU v. KOCHERI PILO PILO . I. L. R. 6 Mad. 191

177. ——— Suit on foreign judgment—Judgment of Court of Native State. No suit is maintainable in a Small Cause Court in British India founded upon the judgment of a Court situate in a Native State. BHAVANISHANKAR SHEVAKRAM v. PURSADRI KALIDAS I. L. R. 6 Bom. 292

178. ——— Government—Suit to which Government officials are parties—Act XI of 1865, ss. 1, 6, and 9—Local Government. A suit, within the pecuniary and other limits prescribed for Courts of Small Causes, in which an officer of Government is a party in his official capacity, may be entertained by a Court of Small Causes in the mofussil. The phrase "Local Government" used in s. 9, and defined in s. 1 of Act XI of 1865, does not apply to the Collector of a district, but rather to the Governors or Lieutenant-Governors of Presidencies or Commissioners of Provinces. DESALJI MANAJI v. HEMADALLI IMAM HAIDARBAKSHA 10 Bom. 308

179. ——— Suit for compensation for damages against the Secretary of State—Provincial Small Cause Courts Act (IX of 1887), Sch, II, Art. 3. A suit was brought against the Secretary of State in a Mofussil Small Cause Court for compensation for damages done to an oil-mill by the officials of the Nalhati State Railway. Held, that the suit was not within Art. 3, Sch. II of Act IX of 1887, and that it was cognizable by the Small Cause Court. BUNWARI LAL MOOKERJEE v. SECRETARY OF STATE FOR INDIA I. L. R. 17 Calc. 290

180. ——— Provincial Small Cause Courts Act (IX of 1887), Sch. II, Art. 3—Karnam in a zamindari—Officer of Government—Public servant. The plaintiffs, being the lessees of a settled zamindari, brought a suit in a Small Cause Court against a karnam in the zamindari to recover damages sustained by reason of the defendant's default in keeping certain accounts, etc. Held, that the karnam was not an officer of Government, and that the suit was maintainable under the Provincial Small Cause Courts Act. ORR v. NEELAMEGAM PILLAI . . I. L. R. 18 Mad. 395

181. ——— Immoveable property—Provincial Small Cause Courts Act (IX of 1887), Sch. II, Arts. 4 and 13—Hereditary allowance—Bombay General Clauses Act (Bom. Act III of 1886). Plaintiffs sued in the Court of Small Causes at Poona to recover R400 for arrears alleged to be payable to them under an agreement by the defendant's father to pay R150 per annum, of which R50 were for maintenance of plaintiff's mother and the residue was to be applied towards defraying the expenses of a temple. The terms of the agreement showed that it was intended that the payment for the expenses of the temple should be continued in perpetuity. The Judge dismissed the suit, holding that being for a hereditary allowance it was a claim for immoveable property and came under cls. (4) and (13) of Sch. II of the Provincial Small Cause Courts Act (IX of 1887). On application by the plaintiffs to the High Court under s. 25 of the Provincial Small Cause Courts Act (IX of 1887):—Held, reversing the decree, that the suit was not for possession of immoveable property or recovery of an interest in such property within the meaning of Art. 4, nor did it come within the purview of Art. 13 of Sch. II of the Act. The Small Cause Court had therefore jurisdiction to entertain the suit. VISHNU GANESH JOSHI v. YESHAVANTRAO I. L. R. 21 Bom. 387

182. ——— Immoveable property—Provincial Small Cause Courts Act (IX of 1887), Sch. II, cls. (13) and (31)—Small Cause Court. The plaintiff claimed, as land-owner, to be entitled to receive the rents or fees paid by shopkeepers for the temporary occupation, during a fair, of a piece of land, which, the plaintiff alleged, belonged to his mahal. He further alleged that the defendant, claiming that the land was his, had wrongfully received those dues or rents. Held, that this was a suit which fell within the provisions of the latter part of cl. (31) of the second Schedule to Act IX of 1887, and was not within the cognizance of a Court of Small Causes. Damodar Gopal Dikshit v. Chintaman Balkrishna Karve, I. L. R. 17 Bom. 42, referred to. 245. ——— Act XI of 1865, s. 6—Suit by vatandar mahars to recover "aya"—Immoveable property, what is. A suit for baluta or aya is a claim in respect of a hak belonging to, and forming the emoluments of, an hereditary office amongst Hindus, and one in respect of immoveable and not moveable or personal property. A Mofussil Small Cause Court has no jurisdiction to entertain a suit for such a claim. There is no difference in principle between the haks of hereditary officiating mahars of a village and the haks appendent to the hereditary office of a village joshi, for the office of an hereditary priest of a temple and its emoluments. The haks of the former are not personal property. APPANA v. NAGIA. I. L. R. 6 Bom. 512

The bond had been executed for nuzzur or salami contemporaneously with the execution of a pottah and kabuliat, by which the defendants agreed to pay the plaintiff R335 a year for two years, as rent for certain land. The pottah and kabuliat had not been registered. A previous suit brought by the plaintiff, under Act X of 1859, had been therefore dismissed, and no oral evidence was admitted to prove the terms of the pottah and kabuliat. Held, that the suit on the bond was properly cognizable by the Small Cause Court as a simple debt due under the bond. It was clearly not for rent, nor was it an abwab or illegal cess; whether it was nuzzur or salami was immaterial. DINANATH MOOKERJEE v. DEBNATH MULLICK 5 B. L. R. Ap. 1 : 13 W. R. 307

The then zamindar and his successors continued the remissions, always, however, entering the faisal rates in the pottahs and setting down the remissions as munasib. In 1861 the plaintiff became lessee of the zamindari, and in 1862, pursuant to notice, he tendered pottahs for Fasli 1272 to the defendant and the raiyats at the faisal rates. Held, first, that the plaintiff was not precluded from raising the rents to the amount of the faisal assessment; secondly, that the Act of limitation did not apply, and, thirdly, that the plaintiff might sue in a Court of Small Causes for the rent for Fasli 1272. The Court, regarding the suit as one for use and occupation, made a decree in favour of the plaintiff. Held, that the suit was not rightly regarded as one for use and occupation, for the claim was not based on any contract, express or implied, it should have been regarded as an action of trespass brought to try a question of title,—an action in which the Court of Small Causes had no jurisdiction. The plaintiff's proper remedy was by an action of ejectment in the ordinary Civil Courts, to which, if he chose, he could add a claim for mesne profits for the period during which the defendant had been in occupation. The decree of the Court of Small Causes was accordingly annulled. JAMNADAS v. BAI SHIVKOR I. L. R. 5 Bom. 572

Both instituted suits on their bonds against the obligor, and obtained decrees for sale of the property, the decrees being passed on the same day. The property was attached in execution of both decrees on the 14th August 1882. The sale-proceeds were divided by the Court executing the decrees equally between the parties by an order dated the 1st May 1883, notwithstanding that S claimed the whole on the ground that he was an encumbrancer under a decree passed on a registered instrument, and therefore entitled to priority. S, being dissatisfied with this order, brought a suit to recover from L the moiety of the sale-proceeds paid to him. Held, that the suit, being one to compel the defendant to refund assets of an execution-sale which he was not entitled to receive, and to set aside the order of the Court executing the decree, which directed the payment of the assets to him, was expressly allowed to be brought under the provisions of the penultimate paragraph of s. 295 of the Civil Procedure Code, and could not be regarded as a suit of the nature cognizable in a Court of Small Causes. 330. ——— Provincial Small Cause Courts Act (IX of 1887), s. 15, Sch. II, cl. 35 (j)—Compensation for illegal distress—Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV of 1882), s. 586—Second appeal—Limitation—Rent Recovery Act (Mad. Act VIII of 1865), s. 78—Cause of action complete on date of illegal distress. A plaint alleged that plaintiffs had for long cultivated certain land as tenants under defendant, that they had raised a crop of paddy, measuring about 6 garces, and stored it in three heaps on the land, that one of the plaintiffs had paid all the kist that was due to defendant, but that defendant had taken unlawful possession of two of the heaps of paddy, measuring about 5 garces, under the pretext that he had distrained them. The prayer was for an order directing defendant to deliver to plaintiffs about 5 garces of grain, worth R250, at R50 per garce, in respect of the two heaps of paddy of which he had taken unlawful possession. The distraint was made on 25th January, 1898, and the suit was instituted on 26th July on the same year :—Held, that the suit was in substance one for compensation for illegal distress or attachment and not for the recovery of specific property, and that, in consequence, it was not a suit of the nature cognizable by a Court of Small Causes, and a second appeal lay. Held, also, that the suit was barred. The wrong was complete and the cause of action arose when the unlawful distress was made. Yamuna Bai Rani Sahiba v. Solayya Kavundan, I. L. R. 24 Mad. 339, distinguished. 3. PRACTICE AND PROCEDURE.

(a) EXECUTION OF DECREE.

1. ——— Power of execution—Change of jurisdiction. A Small Cause Court in which a decree is passed is competent to entertain an application for its execution, even if the debtor's residence and moveable property are situate in a place which has since the decree been excluded from that Court's jurisdiction. In such execution the course to be pursued was that prescribed by ss. 285 and 286, Code of Civil Procedure, 1859. KODOO MUNDUL v. SHUSHEE SHIKHUR SIRCAR 16 W. R. 227

2. ——— Mode of execution—Interest in moveable property, power to sell—Act XI of 1865, ss. 6 and 20. A Small Cause Court can sell the undivided right, title, and interest, of a deceased debtor, to which the defendants succeeded, in the moveable property in satisfaction of a decree obtained against the defendants without infringing the second proviso of s. 6 of Act XI of 1865. Until the judgment-creditor has exhausted that mode of proceeding, he is not entitled to proceed against the debtor's immoveable property under s. 20 of the Act. AHOBALASCO CHETTY v. VENKATA KRISTNAMMA . . . . 5 Mad. 275

3. ——— Execution of decree—Suit against member of undivided family. A Court of Small Causes has not power to do more in execution of a decree against an undivided member of a Hindu family than issue process for the attachment and sale of the defendant's undivided right, title, and interest in the family moveable property. It would be for the purchaser at such a sale to obtain a partition. IYAHVEIN v. CHITHAMBARIEN . . . . 5 Mad. 312

4. ——— Act XI of 1865, ss. 19 and 20—Rights and interests of judgment-debtor under bond pledging immoveable property. The rights and interests of a judgment-debtor under a mortgage-bond hypothecating to him immoveable property are not saleable by a Court of Small Causes. A sale of such rights by a Court of civil judicature, by virtue of a certificate issued under the provisions of s. 20 of Act XI of 1865, is the proper mode of execution. BUDDOO MULL v MAHAROOF . . . . 6 N. W. 129

5. ——— Power of Court to attach salary—Civil Procedure Code, 1882, ss. 223, 268. A Mofussil Court of Small Causes must adopt the machinery of s. 223 of the Civil Procedure Code in all cases where execution is sought against persons or property outside its local jurisdiction. Such a Court therefore cannot attach the salary of a public officer where the same is disbursed outside its local jurisdiction. Hossein Ally v. Ashotosh Gangooly, 3 C. L. R. 30, followed. 6. ——— Transfer for execution—Act XI of 1865, s. 20—Transfer to, and execution by, Munsif's Court—Sale of land—Certificate not filed—Title of purchaser. A decree passed by a Subordinate Judge's Court on the Small Cause side was, after the abolition of the said Court, transferred by the District Court for execution to a District Munsif's Court. The District Munsif, on the application of the creditor, attached and sold certain land. No application was made by the creditor for a certificate as provided by s. 20 of Act XI of 1865, nor was any objection taken to the execution-proceedings by the debtor. The creditor, having purchased the land, sold it to N, who, in attempting to take possession was resisted

A Small Cause decree of the former Court having been sent by the Subordinate Judge to the Court of the District Munsif for execution against the said property under the provisions of s. 20 of Act XI of 1865, the application for execution was rejected by the Munsif on the ground that this procedure was illegal. Held, that s. 20 of Act XI of 1865 was not modified by s. 223 of the Code of Civil Procedure, and that the Munsif's Court was therefore bound to execute the decree. (b) NEW TRIALS AND REVIEWS.

8. ——— Act XI of 1865, s. 21—Review—Limitation Act, 1877, Art. 173. S. 21 of Act XI of 1865 held to be in force, notwithstanding the right of review given to Small Cause Courts in the mofussil by s. 623 of the Code of Civil Procedure, 1882. Where the circumstances of a case admit of a new trial, an application for such new trial is governed by s. 21 of Act XI of 1865; but where the circumstances of a case do not admit of a new trial, but do admit of a review, then the time within which an application for review should be made is to be governed by Art. 183, Sch. 12. ——— Application for new trial, ground for—Computation of time prescribed for application. An error as to date in the summons to plaintiff's witnesses is sufficient ground for setting aside an order dismissing his suit. 14. ——— Non-appearance of defendant—Application to set aside ex parte decree. There is nothing in the first part of s. 21 of Act XI of 1865 showing that an application in accordance with that portion of the section is limited to the first occasion on which a defendant puts in an appearance to a suit. Where therefore a case is adjourned from the date fixed in the summons to any later date, and on such later date a defendant is prevented by sufficient cause from appearing, and in default of such appearance an ex parte decree is given against him, he may apply under the first part of s. 21 for an order to set aside such decree. In the matter of DOYAL MISTREE v. KUPOOR CHUND I. 15. ——— Procedure—Deposit of amount of decree and costs. A defendant desiring a new trial of a case decreed against him in a Small Cause Court must deposit in Court the amount of the decree passed against him and costs, at the time of giving notice of his intention to apply for the new trial. A subsequent deposit, though made within seven days from the date of the decision, will not entitle the party to ask for a new trial. Semble: The "next sitting of the Court" mentioned in s. 21, Act XI of 1865, refers to the next sitting after the decision complained of; and the words "within the period of seven days from the date of the decision" apply to cases in which the sittings of the Small Cause Court are not held consecutively by reason of the same Judge being the Judge of more than one Court. 23. ——— Ex parte decree obtained on forged bond. Petitioner specially registered a bond, brought it into a Small Cause Court, and, without serving the obligors with any summons, got an ex parte decree against them and shortly after took out execution. The judgment-debtor appeared within thirty days of the decree and applied for stay of execution on the ground that the bond was a forgery. Execution was stayed on security given, a re-hearing was granted in the presence of both parties, the original decree was reversed, and a fresh decree given. Held, that in this state of the facts the Small Cause Court had jurisdiction to grant a review and fresh decree, and that the procedure laid down in s. 21 of Act XI of 1865 was followed as far as it was applicable. In the matter OF MOHUN SAHOO 11 W. As neither the applicant nor his pleader was present on that date, the Judge rejected the application without issuing notice on the opposite party. A second application was then made under s. 21, Act XI of 1865. Held, that the communication to the pleader was an informal proceeding, and as applicant had not been summond in due form his application should not have been rejected in his absence, and the Judge was bound to hear the second application. Reviews of judgment of a Small Cause Court as distinguished from new trials are now governed by s. 623 of the Civil Procedure Code, 1882.

26. ——— Provincial Small Cause Courts Act (IX of 1887), s. 17—Deposit of costs—Civil Procedure Code, 1882, ss. 623, and 624—Power of Judge to review order of predecessor. On 23rd February 1888 the Sudordinate Judge of Tinnevelly dismissed with costs a Small Cause suit on the ground that the plaintiff had not secured the attendance of his witnesses. On 29th February the plaintiff presented a petition for review on which notice was directed to issue, but he did not deposit in Court the amount of the costs payable under the decree. On 17th April the petition having come on for hearing, the Judge directed that the petitioner should "first" deposit the amount of the defendant's costs under s. 17 of the Provincial Small Cause Courts Act, which was accordingly done on the following day. On 21st April the petition which proceeded on grounds other than those mentioned in s. 624 of the Code of Civil Procedure, came on for hearing before the Officiating Subordinate Judge, who had assumed charge of the Court between the last-mentioned dates: he entertained the petition, but dismissed it. The plaintiff preferred a revision petition against the order dismissing his petition. Held, by the Full Bench, following the cases of Karoo Singh v. Deo Narain Singh, I. L. R. 10 Calc. 80, and Fazal Biswas v. Jamadar Sheikh, I. L. R. 13 Calc. 231, that, having regard to the provisions of s. 624 of the Code of Civil Procedure, the Officiating Subordinate Judge had jurisdiction to hear and determine the case on review. Held, by PARKER and WILKINSON, JJ., that the provisions of s. 17 of the Provincial Small Cause Courts Act as to the deposit of costs on an application for review are not mandatory, but merely directory. 28. ——— Questions arising on application for new trial—Act X of 1867, s. 1—Act XI of 1865, s. 22. When the judgment of a Small Cause Court is called in question by one of the parties on a point of law, such as that damages have been assessed on a wrong principle, his proper course is to apply for a new trial. The facts not being disputed, the Judge may grant a new trial as to what amount of damages were sustained; and in determining that question, he may alter his opinion as to the principle on which damages ought to be assessed, and upon the new trial assess them on the proper principle. A question of law raising on an application for a new trial was a question which might be referred to the High Court for its opinion as a question within the meaning of s. 1, Act X of 1867, arising at any point in the proceedings previous to the hearing of a suit. 1. JURISDICTION.

(a) General Cases.

1. ——— Extension of jurisdiction by Act XV of 1882—Act IX of 1850, s. 53—Abandonment of excess. Whilst the pecuniary jurisdiction of the Small Cause Court was limited to R1,000, the plaintiffs brought a suit for that amount for damages for breach of a certain contract after abandoning the excess, and in that suit they elected a non-suit under s. 53, Act IX of 1850. Held, in a suit brought in respect of the same damages for the full amount due to them, that the plaintiffs were not precluded, by their having abandoned the excess in the former suit, from recovering the full amount sued for. 4. ——— Leave to sue—Presidency Towns Small Cause Courts Act (XV of 1882), s. 18—Discretion, exercise of—Refusal of leave to sue—Jurisdiction—Defendant residing outside jurisdiction. A tradesman in business in Calcutta sued his debtor, a resident at Lucknow, to recover a sum of R23 for goods sold in Calcutta and forwarded by the E. I. Ry. Co., for delivery at Lucknow. The plaintiff applied under s. 18 of Act XV of 1882 for leave to sue the defendant in the Calcutta Court of Small Causes. The Court refused to grant such leave, apparently on the ground that the defendant was living at a long distance from Calcutta, and that the suit was one for a small amount. Held, that, in refusing to grant such leave, the Judge of the Small Cause Court had not exercised the discretion vested in him under s. 18, and that the case was one in which the leave applied for should have been granted. In the matter of Collett v. Armstrong . I. Sargent, C.J.—Primâ facie the word "defendants" in cl. (b) of s. 18 has the same meaning in each of the three cases in which that clause gives jurisdiction to the Court ; and as the word clearly includes non-British subjects among the defendants over whom the clause gives jurisdiction if they are "resident" or "personally work for gain" within the territorial limits of the Small Cause Court, it would be a strained construction to hold that it did not include them among the defendants over whom the clause gives jurisdiction on the ground that they are "carrying on business" within the limits. Although it is true that a non-British subject who does not personally carry on business within the territorial limits of the Court does not make himself personally subject to the municipal law of British India, still, by establishing his business in British India, from which business he expects to derive profit, he accepts the protection of the territorial authority for his business, and his property resulting from it, and may be fully regarded as submitting to the Courts of the country. 7. ——— Splitting cause of action—Act IX of 1850, s. 34. The defendant, as broker for the plaintiffs, guaranteed all transactions entered into by the plaintiffs with native firms through the defendant. Some of these native firms, in respect of such transactions, became indebted to the plaintiffs, and the defendant wrote to the plaintiffs requesting them to sue such defaulting firms. The plaintiffs accordingly sued six of such firms, and sent a letter to the defendant claiming from him payment of the taxed costs incurred in all the suits, amounting to R7,553-10-6. The defendant having failed to pay, the plaintiffs sued him in the Small Cause Court to recover payment of the taxed costs incurred in one of the suits, amounting to R433. Held, that the plaintiffs, in doing so, were splitting their cause of action within the meaning of s. 34 of the Small Cause Courts Act (IX of 1850). 11. ——— Set-off—Deduction of amount of proceeds of goods not accepted. The plaintiffs consigned goods to the defendant, and drew a bill for R2,711-9-6 against them on the defendant in favour of the Chartered Mercantile Bank. The bill was accepted by the defendant, and, when presented for payment, was dishonoured. The bill was paid for honour by the attorney of the plaintiffs. The goods arrived, and (the defendant having refused to pay the bill) were sold by the plaintiffs, after notice to the defendant, at his risk, and realized R1,655-15-4. The plaintiff refused to hold a survey on the goods unless the defendant paid the amount of the acceptance. The plaintiffs sued the defendant in the Small Cause Court for the amount of his acceptance, giving him credit for the proceeds of the goods, and abandoning the excess. Held, that the plaintiffs were not entitled to do so, as the claim on the bill was not brought within the jurisdiction of that Court by payment or admitted set-off. 12. ——— Part payment—Set-off—Suit for balance of account. The plaintiffs advanced R15,000 against the defendant's grain consigned to Hong-Kong, to be there sold on his account by the plaintiffs' agents. The plaintiffs subsequently gave credit to the defendant for R14,115-3-3, alleged to have been received by them as the proceeds of the sale, and sued him for the balance in the Bombay Small Cause Court, abandoning the excess so as to bring the claim within the Court's extended jurisdiction of R1,000. The defendant disputed the correctness of the account sales forwarded by the agents at Hong-Kong, and contended that the Court had no jurisdiction to try the case. The Judge, subject to the opinion of the High Court upon the facts as stated, struck the case out of the list for want of jurisdiction. Held, that, as both the plaintiffs and the defendant were bound, by the nature of the transaction, to have the proceeds of the sale applied to satisfy the advance made by the plaintiffs to the defendant, the receipt by the plaintiffs of the amount, for which they gave credit in their particulars of demand, was in the nature of a part payment ; and that the suit was therefore on a balance of account, and within the jurisdiction of the Court of Small Causes. (c) BREACH OF PROMISE OF MARRIAGE—concld.

Small Cause Courts Act (XV of 1882), s. 90 (q). The phrase " breach of promise of marriage," which occurs in cl. (q) of s. 19 of the Presidency Small Cause Courts Act, has reference to the action as understood in English law, that is, between the parties who contemplate contracting the marriage, and not between an intended bridegroom and the parent of the intended bride. By s. 3 of the Madras City Civil Court Act, 1892, jurisdiction is conferred upon the City Civil Court to try all suits of a civil nature except, inter alia, suits cognizable by the Small Cause Court. By s. 19, cl. (q), of the Presidency Small Cause Courts Act, the Small Cause Court has no jurisdiction to entertain suits for compensation for breach of promise of marriage. A suit was filed in the City Civil Court for compensation for breach of promise of marriage ; but the contract alleged to have been broken had been entered into between the parent of the intended bride and the intended bridegroom : Held, that the Court had no jurisdiction, inasmuch as such a suit was not exempted from the jurisdiction of the Small Cause Court. He also registered and insured it for R115. The fees were duly paid, receipts obtained, and the post office took charge of the parcel. By the mistake of a clerk the parcel was delivered to and accepted by the addressee without its value being collected from him. This suit was brought to recover the value of the parcel from the defendant, as the post office would neither pay the money to plaintiff nor return the article. The defendant relied, inter alia, upon s. 34 of the Indian Post Office Act, 1898. The proviso to s. 34 runs as follows :—Provided that the Secretary of State for India in Council shall not incur any liability in respect of the sum specified for recovery, unless and until that sum has been received from the addressee. Held, that the defendant was liable. The effect of the proviso is that the post office does not guarantee the collection of the money, but the proviso does not absolve the post office from the common law of liability to pay damages for delivering a parcel without collecting the money in pursuance of his undertaking to do so. By its contract the post office is bound to collect the money, when it delivers the article. If, for any reason, it neglects to do so, it commits a breach of contract for which it is liable in damages. The measure of the damages being the value of the article lost. A Small Cause Court has jurisdiction to entertain such a suit, it being a suit on contract and not on tort. MOTHI RUNGAYA CHETTY v. SECRETARY OF STATE FOR INDIA (1905)

In a case involving a question of adverse title, the plaintiff should be allowed to amend the summons issued under s. 91 of Act IX of 1850, so as to render it conformable with a claim under s. 25 of Act XXVI of 1864 if the summons were issued in the mistaken form by the fault of the Clerk of the Court, and not of the plaintiff. NOWLA OOMA v. BALA DHURMAJI I. L. R. 2 Bom. 91

23. ——— Act IX of 1850, s. 91—Equitable defence—Suit for ejectment. The plaintiff in 1879 took out a summons under s. 91 of the Presidency Towns Small Causes Courts Act, IX of 1850, calling on his nephew, the defendant, to deliver up possession of certain premises in his occupation belonging to the plaintiff. The plaintiff alleged that he had purchased the premises in question in 1870 from one N, to whom the defendant had mortgaged them in 1866 with power of sale. The plaintiff produced the deed of mortgage to N and the conveyance to himself. It was admitted on his behalf that he had never received any rent from the defendant, and never had manual possession of the premises occupied by him. But the plaintiff produced a writing of attornment, dated April 1873, passed to him by the defendant, whereby the latter acknowledged that he was occupying the premises in question as the plaintiff's tenant and agreed to pay rent for the same at R25 a month. His defence was that the mortgage, the sale, and the writing of attornment were all merely colourable, executed for the purpose of defeating his creditors and screening the property from execution; that no money had passed between the parties; that the defendant had never been out of possession, and that the plaintiff now required the Court to assist him in turning his own wrong to his own advantage. At the hearing in the Court of Small Causes the defendant proposed to prove the above facts, and submitted that, under the circumstances, a bonâ fide question of title was raised which ousted the jurisdiction conferred on the Court by s. 91. The Court, however, refused to receive the evidence, and held that it had jurisdiction. On reference to the High Court: —Held, that the defendant was entitled to set up the defence which he had, and that it ousted the jurisdiction of the Court of Small Cause to proceed further with the action—inasmuch as such defence raised a question of adverse title, which in suits under s. 91 of Act IX, 1850, that Court had not jurisdiction to decide. 24. ——— Act XV of 1882 s. 41.—Landlord and tenant—Admission of tenancy —Suit in ejectment. The plaintiff, alleging that the defendant was his tenant at a monthly rental of R52 and had refused to deliver up possession to the plaintiff, took out a summons against the defendant under s. 41 of the Small Cause Courts Act, XV of 1882. The defendant admitted the tenancy, but contended that he held under an unexpired lease for four years. The Judge of the Court of Small Causes was of opinion that a question of title was involved, and he dismissed the case on the ground that he had no jurisdiction to hear it. The plaintiff thereupon applied to the High Court under its extraordinary jurisdiction. Held, that the case was within the jurisdiction of the Small Cause Court. Within seven days the defendants tendered rent, interest, and costs. The plaintiff, nevertheless, filed this suit to eject the defendants. The defendants subsequently paid the full amount due into Courts. Held, that, under the terms of the lease, the defendants were not liable to forfeiture, and that, since the suit should have been brought under Ch. VII, s. 41, of the Presidency Small Cause Courts Act, the plaintiff must pay the defendant's costs as between attorney and client under s. 22 of that Act. Held, on appeal (i) that there, having been a tender and payment into Court of the full amount due, the plaintiff proceeded with the suit at his risk under s. 114 of the Transfer of Property Act; (ii) that the suit not being cognizable by the Small Cause Court, s. 22 of Act XV of 1882 did not apply, an application under Ch. 27. ——— Small Cause Courts Act (XV of 1882), s. 41—Mortgage—Mortgage sale—Ejectment—Suit, brought by purchaser at mortgage sale, to eject mortgagor—Right of purchaser to possession not derived from mortgagee. The defendant, Mowji Dayal, mortgaged the house in question to one Lalji Doongersey in 1896. The defendant (mortgagor) remained in occupation of a part of the house, the rest of it being occupied by his tenants, who paid him rent. In October, 1900, Lalji Doongersey, the mortgagee, sold that house by auction, under his power of sale, and the plaintiff purchased it and obtained a conveyance on the 20th April, 1901. Subsequently the plaintiff (purchaser) brought this suit in the Small Cause Court, under s. 41 of the Small Cause Courts Act (XV of 1882), to eject the defendant (mortgagor), contending that he held as tenant-at-will or by permission of the plaintiff or of the mortgagee through whom he (the plaintiff) claimed. Held, that the case did not come within s. 41, and that the Small Cause Court had no jurisdiction to try the suit. A purchaser at a mortgage sale does not claim through the mortgagee for the purpose of s. 41 of the Small Cause Courts Act (XV of 1882). That section deals with the right to recover possession, rather than with title, and consequently the derivative claimant must establish that his right to possession is the same as that which was vested in his predecessor (the mortgagee). But the purchaser's right to recover possession is one which came into existence for the first time when he became absolute owner of the property. It is one which was not vested in the mortgagee, so that, though his present right to recover possession came into existence by virtue of something done by the mortgagee, it cannot be said that it passed from the mortgagee to him. Therefore, so far as relates to the purchaser's present right to recover possession, the mortgagee is not a person through whom the purchaser claims. CHABILDAS LALLUBHOY v. MOWJI DAYAL (1901) I. 33. ——— Presidency Towns Small Cause Courts Act (XV of 1882), s. 28—Presidency Small Cause Court Rules of Practice, 49, 50, 51—Tiled huts—"For the purposes of execution," Meaning of—Question of Title—Res judicata. In execution of a decree of the Calcutta Small Cause Court against N, the judgment-creditors attached certain tiled huts which had been mortgaged by N to the plaintiff. Plaintiff thereupon filed his claim on the mortgage in the Small Cause Court, but his claim was disallowed, that Court being of opinion that the mortgage was a collusive transaction and not genuine. The plaintiff then brought this suit on his mortgage making the judgment-creditors as well as N defendants and praying as against the judgment-creditors that they be restrained from proceeding to a sale or other disposition of the mortgaged premises. A preliminary objection was taken that such a suit would not lie, and the suit was dismissed on that objection by the original Court. Held, that the words of s. 28 (Act XV of 1882), "for the purposes of execution," must mean for all purposes of execution, inclusive of the purposes of determining objections made to attachment. Tiled huts for all the purposes of execution are therefore moveable property under that section. The Small Cause Court has full power and authority to determine the question of title under a mortgage over attached property, and that question is therefore res judicata. DENO NATH BATABYAL v. NUFFER CHUNDER NUNDY . . . I. L. R. 26 Calc. 778 : 3 C. W. N. 590

Held, on appeal by the plaintiff reversing the above decision, that tiled huts are immoveable property. That the words "for the purpose of the execution of the decree" in s. 28 of Presidency Small Cause Courts Act (XV of 1882) only mean that, as between the judgment-debtor and the judgment-creditor, property of this particular class (i.e., tiled huts) shall, for the purposes of execution, be deemed to be moveable. That section does not contemplate that Small Cause Courts should deal, in execution-proceedings, with questions of title to or determine any right to or interest in tiled huts at any rate as between the attaching creditor and the mortgagee of the judgment-debtor. Ismail Solomon Bhamji v. *Mahomed Khan, I. The defendant admitted that the R500 was due to him by the plaintiffs, but did not, either before suit or at the trial, agree to its being set-off against the plaintiffs' claim. Held, by MACPHERSON and TREVELYAN, JJ. (PETHERAM, C.J., dissenting), that the sum of R500 could not, under expl. (n) TITLE, QUESTION OF.

38. ——— Questions of title incidentally raised—Act XV of 1882, s. 19, cl. (g)—Suit for rent—"Suits for determination of any right or interest in immoveable property." When a suit is brought in a form cognizable by a Court of Small Causes, that Court cannot decline jurisdiction, because a question of title to immoveable property is incidentally raised. It is the nature of the suit as brought by the plaintiff, and not the nature of the defence, that determines whether or not the Court of Small Causes has jurisdiction. Cl. (g) of s. 19 of the Presidency Small Cause Courts Act (XV of 1882), refers to suits brought expressly for the purpose of obtaining a decree determining a right or interest in immoveable property, and cannot include a suit brought for moveable property, or money, in which a question of title may be raised by the defendant. The plaintiffs sued in the Presidency Court of Small Causes to recover fazendari rent from the holder of fazendari land. The defendant pleaded that no rent had been paid for the land since 1846, that the claim was time-barred, and that the plaintiffs had no title to the land in question. The Judges of the Court of Small Causes dismissed the suit, on the ground that the defence raised a bonâ fide question of title to immoveable property which ousted their jurisdiction. Held, reversing the lower Court's decision, that the suit was cognizable by the Court of Small Causes. 41. ——— Action for detinue and trover—Gift—Incomplete gift—Suit by executor to recover promissory notes on ground that the gift of them to defendant was incomplete—Presidency Towns Small Cause Courts Act (XV of 1882), s. 18. The plaintiff as executor of D sued the defendant in the Small Cause Court of Bombay to recover two Government promissory notes of the nominal value of R2,000, standing in the name of D. The defendant, who had been D's servant, alleged that the notes had been given to him by D as a reward for past services. The Court held that there was evidence (though unsatisfactory) of a gift by D to the defendant. It was then contended, on behalf of the plaintiff, that assuming there was evidence of a gift, such gift was incomplete, inasmuch as the notes had not been endorsed to the defendant, and that the defendant was not entitled to any aid from the Court to perfect the gift. The Judge held that the Court of Small Causes had no power to decree the return of the notes or payment of their value, and that, so far as the jurisdiction of that Court was concerned, the defendant had a right to retain the note. Held, by the High Court, that the

1. ——— Dismissal of suit for want of jurisdiction—Costs—Form of decree. Where a plea to the jurisdiction of the Small Cause Courts established under Act IX of 1850 is successful, the judgment ought to be one dismissing the suit. 23. _____ Presidency Small Cause Courts Act (XV of 1882), s. 69—Case stated for opinions of High Court—Mode of stating case—Question of law or usage. In a suit brought in the Small Cause Court by the plaintiffs against the defendant for damages for breach of contract to deliver goods, the only dispute was as to the principle on which damages were to be assessed. The defendant paid into Court the sum of R779-10-0. At the close of the hearing, and before judgment was delivered, the plaintiffs' attorney informed the Chief Judge that he would require a case to be stated for the opinion of the High Court under s. 69 of the Presidency Small Cause Courts Act (XV of 1882), unless the decree were in his favour. The Judge thereupon desired him to state the exact question of law he would wish to be referred, but he declared himself unable to do so until after judgment was delivered. He said he could not then say anything more than that he would require a case to be stated for the opinion of the High Court on any question of law that might arise in the case. The Chief Judge thereupon stated the facts to the High Court, and referred the following general question for its opinion: "Whether, on the facts above set forth, the plaintiffs are entitled to recover, from the defendant any, and if so what, sum greater than R779-10-0 paid into Court by the defendant?" On the reference coming before the High Court, a preliminary objection was taken as to whether the reference was in proper form, no question of law or usage having the force of law having been formulated for the opinion of the Court. Held (FARRAN, J., doubting), that the reference should be sent back to be amended by stating the precise question arising in the case. The Court was then engaged in re-hearing appeals ; but, in order to prevent the petitioner's application from being barred by limitation under the provisions of the section which requires the application to be made within eight days, their Lordships, before rising, allowed the application to be then formally made, but adjourned the hearing to a subsequent day. When the case came on, it appeared (i) that the petition had not been signed and declared until the 17th December 1887, i.e., the day after the application had been made in Court ; (ii) that the affidavit in support of the application, as required by s. 38, had not been filed until two days after the application in Court ; and (3) that the Court-fees, which by s. 71 of Act XV of 1882 should be paid prior to the application, had not been paid until the 20th December 1887, i.e., four days after the application. Held, that the application for a re-hearing must be rejected. The application, although nominally made on the 16th December, was only provisionally received, and every objection to its reception which could have been taken on that day could be taken at the hearing. The subsequent compliance by the petitioner with the requirements of the Act could not place him in a better position than he occupied when the application was made. In re JAI KISSOONDAS PURSHOTAMDAS

S. 38 of Act XV of 1882 does not authorize the High Court to grant an order for a re-hearing where that Court merely feels that the evidence is doubtful without forming any opinion as to whether the conclusion arrived at by the Small Cause Court is a wrong one. The section requires that there should be such an opinion before granting the order, and such opinion should be a distinct opinion, and not merely what is termed an inclination of opinion. Courts Act, an application was made to the High Court under that section for the re-hearing of a suit which had been dismissed by the Small Cause Court. The application was made by petition at the rising of the Court, and not being a regular motion day the hearing of the matter was postponed till the 9th April. On that day, on the application being brought on, it appeared that the petition only bore a 7-rupee stamp instead of one of the much larger value required by s. 71 of the Act. It was contended on behalf of the petitioner that the deficiency could then be made up, and that he was entitled to have the application heard. Held, that this could not be done. The eight days allowed by s. 38 expired on the 7th April, and had the application been then considered, it could not have been received, but must have been rejected, as s. 71 requires the proper fee to be paid before the application can be received. Although the consideration of the application was deferred to the 9th April, that made no difference, as the eight days had expired before the petition was in such a condition that it could be received. The Judge was willing to do so, but the plaintiffs withdrew their request. The Judge thereupon delivered his judgment and dismissed the suit. The plaintiffs then applied to the High Court for a re-hearing under s. 38 of Act XV of 1882. It was contended that the Judge was wrong in his view of law as applicable to the facts. Held, that, even if that were the case, there was no " miscarriage or failure of justice " within the meaning of s. 38, and that the plaintiffs were not entitled to re-hearing. There is no inconsistency between the two sections. A plaintiff whose suit has been dismissed for default has two separate remedies under different enactments. s. 103 of the Civil Procedure Code, he can do so within thirty days (Limitation Act XV of 1877, Sch. II, Art. 163). A suit and cross-suit between the same parties were on the board of a Judge of the Presidency Small Cause Court for hearing on the 23rd April 1898. On that day A, the counsel who was instructed for the defendants in the first suit and for the plaintiffs in the second, was unable to attend, and B, another counsel, held his brief and appeared on his behalf and applied, for two months' adjournment of both suits. The munim of his clients was then in Court. B was unable to state what was the defence, if any, to the claim of the plaintiffs in the first suit. The adjournment was refused, and B said he withdrew from the case. Both suits were then and there disposed of, the claim of the plaintiffs in the first suit being decreed, the second suit being dismissed for non-appearance. On the 7th May following, an application was made for a re-hearing of both suits. The Court, regarding the decrees as ex parte decrees, granted a rule for a new trial, which was made absolute. On appeal to the Full Court, the matter was referred to the High Court. Held, that under the circumstances the suits were to be considered as having been disposed of under ss. 100 and 102 of the Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV of 1882) respectively, and that, whether or not they, or either of them, fell within the category of contested suits as defined by s. 38 of the Presidency Small Cause Courts Act (XV of 1882), the remedy under s. 103 of the Civil Procedure Code was open to the plaintiffs in the cross-suit. 39. ——— Small Cause Court—Presidency Small Cause Courts Act (XV of 1882), ss. 9 and 38—Decision by a single Judge on evidence—Reversal of decree by Full Court—Jurisdiction—Practice. One of the Judges of the Presidency Small Cause Court at Bombay having dismissed the plaintiff's suit on the evidence, the decree of the Judge was reversed by the Full Court (composed of two Judges), as being manifestly against the weight of the evidence, on an application by the plaintiff under s. 38 of the Presidency Small Cause Courts Act (XV of 1882). A question arose as to whether the decision of the Full Court was ultra vires and void, there being nothing in the rules framed under s. 9 of the Act providing for the exercise by the Full Court, composed of two or more Judges, of any powers conferred on the Small Cause Court. Held, that, although the rules of procedure and practice of the Presidency Small Cause Court at Bombay were silent as to the exercise by the Full Court, consisting of more than one Judge, of any powers under the Act, it did not follow that the sittings of the Full Court were therefore ultra vires. Although no rules were framed as to the procedure to be followed, still, by long practice, the procedure had become well-defined and fully known, the practice being that the Full Court should consist of two Judges—the Chief Judge, and in his absence the senior Judge, presiding. The Judge against whose decree any application is made is generally the second member, if he is present in Court. If he is absent, the Chief Judge and the second, or the Chief and any other Judge, hear and dispose of the application. Such being the unwritten rules of practice, they must be deemed to be "Rules treated as in force in the Court on 31st December, 1894," under cl. (2) of s. 9 of the Act, and to be validly in force. They fall within the principle that an inveterate practice amounts to a rule of law. Held, further, that the power to alter, set aside or reverse the decree under s. 38 of the Act includes the power of the Full Court to pass a decree in favour of the party in whose favour the application is granted. The practice of the Court of Small Causes at Bombay, of reviewing the decree in cases in which the notes of evidence are sufficient to enable the Full Court to undertake that review, and of setting aside a wrongful dismissal of the suit where the decision is manifestly against the weight of evidence, is not contrary to law. Act XI of 1865, after declaring that the words "Local Government" should denote "the person authorized to administer the Executive Government in such part," enacted by s. 3 that the Local Government may, with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council, constitute Courts of Small Causes under that Act at any place within the territories under such Government. By s. 3 the Judge of such Small Cause Court was to be appointed by the Local Government. Act XI of 1865 did not repeal s. 10 of Act XXI of 1863. By notification dated 1st September 1869 the Governor General appointed a Judge of the Small Cause Court at Rangoon, extended the provisions of Act III of 1864 to British Burma and invested the Chief Commissioner of British Burma with the powers conferred on a Local Government by that Act. By notification of 2nd October 1869 the Governor General in Council sanctioned the establishment of a Court of Small Causes in Rangoon under s. 3, Act XI of 1865, extended the jurisdiction of the said Court to an amount not exceeding R1,000, and notified that the territorial jurisdiction would be co-extensive with that of the existing Small Cause Court jurisdiction of the Recorder's Court at Rangoon. Held, that the Small Cause Court at Rangoon so established was properly constituted. 1. ———— Solicitor's lien for costs—Summary jurisdiction of Court over suitors—Compromise by parties without knowledge of solicitor—Solicitor's right to oppose motion—Negotiable security—Transfer of Negotiable security by debtor to his creditor—Effect. By a private compromise between Cullianji, the plaintiff in the first suit, and Lakshmibai, the 6th defendant, who was also the plaintiff in the second suit, it was agreed that the plaintiff should give to Lakshmibai certain immoveable property and R15,853 in full settlement of her claim and a further sum of R500 for her solicitor's costs. On the 21st February 1904, possession of the immoveable property was given and a sum of R500 paid to Lakshmibai. Cullianji also gave to her 3 hundis for R5,000, R5,000 and R5,853, respectively, but the hundis were dishonoured on their due dates. In March and April, 1904, the plaintiff paid two sums of R5,000 to Lakshmibai, by cheque, in lieu of the two hundis for R5,000. On the 4th June, 1904, Lakshmibai's solicitor gave notice to the plaintiff, that he had a lien for costs on the sum of R15,853 agreed to be paid by the plaintiff to his client. On the 22nd of June, 1904, the plaintiff paid the sum of R5,853 to Lakshmibai, in cash, in respect of the hundi for R5,853, which was dishonoured. The plaintiff, thereupon, moved for an order, authorizing the delivery to him of certain property alleging that he had settled and satisfied the claims of Lakshmibai. Lakshmibai's solicitor opposed the motion on the ground that the settlement and satisfaction were collusive transactions intended to cheat him out of his costs and asked the Court to order the plaintiff to deposit the sum of R9,000 as security for the same. Held, that in the absence of fraud or collusion between the parties the solicitor was entitled to be paid his taxed costs, by the plaintiff, up to R5,853, being the amount paid by the plaintiff after notice of the lien. The High Court of Bombay has a summary jurisdiction over its suitors for the purpose of enforcing a solicitor's lien for costs; and in enforcing it the Court must be guided by the principles of English law. Whether the solicitor moves the Court by an application of his own or appears to oppose a motion of the party, against whom the lien for costs is alleged to arise, in either case he calls in aid the equitable interference of the Court under its summary jurisdiction. Devkabai v. *Jafferson, Bhaishankar and Dinsha, I. 2. ——— Taxation—Work not ordinarily falling upon Solicitors—Work of meritorious character. K was the solicitor for the defendant in a suit brought to obtain probate of the will of one Damji Lakhmichand. The defence set up was that the will was a forgery. Being unable to procure the services of an expert, K, after special study for the purpose, himself carefully studied every letter of the alleged will, and despite counsel's opinion that he had no chance of succeeding, he eventually succeeded in satisfying the trying Judge that the will was a forgery. In his bill for attorney and client's costs, K claimed extra payment for the additional and unusual work incurred by him. Held, in review of taxation, that K was entitled to be separately remunerated for the special work done by him, as it was in fact a charge for work done which would not ordinarily fall upon a Solicitor in the preparation of the brief. ——— ss. 3, 4—Act XXXVII of 1855, s. 2—Bengal, N.-W. P. and Assam Civil Courts Act (XII of 1887)—Suit exceeding ₹1,000 in value—Officer invested with power of a Civil Court—"Court." The effect of s. 2 of Act XXXVII of 1855 and s. 3 of Regulation III of 1872 is to make the general laws and regulations, including the provisions of the Code of Civil Procedure, applicable in the Sonthal Pergunnahs to suits exceeding ₹1,000 in value without any qualifications, provided that such suit are tried in the Courts established under the Civil Courts Act (XII of 1887). An officer in the Sonthal Pergunnahs invested by Local Government with the powers of a Civil Court under s. 4 of Regulation III of 1872 is a Court established under Act XII of 1887 within the meaning of s. 3 of the Regulation. The decision was not pronounced until the settlement had been completed. Held, that s. 5 of Regulation III of 1872 did not apply, and that, under the circumstances, the

2. ——— Appeal from settlement proceedings—Notification of the Lieutenant-Governor of the 7th May 1872—Act XXXVII of 1855, s. 2. The officer appointed under s. 2 of Act XXXVII of 1855, and not the Settlement Officers as such, are the persons empowered to try such suits as are referred to by Regulation III of 1872, s. 5, and to certify issues to the Civil Courts under that section. The notification of the Lieutenant-Governor, dated the 7th May 1872, being still in force, the Settlement Officers have no power to deal with such cases. Where a Settlement Officer referred certain issues to a Deputy Commissioner as a Civil Court under Regulation III of 1872, s. 5, to be dealt with by him, and he gave a decision thereon and certified the same to the Settlement Officer, and it appeared that the Deputy Commissioner had previously been invested with the powers of a Settlement Officer, and the proceedings were subsequently returned to him for the settlement record to be amended in conformity with his findings, he being thoroughly conservant with all the facts of the case, and he accordingly passed an order and amended the record defining the areas to which the plaintiffs were entitled. On appeal against that order,—Held, that, so far as he was acting as a Civil Court, the Deputy Commissioner had no jurisdiction to try the issues sent him or deal with the case, but that, inasmuch as he was vested with the powers of a Settlement Officer, and was fully competent as such to deal with the case himself, seeing that the parties could not in any way be prejudiced by the irregularity committed, the High Court would not interfere to set aside the order. Held, also, that, treating the action of the Deputy Commissioner as that of a Settlement Officer, the High Court had no jurisdiction to hear the appeal. the amount borrowed is "unlawful" within the meaning of s. 23 of the Contract Act. All that the law provides is that compound interest will not be decreed by any Court. Referring to the Sonthal Regulations, s. 6 of Regulation III of 1872 and s. 24 of Regulation V of 1893, it was held, in respect of an agreement to pay interest on an amount composed partly of the principal and interest due on a former debt, that such agreement is not void under s. 24 of the Contract Act, and that the obligee may recover such sums of money as he is entitled in law to recover, notwithstanding that part of the consideration is compound interest. The introductory words of cl. 4 of s. 25 of the Regulation, which impose a personal limitation on the jurisdiction of the Civil Courts, apply to suits of all the three classes to which the cause relates; so that the bar to the jurisdiction can take effect on a suit in the third of the three classes only when it is both "a suit to contest the finding or record of the Settlement Officer," and involves also the determination of "the rights of zamindars or other proprietors as between themselves." The defendant (zamindar) obtained an ex parte decree for rent on the basis of the jumma-bandi prepared in the said proceedings. In a suit brought to establish the plaintiff's lakhiraj title and for an order directing the record-of-rights and jumma-bandi to be amended:—Held, that a lakhirajdar is a proprietor within the meaning of s. 25 of the Regulation, and ss. 11 and 25 did not bar the jurisdiction of the Civil Court in this case. Ram Charan Singh v. *Dhaturi Singh, I. 2. ———— Suit to set aside order of Settlement Officer—Non-publication of record-of-rights—Onus of proof. In a suit instituted in January 1887 by a plaintiff to set aside a settlement made under Regulation III of 1872 and to recover khas possession of a mouzah, alleging that the defendant held the lands as chakran and that the services for which he held them had ceased, the defendant pleaded that the tenure was dur-mokurari, that the land had been settled as such in June 1877, and that the suit was consequently barred by the special limitation provided by s. 25 of the Regulation. The plaintiff sought to set aside the settlement on the ground of the non-publication of the record-of-rights and the fraud of the defendant, and both the lower Courts found that the record-of-rights had not been published by its being posted conspicuously in the village as required by s. 24. On special appeal it was contended on behalf of the defendant that such publication was not essential, but that it was open to the Settlement Officer to publish the record in such manner as might be convenient. Held, that posting the record conspicuously in the village is an essential part of the publication, and that the suit was not barred by limitation. It was further contended that the onus of proving the tenure to be dur-mokurari, which had been thrown on the defendant, had been wrongly so thrown on him, as the suit was substantially one to set aside a decree. Held, that the onus of proving the validity and propriety of the settlement-proceedings upon which he relied had been properly thrown on the defendant. ———— Forest and waste lands—Rebuttable presumption of Government ownership—Conclusive presumption under Hindu and Mahomedan Law—Warg land—Right of wargdar over waste lands adjacent to his cultivated land—Kumaki and Netticut rights—Acts of user and occupation consistent with proprietary right of Government. There is a general presumption that forest and immemorial waste land in South Canara, not exclusively occupied by any person or body of persons, is the property of the Government. In the case of the large tracts of immemorial forest on the ghats and elsewhere in South Canara, there is a presumption of fact, that they are Government forests, though such a presumption is rebuttable, by proof of private ownership, in regard to any particular part of the forest. In the case of forests and secondary growth, the presumption will usually be that they belong to some private owners, but this may be rebutted by showing that any portion forms part of a warg that was abandoned or forfeited or escheated to Government, or by showing that it was not part of a warg, but was cultivated as Kumri. In order to rebut the presumption of Government ownership in forest and immemorial waste land it is necessary that there should be proof of the exercise both in the past and in the present, of acts of undoubted ownership, such, for instance, as the granting of leases to tenants for cultivation, and the cutting of valuable timber trees for sale and not such acts as the Government permits in forest and waste land for the benefit of the adjacent cultivation. "Kumaki" and "Netticut" privileges, which are conceded to all wargdars for the better enjoyment of their warg lands adjacent to Government forest do not by any means prove exclusive proprietary right as against Government. "Netticut" privileges are enjoyed by such wargdars as have their wargs situated in valleys lying between the slopes or ridges of hills. Each ridge or Netticut forms a natural boundary, within which a cultivator grazes his cattle. Kumaki lands are lands which are allowed to be used in assisting cultivation and they are intended to afford to the ryots the means of procuring leaves for manure and to furnish fodder for their cattle. In 1860 the Sudder Court, acting as Special Commissioners under Regulation III of 1828, at the instance of the zamindar, directed the release of the resumed lands, but did not decide as to the right to the mesne profits which the Government had received from the Ghatwals during the period of resumption, deeming this question beyond their competency as Special Commissioners. 1. ORDERS SUBJECT OR NOT TO APPEAL —contd.

18. ——— Order dismissing appeal as presented out of time—Civil Procedure Code, 1882, s. 584—Limitation Act, 1877, s. 4. An order dismissing an appeal as being presented out of time under s. 4 of the Limitation Act, 1877, is a "decree passed in appeal" within the meaning of s. 584 of the Civil Procedure Code, 1882. A second appeal will therefore lie from such order. GUNGA DASS DEY v. RAMJOY DEY I. L. R. 12 Calc. 30

19. ——— Refusal to restore appeal withdrawn. No special appeal lies from the order of a Judge refusing an application to restore an appeal that had been withdrawn. MODHOOMUTTY DEBIA v. DHUNPUT SINGH 13 W. R. 167

20. ——— Order dismissing appeal on failure of appellant to deposit costs of notice—Act XXIII of 1881, ss. 5 and 6. A special appeal lay from an order passed under ss. 5 and 6 of Act XXIII of 1861 dismissing an appeal for non-service of notice in consequence of failure to deposit the cost of issuing the same. DINOBUNDHOO CHUTTERAJ v. BEHAREE LAL MOOKERJEE 3 W. R. Mis. 23

INDUR CHUNDER BABOO v. OOZEER ALI KHAN. 7 W. R. 338
